HOME COMING RECEPTION THRILLS LINDBERGH MOST OF ALL

PACKED STREETS ACCLAIM HIM IN EIGHT-MILE PARADE

35,000 CHEER HIM AT BALL GAME—CITY DINES HIM

'IT WAS 100 PCT. WONDERFUL,' SAYS ATLANTIC AIRMAN AFTER PROCESSION

"Washington Decorous, New York Tumultuous, but St. Louis Was Tender," Adds His Mother.

CAVALRY NEEDED TO CLEAR THE WAY

Massed Crowds Line Streets From Union and Lindell to Downtown to See Famous Flyer.

By WILLIAM F. ALLEN.

LINDBERGH, himself, said that yesterday's outpouring of St. Louisans who packed the eight-mile route of his triumphal two-hour procession through unbroken cheering formed "the most enthusiastic, yet most orderly demonstration I have seen since my landing in Paris."

There flashes, then, across memory the wild stampede of that epochal night at Le Bourget, the emotional acclaim of the Paris street crowds, the reception at Brussels where a King and Queen unbended to gallant youth, the descent upon Croydon into the hearts of the rarely-moved English, the unprecedented mass at Washington where a President waited for and upon a boy, the frenzy and tumult and clamor of New York's millions.

Yet, when St. Louis was through yesterday, Lindbergh's eyes were shining and he appeared to want to say more, but he only added simply: "It was 100 per cent wonderful." It was then that the city could assume that it had thrilled the famous aviator as none afar off in three weeks of ovations had been able to stir him.

Mother Proud and Pleased.

When the uproar was reaching its heights, this reporter signed to the flyer's mother with his lips: "Do you like it?" Her reply was a vigorous nod of the head in assent and a gesture of pride and pleasure.

When it was finished she said: "Washington was decorous, New York was tumultuous, but St. Louis was tender."

So it seemed. St. Louis itself has bestowed both decorous and tumultuous greetings in the past. It has greeted presidents and kings and queens decorously. It has greeted a world's champion baseball team so tumultously that its fervor seemed drained out. But yesterday, in one of the greatest demonstrations in its history, it appeared that there were more people massed west of Grand avenue than have assembled in the downtown on numero. previous similar occasions. The crowd began with several thousands—perhaps 10,000—at the starting point of the procession, the Congress Hotel at Union boulevard and Pershing avenue. From there it extended unbroken along the 8-mile march.

On Lindell, between Union and Kingshighway, the rows were five to 10 deep. Eastward from Kingshighway, they were even deeper. At street intersections there were masses. At Grand avenue, including the block-long stand that had been erected just west of Grand, there were at least 20,000.

Veritable Mob Downtown.

Eastward there was a slight thinning until Eighteenth street was reached, but from there on throughout the downtown ,the crowd became a mob. It boiled out and disorganized the police lines along Washington avenue till

PLANE TO HUNT FRENCH FLYERS

Flares Seen Near Chicoutimi Lead to Search.

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Que., June 18.—A hydro-airplane, owned by the Fairchild Air Service, arrived in Chicoutimi today to fly over the district, following the most recent check up of the flares seen in hat neighborhood and thought by some to have been sent up by the missing French aviators, Nungesser and Coli.

The latest explanation of the lights—that they were made by the Great Power plant at Chute Aux Galets, east of Chicoutimi—was proved incorrect by tests last night. The lights, it is said, were reported in the opposite direction from the power plant and dam.

Delores McDonnell of 5746 Etzel Avenue Run Down in Street Not Far From Her Home.

Delores McDonnell, 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick McDonnell, 5746 Etzel avenue, was killed last night when struck by an automobile near her home. The automobile failed to stop.

The machine was described by witnesses as a white Buick roadster with a green body stripe. It was occupied by four youths, two in front and two in a rumble seat.

The girl was crossing Etzel avenue about 100 feet east of Goodfellow avenue, at 6:45 o'clock, when struck by the car, which was traveling fast. Without changing speed, the car continued on its way eastward. Half an hour later the girl died of a compound fracture of the skull at Childrens' Hospital.

PEASE NEW AMHERST PRESIDENT

Former Latin Professor 15 Years at Illinois University.

By the Associated Press.

Springfield, Mass., June 18.—Professor Arthur Stanley Pease of the Latin Department of Amherst College has been elected president of the college to succeed President George D. Olds. Announcement of Professor Pease's election was made late today by George A. Plimpton of the Board of Trustees.

Professor Pease received his Ph. D. from Harvard in 1905, and taught there from 1906 to 1909. From 1909 to 1924 he was assistant professor and then professor of classics at the University of Illinois, where he also served as the curator of the Museum of Classical Art and Archeology. He came to Amherst College in 1924.

OBJECT TO SUNDAY DRIVING

Free Methodists Urge Strict Observance of Sabbath.

ROCHESTER, N. Y. June 18. —A resolution in favor of strict observance of the Sabbath, which the Free Methodist Church claims to be "almost a thing of the past," was adopted today at its quadriennial conference of the churches of North America and the world. "We think it timely in these days of wholesale Sabbath desecration to warn the people of this monstrous evil," the resolution read. "Refrain from all secular work and reading of secular literature, such as newspapers and magazines, on the Sabbath day," members of the church were charged. "We would further enter a protest against the desecration of God's holy day by indulging in unnecessary street car or train rides or autoing merely for pleasure."

New trustees of the General Conference elected include J. M. Daniels of Greenville, Ill.

Dies Trying to Save Horses.

PITTSBURG, Pa., June 18.—Charles Boggus, 60 years old, a Negro, lost his life today in a futile attempt to rescue two horses from a burning stable in Benavon. Occupying the second floor of the structure with Charles Chapman, 64, also a Negro, partly blind, Boggus led his roommate to a window, where he jumped to safety and descended to the ground floor, where the horses were leaping about in their stalls. Boggus' charred body was found beside the carcasses of the horses after the fire burned itself out.

FIANCEE SEES AMATEUR AUTO DRIVER KILLED ON RACE TRACK

Machine Operated by Another Upsets, Then Victim's Car Behind, Crashes Into It.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 18.—While his fiancee looked on from the stands, Arthur Van Vliet, amateur driver of St. Paul, was killed today in an automobile race at the State Fairgrounds here.

The accident occurred in a two-mile race for stock cars. A machine driven by Joe Burke, another amateur, turned over when its front wheels jackknifed. Van Vliet's car, immediately behind, crashed into Burke's and Van Vliet was thrown on his head. He died within a few minutes. Burke was uninjured. Van Vliet's fiancee, Miss Houdek of St. Paul, who was to have been married to him next week, collapsed after the accident.

Glenn Hiett of Rock Island, Ill., set a world's record for 20 miles on a dirt mile track oval, when he covered the distance in 16 minutes 28 seconds.

CIVIC BANQUET CAPS DAY FULL OF DEMONSTRATIONS IN FLYER'S HONOR

St. Louis Takes the Day Off to Give the New York-Paris Aviator Its Most Tremendous Welcome.

MOVED BY PRAISE OF FLYING "BUDDIES"

Official Reception to End Today With Mass Meeting on Art Hill and Speech at Municipal Theater.

St. Louis begins to understand the stamina that carried Col. Charles A. Lindbergh 33 hours over a lonely ocean, through fog and sleet to drop out of the night sky upon an amazed Paris.

His home city yesterday sought to overwhelm him with welcome and today leaps again to the task which it could not accomplish in one day of receptions, a parade, a luncheon, a dinner, a ball game and even half a dozen speeches poured into his burning ears last night.

Today he blithely goes to another day of celebration—a rally of the city's population on Art Hill in Forest Park where more people can gather than in any other one spot in the city, and tonight he agrees to appear upon the stage of the Mnicipal Theater and again do what he obviously has no liking for—make a speech.

At the midnight of the first day of his reception, he was advised to sleep late today, but he insisted on an early call to go to Jefferson Barracks at 9:30 a. m. and there greet the war wounded in hospital. It is the only event upon the two-day program of his own choosing.

Tremendous Demonstration.

The glamour of yesterday is not duplicated in the memory of many St. Louisans. The city shut up business and went joyously to embrace its returning hero. It had eager assistance from thousands poured into the city from surrounding territory by railroads, busses, automobiles and even by air, for many visiting planes arrived at the field at Bridgeton made famous by the St. Louis youth.

It flung to a shining sun that triumphed over an early promise of rain, streamers of bunting. It pasted Lindbergh's picture in its windows, on its automobiles. It flew the flag to which he has brought the luster of new achievement and it cheered and cheered and cheered till it gained from Lindbergh the tribute that nowhere since his landing at Le Bourget had he seen such enthusiasm. His mother said that it was a "tender" demonstration.

Eight-Mile Parade.

The day began with a reception by Lindbergh and his mother to some 300 members of the welcoming committee in the Congress hotel, from which at its conclusion, Lindbergh began his eight-mile parade through lanes of cheering thousands. Overhead three silvery dirigibles led the way. Bombs exploded at intervals over the line of march. In the automobiles that followed the white car of the Colonel, sat the highest officials of the city and State, civil and military, and a member of the

BASEBALL FANS FORGET DIAMOND STARS TO LIONIZE LINDBERGH

100,000 EXPECTED TO SEE FLYER ON ART HILL TODAY

Lindbergh Will Address Appreciation Mass Meeting in Forest Park at 3:30 P. M.

TO VISIT DISABLED VETERANS AT 9:30 A. M.

This Detail Added at His Personal Request — To Appear at Municipal Theater in Evening.

Three events are on Col. Lindbergh's program for today—a visit to disabled soldiers at the Veterans' Hospital near Jefferson Barracks in the forenoon; an "appreciation mass meeting" in the natural amphitheater of Art Hill, Forest Park, in the afternoon, and a visit to the performance of "Princess Pat" at the Municipal Theater, on another hillside of the park, in the evening.

The trip to Veterans' Hospital was not on the prearranged program, but was added to the schedule last evening at Lindbergh's own request. He will be there at 9:30 a. m. and the duration of his stay will be for his own decision. After his arrival in Washington a week ago he visited disabled veterans at Walter Reed Hospital because he felt he ought to gratify the desire to see him of those who could not move about.

More Than 100,000 Expected.

With favorable weather more than 100,000 persons are expected to attend the mass meeting and present a spectacle notable among the series of stirring scenes witnessed by the Flying Colonel since his landing in Paris. The crowd, it is thought likely, may exceed in size those which gathered on Art Hill for the pageant and masque of 1914.

The theater, in the evening, doubtless will be packed to its capacity of 10,000 seats, with heavy fringes of spectators on the slopes beyond the side fences and near the north entrance, where the Lindbergh party will enter and leave.

The Western half of Forst Park will be closed to automobiles until evening. Heavy details of policemen and infantry men from Jefferson Barracks will form the guard. The soldiers will have a field kitchen on the scene for their own accommodation. A first-aid station for the public will be maintained in the Art Museum, on the brow of the hill. The speakers' stand is in place near the lagoon at the foot of the hill. Between it and the equestrian statue of Saint Louis at the summit the police and army plan to keep an open lane in the crowd. Amplifiers have been installed to carry the speeches.

Program at Art Hill.

Lindbergh and his mother will leave the country residence of Harry Hall Knight at 2:30 p. m. and meet an official escort at the Congress Hotel, Union boulevard and Pershing avenue. They will be taken from the hotel to the speakers' stand at 3:15 and the program is scheduled to begin at 3:30.

Music will be furnished in advance of the program by Falkenhainer's band. After Edward Hidden, chairman, opens the meeting, Frederick Fischer, assistant conductor of the Symphony Orchestra, will lead the crowd in singing "America." The ensuing order of speeches, all in appreciation of Lindbergh's feat, will be:

Mayor Miller, an appreciation for the city.

Secretary of War Davis, a St. Louisan, an appreciation for the nation.

Gov. Baker, an appreciation for the State.

Senator Hawes, an appreciation for Congress.

Music.

Assistant Secretary of the Navy Edward P. Warner, an appreciation for aviation.

Former Mayor Henry W. Kiel, an appreciation for the "Spirit of St. Louis."

President Harold M. Bixby of the Chamber of Commerce, one of Lindbergh's backers, an appreciation for the Chamber of Commerce.

President Harry Hall Knight of the St. Louis Flying Club, an appreciation for the club.

Col. Lindbergh, response.

To Lay Wreath on Statue.

After his talk, Lindbergh will be escorted through the lane of guards up the hill to the statue of St. Louis, where he will mount a platform and place a wreath before the patron of the city and his flight. His mother will accompany him. In closing, Conductor Fischer will lead the crowd in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner." The Lindberghs will be driven back to the Knight residence from the Art Museum.

The plane, "Spirit of St. Louis," will be on exhibition for the day on a platform beside the speakers' stand, under heavy guard.

In the evening, Lindbergh and his mother will be escorted from the Knight home to the Municipal Theater. They and their party will occupy box seats. After the first act, Lindbergh will be taken to the stage by former Mayor Kiel, president of the theater association, and Director of Public Welfare Salisbury, one of the executives.

Chorus to Sing "Lindy Boy."

As he walks on the boards, the opera chorus will sing the institution's welcome to him. Louis Kroll, musical director, composed the music and John Hanley, assistant stage manager, wrote the following words:

Lindy Boy—Lindy Boy—
Let us greet our hero brave
Who flew across the ocean.
You're our boy, you're our joy,
And we'll always hold you high
In esteem and devotion.
The Spirit of St. Louis plane
Blazed the way through sleet and rain.
Now you're here, let us cheer
With a welcome they will hear
In London and Paree—
HURRAH!

Lindbergh is expected to make a brief talk after being presented from the stage. Then he may remain for the following two acts of the show, or he may return to the Knight residence immediately.

A box at last night's performance of "Princess Pat" was occupied by John C. Lodge, Acting Mayor of Detroit and uncle of Col. Lindbergh's mother; Harvey Campbell, secretary of the Detroit Board of Commerce; Richard Reading, City Clerk of Detroit, and other members of a delegation arriving here yesterday to invite the flyer to Detroit. The visitors were the guests of former Mayor Kiel.

Emergency Motor Trucks.

Preceding the parade by several minutes came a whole flock of automobile trouble trucks. For a man who had blown over the Atlantic all alone they seemed a bit unnecessary.

Admits Plane Is Fast.

Secretary of War Dwight Davis told Lindbergh he believed the "Spirit of St. Louis" had an unusually fast getaway for a heavy plane. Lindbergh nodded his head and admitted Mr. Davis was right.

troopers from Jefferson Barracks were forced to ride a way through the mass for Lindbergh's car.

Westward along Olive street were the same packed masses. Usually when parades reach Twelfth street they disband, because westward there seldom are more than straggling onlookers. But not so for Lindbergh. He proceeded out Locust street in the same unbroken lane of vociferous cheering. The crowd—or a new crowd—was still at Grand boulevard, though he had passed there more than an hour before. It tarried in the long reviewing stand. It nearly smothered him at the Coronado, where he alighted for luncheon and he disappeared within amid a deafening last blast of cheers.

Orderly but Vociferous.

No better adjectives than those of Lindbergh and his mother are at hand to describe the demeanor of the crowd. It was exultant and vociferous, but it paid tribute chiefly with its voices. There were mechanical noisemakers—screeching, piercing sirens and in spots, the concentrated hammering of batteries of six or more men upon metal that blared forth in clamorous stridence. But the mechanical always was transcended by acclaiming voices of men, women and children. Other honored persons have passed and got their cheering intermittently from that part of any crowd which always cheers. For Lindbergh, everyone cheered. They stretched out their hands to him. Men—and not a few women—waved their hats as they shouted. But, as he said, it was withal an orderly crowd, radiant in the affection of its greeting.

As for Lindbergh. He sat with composure through it all. There were quick little half-turns of his head to the right and left, but nearly always he was eyes front. Mayor Miller, who sat beside him, was grinning delightedly most of the time, but the aviator gave way to a fleeting smile only rarely. Obviously, he was sorely tried.

Scores of thousands of eyes were upon him, searching him for the homely virtues that universally have been attributed to him—modesty, self-restraint and self-effacement, quiet dignity, unblemished youth. He was not found wanting. His attitude was of humility and a little of wonder—perhaps just a trace of feeling that it would be better if there were not so much fuss.

The homage of multitudes was falling upon him and though at times, he seemed to control himself with some effort, he rode the gantlet magnificently. Toward the end of the long ride, he relaxed and began to smile his delightful smile, but as he approached Grand boulevard a second time and the crowd was thickening again, he brought himself back to his sober, patient bearing.

The lowering sky gave way to the sun as parade time approached and shone thereafter. Lindbergh had been taken from the home of his host, Harry H. Knight, in the county, to the Congress Hotel, where he was to embark upon his first public appearance following his nonstop flight from New York the day before. Before 8 o'clock knots of people were assembled beyond the city limits along the route of his swift passage to the hotel and already the city route was beginning to be lined.

Lindbergh and his mother were given a hidden entrance to the hotel at its rear door and in a few minutes they descended to greet the 300 or more members of the Reception Committee. There was some delay at the completion of the reception before the aviator emerged to enter the much-decorated car that was to carry him to his "most enthusiastic" outdoor reception. The car was enveloped in white crepe paper, with its wheels red, white and blue, two flags flying from its windshield and its only inscription, "We," working fore and aft in colors. A model of "The Spirit of St. Louis" was poised on the hood.

Lindbergh took his seat gravely beside the Mayor. Photographers began to shout at him, and how they begged for a smile. He willingly acceded to demands to "stand up" or "turn this way," but he would not smile. He merely turned his imperturbable eyes toward the cameras.

Mrs. Lindbergh in Next Car.

Mrs. Lindbergh was riding in the car directly behind that of her son. She was accompanied by the wife of the Mayor, the wife of Gov. Baker and Mrs. N. A. McMillan.

Twenty other automobiles completed the procession at its start. Among those riding were Secretary of War Davis, Senator Hawes, former Mayor Kiel, Lindbergh's two buddies, Phil Love and Thomas Nelson, who manned the St. Louis-Chicago air mail route with Lindbergh when it was opened last year; Maj. W. B. Robertson, Lindbergh's employer in the air mail before Lindbergh got his hunch to fly to Paris, and Lindbergh's backers in the flight.

Three blimps from Scott Field, which had been sailing over the residential section for an hour, took up single file and headed down Lindell boulevard and the parade was on.

So was the cheering. It began at once and never ceased thereafter for the two hours. It seemed that the number of spectators was increasing at every car length; likewise the volume of the shouting. Women predominated—women and children.

A movie car drew up alongside of Lindbergh's car again. It chanced at that instant that Lindbergh spied out an acquaintance He greeted the acquaintance with

LINDBERGH GUEST AFTER PARADE AT "AVIATION" LUNCH

Dishes on Menu at Coronado Were Named for Landmarks of His Historic Flight.

ICE CREAM IN SHAPE OF PLANES

Aviator Relaxes at Affair and Laughs With Secretary Davis, Who Sits by His Side.

Four hours after his throat-bursting, ear-splitting reception began yesterday, Col. Lindbergh had opportunity, in a quiet luncheon at the Coronado Hotel, to relax with other distinguished guests.

Some were great in his own line. Notably there was Lieut. James Doolittle, the first aviator ever to accomplish an "outside loop." Then at the Colonel's left sat Dwight F. Davis of St. Louis, Secretary of War, and all about him were men distinguished locally or nationally.

The young fellow it was all about took full advantage of the opportunity to relax. As the parade drew up in front of the hotel, those who were able to see him between the cavalrymen who flanked his machine noted that he appeared a bit wan.

Now he chatted brightly with Secretary Davis who sat at his left. They smiled frequently and sometimes laughed.

Edward Hidden sat at Lindbergh's right. Next to Hidden was Mayor Miller, and, on the Mayor's right, Gov. Baker. Next to the Secretary of War sat Harold M. Bixby, and beside him was Harry Hall Knight, another backer of the historic flight.

An Aviation Menu.

A bowl of roses was a splash of crimson in front of the aviator, and 700 of the red blossoms had been made into two model airplanes on either side. Smaller planes of roses were at every cover and the wall back of Col. Lindbergh was covered with flags. The menu carried the idea further, with dishes "on wings" or named for landmarks of the flight, ice cream molded in minatures of airplanes and a sugar-powdered airplane in the center of a bowl of cakes.

About 50 local and visiting reporters, lunching "at second table," in an adjoining room, with parade stories out of the way for the moment and nothing to see but other reporters, were finding it a pretty soft assignment when Lindbergh came among them unannounced, a rangy, blond young man with a boyish grin.

"Ask him all you want," said Walter Weisenburger, welcoming expert of the committee. "Get it out of your——"

"What did you think of the St. Louis reception?" Col. Lindbergh paused as if to gather emphasis.

"One hundred per cent," he said with finality. But that did not end it. Pressed for elaboration, he added, "The enthusiasm and everything was wonderful."

"Was this the wildest?"

"Oh, I can't say anything like that," Lindbergh protested. "If I said St. Louis was wilder than New York someone might feel hurt."

Mostly the laugh had been on the questioners, but it was on Lindbergh when someone asked if he had met a young woman who flew here from Columbus, O., to meet him. He glanced at the floor and seemed to be searching his memory. When his reply came, 50 people who had been holding their breath threw back their heads and roared.

"I don't know," he confessed, shaking his head and still at a loss, "I guess I'll have to check up on that."

Comments on Hawaiian Flight.

"What can you tell us about this flight to Honolulu?"

At last Col. Lindbergh was interested. "That's a very important flight," he said. "A very difficult flight, and very different to 'ours.'

"In flying from the mainland to an island a very slight error in navigation might cause one to overshoot the island. If he did, there's several thousand miles of water on the other side before you come to the mainland again, whereas I, if my course had been faulty, had all Europe to aim at.

"That scarcely seems a flight to be made by one man. Anyone who tries it should be able to check on his course by radio and celestial observation. Certainly he shouldn't try to do it by dead reckoning."

Newsboy Suspends Business.

One little newsboy got so interested in the parade he forgot to sell the great stack of papers he had under his arms. He just wove his way through the crowd utterly oblivious of prospective customers.

35,000 at Baseball Park Forget Game and All Else To Pay Homage to Flyer

Every Move of Lindbergh Cheered and He Sees Three Innings After Raising World Championship Pennant.

By FREDERICK H. BRENNAN.

A BASEBALL crowd that packed Sportsman's Park and tried to tear a hole in the sky with yells greeted Col. Lindbergh yesterday afternoon. After watching him for three innings more closely than it watched a very exciting game, it bestowed upon him what in the ways of baseball fans is the supreme accolade.

"Slim is a darned good guy," said the bleacherites. "Attaboy, Lindy, old kid," said the reserved seat rooters. And in the dugouts lesser heroes remarked: "Nice kid. He doesn't grand stand it."

But that was not all. Fully 10,000 of the city's fairest, gazing upon the slender young man in a blue suit, sent up a sigh when he arose to leave at the end of the third inning. The glory was departing from the ball game.

"Good-by, Lindy," they called, and waved thousands of handkerchiefs. It was a white flutter that swept about the arena like a snowstorm. A hundred girls went home immediately afterwards, and more left before the fifth inning was over.

Other Notables Eclipsed.

It was the biggest ladies' day of the local season, although there was no free gate for them, and with the arrival of Lindbergh a few minutes before 3 o'clock baseball idols slipped quietly into back seats. Rogers Hornsby looked like a pampered 9-year-old who has just had a baby brother announced to him. What was Grover Cleveland Alexander, then? Who were Thevenow and Bottomley? For that matter, who was Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis?

"H'ray, h'ray, Lindy!" yelled the crowd.

Thousands gathered at the park before 2 o'clock in the vague hope that Lindbergh might be ahead of time. The tension was unusual for a baseball crowd. Almost as large as the world's series assemblies last fall, this crowd of 35,000 had a different spirit. In the lower rows of grand stand and pavilions and in the bleachers there was a massing of white, pink, green and blue colors framed in splotches of patriotic bunting.

Crowd on the Alert.

The upper 10 or 12 rows of fans in the stands kept watch for the others. Scores bobbed up and down unceasingly to look into the streets outside for a sign of Lindbergh's coming.

A waver of tints and sounds ran about the arena, like nervous lights on the rim of a decorated bowl. Women kept watching the small empty box-stand to the right of the Cardinal dug-out, half way between home plate and third base. They seemed to be testing their eyes, or afraid the box would be moved where they would be unable to see it. The feminine fans, it was evident, had come for a good, long look.

"Here he comes!" somebody yelled.

Enters Through Side Entrance.

The crowd already had been on its feet five minutes, and now it surged to the edges of the seat tiers, straining forward. A band struck up some silly tune, was choked off, and a hoarse roar rolled across the field. It started in the bleachers, from whence Lindbergh first was sighted. Pavilion and grandstand took it up as the committee escorted the guest of honor from a side entrance opposite third base.

The guest of honor walked and looked as if utterly wearied. No sooner had he sat down than Judge Landis took charge of him. Other members of the committee leaned over with suggestions. Observed at close distance the impression he gave the crowd was of infinite patience at so much badgering.

Presently a score of committeemen decided it was time to march around the field to raise the World's Championship flag. Landis tugged at Lindbergh's coat sleeve and drew him from the box to pose for pictures. He posed patiently, bending his head this way and that to catch the questions ceaselessly fired at him. Then with Mayor Miller and Landis and Lindbergh following the band, the Cardinals behind and the Giants following, the parade about the park got under way.

Shrieks of applause followed the procession on its half-circuit of the park, sections of the stands saluting the flyer as he passed. The marchers came to a halt before the flagpole in center field. Landis motioned for Lindbergh to pull the halyards. Slowly, hand over hand, Lindbergh drew three flags into the air. First, the American flag then the new world's championship flag, blue-bordered with a redbird on a bat, and Cardinals spelled out in red, then the National League pennant, which had been formally raised weeks ago.

Whistling, Cheering Thousands.

All this to steady whistling and cheering, the bleacher crowds on their feet and banging straw hats about in enthusiasm, and the grand stand thousands peering absorbedly at the distant figure of Lindbergh. Soon it was over and the marchers proceeded around left field and down the third-base foul line. The procession was headed for the box of honor when again Judge Landis took charge of Lindbergh. He pulled his sleeve and motioned for him to march toward home plate.

Mayor Miller, on the other side of the hero, misunderstood and wandered off in the wrong direction. This drew a smile from Lindbergh. When the Mayor at last took the right turn, both teams gathered about Lindbergh at home plate. Hornsby and O'Farrell were introduced to him. He was handed a handful of boxed tokens for the Cardinal players.

Bell, Thevenow, Alexander, among the first to step forward for their awards, looked abashed when they shook hands with the flyer. Alexander appeared a bit quizzical, too, as he stepped back, as if he were saying to the sober-faced youngster: "Ah, I have had them yelling for me, too."

Again, the slow, steady movement of Lindbergh across the field; this time straight toward the box. A swarm of news photographers circled about, snapping him with all sorts of cameras. There were three seats at the left side of the box. Lindbergh sat in the middle chair, Mayor Miller on his left. The vacant chair had been reserved for Mrs. Lindbergh.

Cheers for Aviator's Mother.

The crowd hallooed a welcome to her as she came in, more animatedly than her son. She wore a polka dot summer dress and a becoming black hat. Next to the Mayor sat Secretary Davis and next to Secretary Davis was Judge Landis. But the thousands who, more intent on Lindbergh than on the game just starting, studied him with field glasses, opera glasses, horn-rimmed spectacles and unaided eyes soon perceived that their flyer is no baseball enthusiast.

Displayed No False Interest.

What the crowd liked about him was that, being no fan, he did not deem it necessary to pretend an absorbed interest in the game. He displayed none of the jerky movements, expressions and poses with which men draw attention to themselves. He sat quietly beside his mother, arms folded or hands resting by his side, and when Mayor Miller said: "That's a good play," he nodded, politely.

It started in the second inning to be a bang-up, hair-raising ball game, but Lindbergh's adored cowlick remained neatly in place, he having brushed it back after its earlier ruffling. In his pocket he had a gold token which had been presented him during the ceremony at home plate—a pass to all baseball games, anywhere. His attitude was a little like that of President Coolidge at an Army-Navy football game.

An Exchange of Glances.

When the Giants scored two runs off Grover Cleveland Alexander in the first half of the second, Alex looked toward Lindbergh. Mayor Miller leaned over and said something which sounded like "That's tough." Lindbergh agreed and looked sombrely at Alex. Was Alex saying: "See? Two runs. Off me. What if you spill in a take-off next week, Lindy?" And was Lindbergh saying: "I'm thinking about that?"

Cheers broke out at times for the old idols as the game warmed up and the men there decided that, after all, baseball was baseball. Excitement, which stirred Mrs. Lindbergh, mounted as the Cards tied the score in their half of the second. She smiled a bit and beat a fist against her scorecard. But Lindbergh only nodded. His eyebrows were puckered; he looked, not so much physically weary, as emotionally exhausted. However, in the third inning, when Bottomley leaned against a fast one and dropped it into the right field bleachers with two men on base, Lindbergh did look pleased.

And Then the Departure.

The reception committee began buzzing at the close of third inning and girls said, with vast regret, "Oh, he's going." Patiently the guest of honor heard the remarks of Harry Knight, his host for the week-end, the advice of this member and that. Photographers edged up. A quietude fell upon the crowd. The Cards were three runs ahead, but Lindbergh was leaving.

"Goodbye, Lindy!" called the girls from the avenues and the small towns and fluttered their handkerchiefs. "H'ray for Lindy!" yelled the fans. Out at second base, Rogers Hornsby moodily kicked the dirt from his cleats. On the wind rode the roar of the crowd.

"How did you like it?" a reporter asked Lindbergh, as he turned into the runway from the park.

The flyer had his eyes on the sky. He pointed.

"See that Fokker up there: That's that all-metal ship Ford built. It has three engines and they sound fine."

Filmed for State Archives.

Before he went to the ball game yesterday, Col. Lindbergh walked, talked and gestured in front of a slow motion picture camera, in the Coronado, at the request of the Missouri Historical Society. This organization wants a film of Lindbergh for its files. It will also have a bust of Lindbergh made from his appearance on the celluloid.

NOTABLES AT BANQUET VIE IN PRAISE OF AVIATOR AND HIS FEAT

BAKER AND DAVIS EULOGIZE FEAT OF LINDBERGH

Governor Stresses Effect of Flight on Commercial Aviation in Address at Banquet.

"VIKING OF THE AIR," SAYS WAR SECRETARY

A Lesson of National Defense, Davis Points Out—Praises Manhood of Flyer as Inspiring.

Col. Lindbergh at the Welcome Home dinner at Hotel Chase last night heard his courage and his prowess as a "Viking of the Air" extolled by officials of the nation, State and city, and by men prominent in the business affairs of St. Louis. There were 1500 persons at the dinner.

Gov. Baker, who two weeks ago promoted the young aviator from a captaincy to the rank of Colonel in the Missouri National Guard, expressed a pride in having a part in welcoming him. Secretary of War Davis, who will confer an Army Reserve colonelcy on Lindbergh today likened him to the explorers of the unknown, whose achievements advanced civilization.

In his address, given out in advance, Gov. Baker said:

"As chief executive of the great State of Missouri, I am indeed glad to have some part in welcoming home our Missouri boy who by his wonderful flight from New York to Paris has made history and shown to the world that America has taken first rank in the matter of aviation. Missouri is proud of her part and prouder still of her young aviator, Col. Charles Lindbergh. His remarkable accomplishment has shown clearly the possibilities of commercial aviation. It has shown the world another means of transportation, and transportation is one of the greatest factors in the development of civilization.

Hot Air Aviation Stage Passed.

"Civilization is but the means of gratifying the wnts of man. When one want is gratified, there comes another with greater insistence for adoption than the one before. Some writers have said that civilization is an evil because it increases the wants of man. This is not true. If it were true, then we would have to say that man is inferior to a savage; that a savage is inferior to a dog and that a dog is inferior to an oyster.

"We have passed the hot air stage in aviation, both literally and figuratively. For many years the human race has wanted to fly. Some in this audience remember reading of Darius Green and his flying machine. Darius was a myth, but the flying machine is a reality. As far back as 1782, two brothers named Montgolfier made hot-air balloons. Hydrogen gas was soon substituted for hot air. Next we hear of Santos Du Mont, a Brazilian residing in Paris, and of Count Zeppelin, a German, whose machines were heard much of during the recent World War. Then we have the Wright brothers, who solved the problem of creating an air machine heavier than air. In 1908 Wilbur Wright startled the world by making a flight of 56 miles and again by remaining in the air two hours and 20 minutes. The next year a Frenchman flew across the English channel, a distance of 21 miles.

"Glenn Curtiss, another American wrote his name on the pages of history by inventing the hydroairplane. In 1911 another American by the name of Rogers solved the problem of carrying enough fuel for the engine for long distance flights. He sailed from New York to Kansas, a distance of 2600 miles, with many stops. Two years later a Frenchman by the name of Helen made quite a record in a 39 days flight; but it remained for our own 'Slim' to cover 3600 miles in 33 hours without making a stop.

"Both Feet on the Ground."

"So great has been the enthusiasm because of this fact, that no other private citizen in the history of the world has received such honors as have been bestowed upon Col. Lindbergh. Ladies and gentlemen, to my mind, the most outstanding feature of the wonderful accomplishment of this young man is not the fact that he has opened our eyes to the possibilities of air transportation, but that, by his actions, his wonderful personality, his modest manner, he has shown that one may accept great honors and yet remain the same smiling, red-blooded American boy that he was before he came into the limelight. He has gone up smiling. He has come down smiling. He stands with both feet on the ground, still smiling and this wonderful smile and more wonderful personality have endeared him to the American people; particularly to our own people of Missouri and his home city, St. Louis.

"I am proud of the manner in which St. Louis has conducted these festivities in honor of Col. Lindbergh and of course I am proud of Col. Lindbergh himself. It is my wish, Colonel; my hope and my prediction that your modest, truly American manner will continue on through life and that while you of course, will not receive every day the same ovations that you have received the last 10 days, that these same characteristics mentioned by your friends here tonight will make you successful in all that you undertake to do. May God's richest blessings rest upon you and yours."

Address of Secretary Davis.

Secretary Davis, in his prepared speech also released in advance, said:

"Our dauntless Viking of the air, our unofficial Ambassador of international good-will, has come home. The lone eagle has flown back to the nest, after a flight that has fired the imagination of the whole world. All America, with hearts over-flowing with pride, has joined in welcoming Charles Lindbergh.

"Two months and 29 days were required by Columbus and the Santa Maria for the journey from the port of Palos through uncharted wastes of the sea to the island of San Salvador. Less than 33½ hours were consumed by Lindbergh and the Spirit of St. Louis in their flight through unexplored realms of the air from the New to the Old World. The month has become the day, the day the hour, in the amazingly rapid progress of civilization.

Tribute to Mrs. Lindbergh.

"Four hundred and thirty-five years ago a tiny craft of 200 tons crossed the broad Atlantic, changing the course of civilization as it had not been changed since Christianity had been brought to the world. Who can foretell the effect of this last epochal voyage? And as some of the credit for the discovery of the Americas should go to the woman of vision who made it possible, Queen Isabella of Spain, so we are happy to do honor to another woman, whose quiet fortitude has constantly sustained our adventurer, Lindbergh's mother.

"And we in St. Louis should also pay tribute tonight to our fellow citizens, whose vision, foresight and generosity made the flight possible.

"Distance is ever being shortened and time curtained. But courage has remained the same throughout the recorded history of mankind. If civilization is to advance, there must be the lone pioneer, who blazes the trails over which in years to come others will travel with safety and security because the pathfinder has robbed the unknown of its mystery and peril. There must be intrepid and daring leaders—men [illegible] whom the unknown is an element to be solved but never feared, whose souls are filled with the undaunted courage of the conqueror, who value progress above life itself.

"Refused to Sell Fame for Gold."

"Col. Lindbergh was actuated by the same daring pioneer spirit which prompted Capt. Lewis and Lieut. Clark, when, 122 years ago, they started from St. Louis on their perilous journey to explore the unknown reaches of the West: the same spirit which sustained Lieut. Pike when he left this city with the determination to find the headwaters of the Mississippi. Like them, he was not lured by hope of gain. To his enduring credit, he has steadfastly refused to sell his fame for gold. He has shown the world that romance is not dead—that the spirit of adventure, which has carved nations from the wilderness, still lives. And, with it all, he has shown that quality which marks true greatness, self-effacing modesty. His whole character, his every action, has been an inspiration and an example to the youth of the whole world. As all ages require and have found such pioneers, so our age has given us Charles Lindbergh.

"The blazed trail is not followed immediately by the highway. It is a far call from the tiny Santa Maria to the mammoth transatlantic liners. It will be some time before air routes connect America with Europe as do the sea routes of today, but when that day comes, as surely it will, the name of Charles Lindbergh will be linked inevitably with those who have traversed the unknown sea, who have fought their way through the wilderness to open new worlds to man, who have brought the elements under man's control—men who have dared, and in the daring, have won imperishable fame.

"Youth, Modesty, Courage."

A tribute was paid Lindbergh by Senator Hawes, who, in a brief speech, said:

"Today we celebrate youth, modesty, courage and achievement. It is not a time for the Mayor, Governor or Senator to talk. A few weeks ago Capt. or Col. Lindbergh or 'Slim,' whatever you may call him, went into the air. All St. Louis went with him. He landed in Paris. We haven't quite landed yet.

"This is not an occasion for words. The city spoke today in its flags, its handclasps, its sparkling eyes, tears and affection of people that stood on the sidewalks.

"He made no mistake when he went across. He is now back in St. Louis—the place where he was discovered. This is where we want to keep him. We want him to stay just as he is—a fine picture of clean and daring youth."

Spirit of American Citizenship.

"He has preserved a though of great import—that of individual accomplishment. 'Slim' has taugh St. Louis, Missouri, and the world, the fine individual effort of American citizenship. He carried from St. Louis to Paris the spirit of our great people and the individualism of American life."

Glowing tribute to the achievement of Lindbergh was paid by Mayor Miller. "He has done more for St. Louis than any other individual has in the city's history," the Mayor said.

An invitation to the famous aviator to take up the development of air transportation for St. Louis was extended by Major William Robertson, president of the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, contract air mail company for which Lindbergh formerly worked.

Others who felicitated the distinguished flyer-guest were Harry Hall Knight, Edward Hidden, W. Frank Carter and E. C. Thompson.

Competitive Confetti Tossing.

To spectators looking eastward from the brow of the hill at Seventeenth and Locust streets, it seemed a contest in confetti throwing was on continuously during the wait to see Lindbergh between the Missouri State Life and Shell buildings. Many agreed that the Shell Building won, as it seemed to be manned with dexterous persons at its roof, who tumbled orange and lemon colored bits to the street in seeming barrelfuls. When the orange-colored variety was loosened it fell in undulating waves like seeming flame.

Civic Banquet Caps Day Of Honors for Lindbergh

President's Cabinet who is to deliver to him on Art Hill today his commission as Colonel in the Army Reserve Corps to which the President of the United States promoted him by executive order.

A Blizzard of Paper.

For two hours, the acclamation continued over streets made white with paper that fell in a blizzard about Lindbergh's car while into his ears poured frenzied shouts and the din of sirens. Men, women and children cheered him more unanimously than any previous distinguished guest.

After the parade, Col. Lindbergh had luncheon with the Mayor, the Governor, the Secretary of War and a group of army and air mail pilots at the Coronado Hotel. Shortly thereafter he appeared before 35,000 persons at Sportsman's park where the World's Championship banner of the St. Louis Cardinals was being raised. There again his reception wah tumultuous.

He retreated after the third inning to the home of his host, Harry H. Knight, in St. Louis county, and until 8 o'clock in the evening was lost to the admiring throngs. At that hour he appeared at the Chase Hotel for the Civic dinner for which 1500 had assembled, including his air escort, the 21 pilots comprising the famous pursuit group of Selfridge Field at Detroit. About him again were State and City officials and again he heard the decorous handclapping of such occasions give way to more expressive cheering.

Above his head hung a large globe on which the cities of St. Louis, New York and Paris were represented. The trail he blazed between them was portrayed in a luminous pathway along which lights flashed in a flowing-ribbon effect. To the left of the chair of honorhonor was a Statue of Liberty, inset among green mats and on the right was a model of the Eiffel tower. Behind Liberty was the word "Welcome" and behind the Eiffel tower, the word "Home." Decorations of tables and rostrum were most elaborate with miniature airplanes with whirring propellers and other symbolic pieces.

Medallion for Mrs. Lindbergh.

Among the presentations of the evening which started the crowd into round applause were those in which Mrs. Lindbergh figured. She occupied a table with nine women to the right and below her son. Each speaker took occasion to refer to her. During one interlude a large bunch of roses was handed to her, and in another pause Chairman Walter Weisenberger presented to her a gold medallion commemorative of Lindbergh's flight and a replica of one which was formally presented to the pilot.

The speeches were all of an intensely personal cast and moved the guest of honor to red-faced embarrassment. He showed one of his rare moments of emotion when Harry Knight, Harold Bixby and Maj. W. B. Robertson, "buddies" at the Bridgeton Field, spoke of their pride in him. For a time it appeared as if Lindbergh might have to take a sly brush at an eyelash, but laughter lightened the overwarm eulogies every now and then and Lindbergh came up smiling.

An impressive moment in the ceremonies occrured when Chairman Weisenburger referred to the other member of the famous partnership of "We," a Wright whirlwind engine, similar to that which carried the "Spirit of St. Louis" across the ocean, had been set up behind Lindbergh's chair. It was unveiled to the accompaniment of cheers and whistles.

The informality of what started outto be a sedate affair came to the surface almost as soon as Lindbergh entered the dining room—an hour late. Solemn waiters conveyed to his table a tray of French pastry, a huge bonbon box and other sweets, and Lindbergh, noted at the flying field as a devotee of such edibles, grinned in acknowledgment. Another recognition of his prowess as a trencherman appeared in the sizeable steak placed before him. The other guests ate breast of chicken.

A group of pursuit pilots from Slefridge Field, young aristocrats of the army air service who pilot speedy fighting ships, attended the dinner in a body. They received a cheer and Lindbergh chuckled at the red-faced discomfiture of some of the youngsters.

Speaks Without Nervousness.

When ti came Lindbergh's time to speak he began with no outward sho wof nervousness. His voice is high-pitched and very clear, but his sentences came in staccato awkwardnes which the audience found charming. The statement which brought down the house was this: "I have been asked if I am glad to be back in St. Louis. I think that's a foolish question." He avoided any opportunity to break into flights of rhetoric, leaving that to more accustomed oraorical aviators. He spoke straightforwardly or aviation, a subject in which everyone conceded him certainty of his ground.

His "We" Delights Audience.

If St. Louis has been harried for four weeks to know how to adequately reward the youth who has carried the famous of the indivisible "We" around the world, it might find its cue in Lindbergh's own expression of hope at the dinner. In closing, he said:

"If we get together and devote a reasonable amount of money and a reasonable amount of thought we can make St. Louis the center of aviation in America."

His speech was brief, lasting not more than five minutes, terminating, as usual abruptly. He opened with a reference to "We" that delighted the audience and later developed a trace of rather grim humor in discussing his rather huried departure from Europe.

"My partner has been referred to as 'silent,'" he said. "I want to make a correction there. The only time I ever heard her silent is when she is asleep. That is one thing I am very thankful for."

"I have been asked," he continued, "if I was glad to come back to St. Louis. I think myself that is a foolish question.

"On my flight to Paris, I was looking forward to seeing Europe. As I passed over England and France, both countries looked very interesting. I would like to have looked around and seen some of the sights.

"After I landed at LeBourget, I was looking forward to going around Paris. After I spent a week there, Ambassador Herrick suggested I ought to go back to America. So exactly a week after I landed, I took off for Belgium. The Ambassador was not in Belgium but his attache was. He asked me when I was going back home. So I only stayed in Belguim one day.

"Then I went to London. The Ambassador in London said that he did not order me to go back, but there would be a battleship waiting in two or three days to take us back."

"So I left Europe and the British Isles. When I was in London I heard them speak of London and the British Isles.

"I left Cherbourg, France, on June 4 with the regret that I had been unable to see Europe as I expected to. A few days later going up the Potomac, I begun to feel I was not sorry I had taken the Ambassador's advice, and after arriving in St. Louis, I know that I am not.

What the Flight Demonstrated

"It took 14 hours and 5 minutes to go from San Diego to St. Louis; it took seven hours and 15 minutes to go from St. Louis to New York. That means that you are going to be able to get a plane in St. Louis in the evening and step out of it at any point in the United States the next morning.

"In this flight I made one hop from San Diego to St. Louis; then from St. Louis to New York; New York to Paris; Paris to Brussels; Brusels to London. The ship was taken back to Washington and I made a flight from Washington to New York and New York to St. Louis.

"It takes about 85 hours to cross the United States by tarin. The 'Spirit of St. Louis' has been in the air 79 hours and 20 minutes. That is in indication of the posibilities of aviation.

Opportunity for St. Louis.

"St. Louis is naturally situated advantageously in the United States to be the center of aviation. There are New York, Boston, Washington, Philadelphia and a dozen other cities to the east: Detroit, Mineapolis on the north; Dallas, San Antonio, New Orleans, Memphis on the south, and Kasas City on the west, so that we stil have a bit on the west to fly to and a great deal on the east.

Better Half Wins Argument.

An elderly couple right out of a Bill Nye story—the man seedy and chin-whiskered, the woman's coat and bonnet of forgotten vintage—paused at Spring and Lindell, peered uncertainly through the throngs awaiting yesterday's parade, and slowly turned back westward, past the Coronado, their voices reedy in argument. Apparently the lesser half wanted to see the parade, but——

"Get out o' here. I don't want to be around here," the better half was saying. The wind and the scattered preliminary warming up of 10,000 enthusiastic throats carried away a word or two, and then the reporter caught, "Them airplanes just come a-flyin'."

Policeman Disappoints Child.

A little girl standing in the Congress Hotel lobby looked up at a 200-pounder of a policeman and asked when Mr. Lindbergh was coming by. "Who?" asked the policeman. "Mr. Lindbergh," she replied. "Didn't know he was coming by," answered the cop. The little one was surprised, disappointed, and incredulous, in turn.

Lindbergh's Schedule for Final Day Of Home-Coming Celebration

9:30 a. m.—Arrives at Veterans' Hospital near Jefferson Barracks to visit disabled soldiers at his own request. Departs when ready and has rest of morning to self.

2:30 p. m.—Col. Lindbergh, his mother and hosts leave home of Harry Hall Knight, Warson and Litzsinger roads, St. Louis county; follow Warson and Clayton roads, Forest Park drives and Union boulevard to Congress Hotel.

3 p. m.—Arrive at Congress Hotel, where reception committees will join the party.

3:15 p. m.—Leave the hotel; follow Union boulevard, Lindell drive to De Baliviere avenue entrance to Forest Park, and Washington drive to Washington Bridge, near Art Hill. Only cars of Lindbergh and his mother will proceed from there over a service drive to the speakers' stand at the foot of Art Hill.

3:30 p. m. — Arrive at speakers' stand. The hill will accommodate about 100,000 spectators and amplifiers will be used. Edward Hidden will preside, and talks will be made by Mayor Miller, Gov. Baker, Secretary of War Davis, Senator Hawes, Harold M. Bixby, Harry H. Knight and Lindbergh. Afterward, Lindbergh and his mother will be escorted through a lane in the crowd to the St. Louis statue at the top of the hill, where the aviator, standing on a high platform, will place a wreath. The Lindberghs' cars will take them behind the Art Museum, to Government drive, to Clayton road and back to the Knight residence.

7:30 p. m.—Leave Knight residence for Municipal Theater, Forest Park, following Warson and Clayton roads and park drives.

8:10 p. m.—Arrive at north entrance to theater and escorted to boxes. In intermission after first act of "Princess Pat," the chorus will sing a special song and Lindbergh will make a brief talk from the stage. He may remain for second and third acts or depart earlier for Knight residence.

LINDBERGH REFUSES TO DISMANTLE PLANE

Machine Will Not Be Exhibited at Forest Park Unless Taken There Intact.

St. Louis may not see the "Spirit of St. Louis" at Forest Park today after all.

Plans for dismantling the staccatto-voiced member of the world-famous firm of "We" and transporting it to Forest Park late yesterday went astray when Col. Lindbergh firmly objected to having his monoplane taken apart again.

Perhaps he was thinking of his Washington experience. After the plane had been crated and shipped back to the United States on the cruiser Memphis, it developed sticking valves and had to remain at Washington while he flew to New York in an Army plane.

Lindbergh pparently wants to do some more flying in his silvery plane and he is taking no chances.

It had been planned to have the monoplane on exhibition all day today on a special platform at the foot of Art Hill, Forest Park. A strong wire fence was to protect it against souvenir hunters.

No Landing Field Near Park.

But unless some means are found to transfer it to Forest Park intact, it will remain in National Guard hangar at Lambert-St. Louis Flying Field, Bridgeton. At least that was the dictate of its owner yesterday afternoon. At the hangar last night, National Guardsmen watching it said there had been no change in orders.

There is no landing place near enough to Art Hill to permit the plane being flown there.

'FATHER OF AIR MAIL' OVERLOOKED BY COMMITTEES

Congressman Clyde Kelly of Pittsburg Sponsored Bill That Meant Much to Lindbergh.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—In all the celebrations for Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and those who made possible his flight from New York to Paris, one person who played an important part in the flyer's life has been overlooked apparently by the reception committees. He is Representative Clyde Kelly of Pittsburg, "the father of the Auxiliary Air mail service." It would not be remarkable if Col. Lindbergh himself had never heard of this particular Kelly.

Kelly, a member of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, introduced his first air mail contract bill in 1921. Hearings on the bill were held during several sessions but it was not until February, 1925, that Kelly was able to get a favorable vote on his proposal. Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania handled the bill in the Senate.

At that time Pennsylvanians, particularly Pittsburgers, were trying to establish an auxiliary air mail service between Pittsburg and St. Louis. The Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce was insistent that Congress should adopt the Kelly proposal, which, among other things, authorized the appropriation of a $1,000,000 revolving fund to start the services. The House appropriations committee, however, upon the suggestion of Budget Director Lord, reduced the initial appropriations to $250,000.

After the appropriation became available, the Postoffice department advertised for bids on seven auxiliary routes. In November it was announced that the Robertson Aircraft Corporation had been the successful bidder for the St. Louis-to-Chicago contract. Lindbergh was one of the first flyers Major William B. Robertson, president of the corporation, hired to start the St. Louis-Chicago service in the spring of 1926.

THOUSANDS POUR INTO CITY TO SEE COL. LINDBERGH

Crowd at Union Station as Morning Trains Arrive Is Largest in Memory of Old Employes.

300 EXTRA CARS ON REGULAR TRAINS

Motor Busses and Private Automobiles Bring Additional Throngs to Festivities—Hotels Crowded.

One of the largest crowds of visitors that ever assembled in St. Louis for a festive occasion came by railroad, motor bus and private automobile yesterday to join in the homecoming ceremonies for Col. Lindbergh.

All the railroads had special equipment to handle the heavy travel in this direction, more than 200 additional passenger cars being added to regular incoming trains.

Some of the railroads—the Missouri Pacific, Frisco and Wabash—had special trains, bringing visitors for the occasion from as far southwest as Texas and from Detroit on the north, while practically every city and town within a radius of 200 miles of St. Louis was represented on the great public reception committee of friends and admirers of the intrepid youth who spanned the Atlantic by air.

5000 From Kansas City.

The Wabash Railroad reported 2500 passengers from north, east and west. Many of these were from Kansas City, which is reported to have sent more than 5000 persons by rail, bus and private car to the reception. In the Kansas City contingent were Lou E. Holland, president of the Kansas City Chamber of Commerce, and George L. Goldman, president of the City Council, who came to invite Col. Lindbergh to Kansas City for the dedication there of the new Richards airport.

From points in Illinois and Missouri came additional thousands by bus and all kinds of conveyances, and these, together with those who came by rail, taxed hotel and rooming house accommodations to the utmost.

Gov. and Mrs. Baker and their daughter were here from Jefferson City, and there was a substantial gathering of other State and national officials and politicians to marvel at the big reception.

Record Crowd at Station.

From Detroit came Acting Mayor John C. Lodge, an uncle of Mrs. Lindbergh. He was accompanied by Harvey Campbell, secretary of the Detroit Board of Commerce, and Richard Reading, City Clerk. They bore an invitation to Col. Lindbergh to visit Detroit. This party last night were guests of former Mayor Kiel at the Municipal Opera.

The great throng of visitors began coming into the city Friday afternoon and night, and most of them planned to remain over to attend the reception in Forest Park this afternoon.

The crowd in Union Station at the peak hour of arriving trains yesterday morning was the largest in the memory of old station employes, the arrivals being augmented by thousands of friends who met them at the station.

COOLIDGE HOPEFUL OF ARMS PARLEY, HE TELLS EDITORS

In One of Few Impromptu Talks He Has Made as President Discusses Geneva Conference.

SETS FASHION WITH TEN-GALLON HAT

Members of His Party Blossom Out in Wild West Garb — Greets Lowden Backer in Black Hills.

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., June 18.—President Coolidge today focused attention on the conference which will assemble Monday in Geneva to consider further limitation of naval armament.

In one of the few informal addresses he has delivered since he took office the President expressed the hope that "our country and the other nations interested may receive great benefit from it," as he called attention to the conference in a brief talk to members of the National Editorial Association assembled on the lawn of the Summer White House.

An eagle soared over the steep, pine-covered hillsides, rising before the President, who stood bareheaded under a bright sun. As he talked to the group on the lawn the eagle circled lower directly over the tall pole, from which the national colors fluttered.

Previously Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge had shaken hands with the editors and their families, who had come into the Black Hills from their annual convention in Omaha. As the last of the long line filed past, the President stepped back for a broader view of his guests.

President Praises the West.

"I want to tell you," he began, "that it is a great pleasure to meet your association in this region. It is true Mrs. Coolidge and I have been here only two or three days, but from the hearty welcome extended to us we feel as if we lived here.

"I doubt if one went to any part of the country that he would find it more interesting and more inspiring than this. Other places are more developed industrially and have longer history, but none is more romantic. None has had such a wonderful development in so short a time as these regions bordering on the Rocky Mountains.

"I have never seen anything that excels the region here. When you are sending your dispatches back to your papers I want you to advertise this territory to the limit. I will do what I can to support you.

"It may seem that we are quite a way from home base. I am 1800 miles from the capital, yet I am in just as intimate touch as if I were in Baltimore, Cleveland or any other Eastern city.

"I am interested especially today in receiving reports on the conference on naval armament which will assemble in Geneva Monday. I am watching it closely. I hope our country and the other nations interested may receive great benefit from it.

"But it is not my plan to make an extended address. I want to tell you how glad Mrs. Coolidge and I are to greet you. We hope this convention has been beneficial and that you reach home safely."

Greets Lowden Supporter.

After posing for a picture with the group, the President asked for Gov. McMullen of Nebraska and Gov. Bulow of South Dakota, who were with the editors. Upon Mr. Coolidge's invitation, the Governors, with Mrs. Bulow and Mrs. McMullen, joined the President and Mrs. Coolidge for a few minutes on the front porch of the lodge.

Gov. McMullen, who has expressed favor toward Frank O. Lowden as a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination next year, later described his visit as "entirely social and certainly without any political discussion." Declining to discuss politics, Gov. McMullen did say that "Mr. Coolidge is a wonderful President and a good man."

While the Governors were on the porch, Mrs. Coolidge was attracted by a small boy playing about the tall flagpole on the lawn. Hurrying into the lodge, she got her hand motion picture camera, went down and asked him to pose. Three-year-old "Bobby" Evans obeyed his mother, Mrs. E. J. Evans of Mitchell, S. D., to "look pleasant," but he was rather confused as Mrs. Coolidge filmed him.

Ten-Gallon Hats the Vogue.

Earlier in the day the President donned a broad-brimmed "10-gallon" hat, such as the cowboys wear and fished for trout in company with E. W. Starling and Cecil Gidson. Although he puts on the big hat and rubber hip boots to go fishing, the President otherwise sticks to his regular business clothes and white starched collar.

With the stamp of presidential approval, 10-gallon hats, loud checked shirts and other Western wearing apparel are appearing on all sides among the members of President Coolidge's party. Practically the entire secret service corps is equipped from boots to broad brims and no small part of the newspaper crew as well.

BOOTLEGGER 'KING' TO PRISON; 'BROKE'

"Big Bill" Dwyer Owes $150,000 and Wishes He "Had Never Seen Whisky."

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Lo, the King is broke—not dead! William V. Dwyer, better known as "Big Bill" Dwyer, king of bootleggers and reputed to be several times a millionaire as the result of his operations in control of a $40,000,000 liquor smuggling syndicate, says he not only is dead broke, but that he owes $150,000.

In addition, the Federal Government claims Dwyer owes it two years of time to atone for his past misdeeds, and is on the point of collecting by sending Dwyer to Atlanta Penitentiary for a two-year term.

Dwyer and F. C. Cohron, known as the "pay-off-man" in his whisgy and gin running ring which had headquarters in England, France and Canadia, as well as New York, were both convicted of violating the prohibition laws.

Their arrest here in January, 1926 was hailed by police as signalizing the break-up of the greatest liquor smuggling ring uncovered since the advent of prohibition. Capital to a total of $40,000,000 was said to have been invested in the concern which operated its own ships for smuggling the liquor from overseas.

"People think I'm a millionaire," Dwyer said. "They say, 'There goes Bill Dwyer, the millionaire booze king,' when I pass. But the fact is, I'm worse than broke. I owe more than $150,000 today and I don't see how I can pay it as long as I've got to go to prison.

"I never was a millionaire. I just was the figurehead for a bunch of rich fellows who wanted to invest some money and who picked me out because they knew Bill Dwyer never went back on his word.

"No, my advice is to stay on the right side of the law. I spent years in daily fear of life, always expecting arrest, forever dealing with crooks and doublecrossers, and now look at me!

"I wish I had never seen a case of whisky!"

Ballet Girls As Nimble Then As Now, Says Dr. Jukov, 113, Visiting in Moscow.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. Copyright, 1927.

MOSCOW, June 18.—Though transportation has improved wonderfully, the girls in the State ballet are no nimbler than the ones he gazed at 100 years ago, when he first visited Moscow, in the opinion of Dr. Andrei Sergeivitch Jukov, the world's oldest newspaper reporter, now here on a pleasure trip.

Dr. Jukov was born in 1814. He retired from medical practice when he reached 100, but he still conducts a class in first aid and hygiene for the railroad detachment of the Ogaypayoo. He devotes most of his time to writing health hints for newspapers. He has an excellent memory and comments on the changes in conditions he has seen.

Having increased the population by 54 children and innumerable grandchildren, he feels he should have a Government pension.

Dr. Jukov does not look his age. He does not believe in spartan living.

MRS. LINDBERGH SEES MEDALS FOR FIRST TIME

Views Display of Son's Decorations and Relics of New York-Paris Flight.

Yesterday afternoon was the first time Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh saw the medals and other tokens of honor showered upon her son in Europe.

Spread out in a closely guarded jewel case, the collection of honors and relics of the New York-to-Paris flight insured for $100,000, was on display in Jaccard's jewelry store, Ninth and Locust streets.

The collection arrived in St. Louis from New York yesterday morning unheralded. While the store was closed for the parade, the honors and gifts were unpacked and prepared for display for one brief afternoon.

Calls to See Medals.

At 4:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon, while her son was occupied elsewhere, Mrs. Lindbergh arrived at the store, accompanied by her hostess, Mrs. Harry Hall Knight, and by Mrs. Thomas S. Dyeart.

When the word was passed that the mother of Col. Lindbergh was in the store, the throng around the display case grew so fast the place was jammed to the door with people pushing for a view of Mrs. Lindbergh and her son's decorations.

Several thousand persons saw the display before it was taken away at 6 o'clock and locked up in the vault of the Scruggs-Vandervoort-Barney Bank. The collection will remain there indefinitely. No plans, it was said, have been made for its further display.

Of Historic Value.

Some of the objects had high intrinsic value, others were of historic value. Among the latter were the maps Col. Lindbergh used on his transatlantic flight. There were the large gold key to the city of London and the tiny key with a good luck tag presented by the city of Paris.

Beside her son's medals and honors was a costly black beaded bag and a platinum wrist watch, the former a gift to the flyer's mother from Madam Citroen, wife of the French automobile manufacturer.

And there were other relics, Col. Lindbergh's passport, his international pilot's license, his stopwatch, an American Legion baton and an aviator's certificate in the National Aeronautical Association, and an honorary membership in the Federation of Foreign Wars.

List of Decorations

The medals included the following: The Hubbard Medal, highest award of the National Geographic Society; the British Air Force Cross, awarded by King George; Gold Medal of the Royal Aero Club of Belgium; the Cross of the Order of Leopold, presented by King Albert of Belgium; the Medal of the City of Paris; the great medal of gold of the French Geographical Society; the cross of the Legion of Honor of France (not on display, but in the collection); the gold plaque of honor of the Lafayette Flying Corps, presented by Marshal Foch; the Distinguished Flying Cross, highest United States award to flyers, presented by President Coolidge; the New York State medal for valor; the medal of the City of New York; the Cross of Honor of the United States Flag Association; the grand golden sport medal of the German Auto Club; the gold medal of the City of Brussels; Hospitaliers Sauveteurs French medal; and the medal of the Chamber of Commerce of Valenciennes.

Also in the collection were the London Daily Mail Cup and a gift from French aviators, an exquisitely cut diamond airplane.

A special force of private detectives guarded the collection.

LINDBERGH STAMP SALE OPENS WITH HEAVY DEMAND

$200,000 Supply in St. Louis Begins to Melt Away Rapidly When Postoffice Opens.

NOW ON SALE IN FOUR CITIES

Initial Printing Was 5,000,000 — Stamp Has Picture of 'Spirit of St. Louis' in Flight.

Souvenir hunters helped the Government do a rushing business yesterday when the new Lindbergh air mail stamp, commemorating the aviator's New York-to-Paris flight, was placed on sale at the main St. Louis Post Office and its branches.

Shortly after the doors of the Post Office building opened at 7 a. m., the $200,000 supply of stamps began to melt away. Stamp collectors were among the early customers.

At the rate the stamps were going, they soon will be exhausted, Assistant Postmaster Lottman predicted.

Simultaneous with the opening here, the sale of the new stamp began in Washington, Detroit and Little Falls, Minn., the other cities Col. Lindbergh has called "home" at one time or another.

Many Large Orders.

Post Office officials refused to disclose who was the first purchaser of the stamp here. Among the early buyers were two who had telegraphed advance orders, one for $65 worth and the other for $100. Out-of-town customers were frequent. Many buyers were taking the stamps in quantity.

The memorial stamp, of 10-cent denomination, is blue and attractive as a souvenir. It is about twice as long as the regular stamp. Across the top is printed "Lindbergh Air Mail" and at either end of the bottom the figure "10" with "Cents" between the figures. In the center is a portion of the map of the United States and Europe with the Atlantic intervening and a line tracing the flight from New York to Paris. The Spirit of St. Louis is represented in flight over the ocean.

5,000,000 Are Printed.

Of the supply sent here, $75,000 were kept in reserve and the rest distributed to the downtown Post Office, Eighth and Olive streets, and other branches for sale to the public.

The initial printing was 5,000,000. The first order at the Bureau of Engraving at Washington called for an issue of 15,000,000.

Quota of 100,000 Goes in an Hour at Detroit.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., June 18.—Detroit's initial quota of 100,000 of the special Lindbergh Airmail stamps lasted little more than an hour today. With the stamps going on sale at 7 a. m., purchasers began to form a line in front of the stamp windows of the postoffice as early as 2 a. m. John Kay, jeweler and stamp collector, obtained 1,000 of the stamps.

Two Small Boys Get First Stamps in Fergus Falls.

LITTLE FALLS, Minn., June 18.—An early morning race between two brothers from their home to the post office gave to 14-year-old Yale Forti , the honor of being the first purchaser of the Lindbergh air mail stamps in the old home town of the flyer.

Yale dashed into the post office at 6 a. m., and a few seconds later, Clarence, his 10-year-old brother, romped into second place at the stamp window. Two hours later, when Yale passed $1.50 through the window for 15 stamps, 100 persons were in line. More than 13,000 of the stamps were sold before noon.

The boys are sons of Dr. S. R. Fortier of Little Falls.

From as far away as Texas came requests for the stamps, while one Minneapolis firm telephoned an order for 5,000. The reply was "wait, see if we have enough."

Local residents purchased more than 4,000 during the morning, the remainder going out to interested purchasers in various parts of the country.

From R. H. M. Falls of Toledo, O., came a big order. He said he was particularly interested in Little Falls because he has two Little Falls at home, one eight and the other ten.

MEMPHIS PLANS GIFT TO SHIP

Will Give Silver Service to Vessel Bearing Lindbergh Home.

By the Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 18.—The city of Memphis, whose namesake, the U. S. S. Memphis, brought Col. Charles A. Lindbergh back from Europe, is going to show its appreciation by raising $6000 and presenting the vessel with a silver service and a stand of colors.

Mayor Payne announced the plans today and said Lindbergh Capt. Henry E. Lackey, former would be invited to come here and make the presentation in behalf of the city. It will be received by commander of the ship, and his successor, Capt. Ralph E. Pope.

MARY PICKFORD DEFENDANT IN $100,000 SUIT OVER FILM

Scenario Writer and Attorney Charge "Sparrows" Was an Infringement on Story.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—Mary Pickford is named defendant in a $100,000 damage suit on file in Federal Court today asking an accounting of profits of her last picture, "Sparrows," which the plaintiffs, Phillip Edgerton Hubbard, scenario writer, and James M. Sheridan, attorney, charge was an infringement on a story by Hubbard, entitled "The Cry of the Children."

Hubbard asserted that he, in collaboration with the late Harry Hyde Flanagan, whose estate is represented by the plaintiff attorney, wrote a scenario in 1919 dealing with "baby farm" problems.

The work was submitted to Miss Pickford, who rejected it because she did not like one of the characters, but the suit charges that the film production "Sparrows" is in reality "The Cry of the Children." The former play credited Winifred Dunn, an employe in the scenario reading department of Miss Pickford's studio, as "co-author."

While the suit asked only $100,000 damages, attorneys said millions might be involved through the demanded accounting. Besides Miss Pickford, the suit named as defendants the Mary Pickford Co., Winifred Dunn, seven persons named as "Does" and five named as "Roes."

IDENTIFIES WHITE MAN AS ONE OF ATTACKERS AT COFFEYVILLE

School Girl and Another First Told Officers Three Negroes Had Assaulted Them.

By the Associated Press.

INDEPENDENCE, Kan., June 18.—Ira Kennedy, Wichita, Kan., motor car salesman, was identified in court today by Miss Margaret Akers, high school girl, as one of three white men who attacked her and Miss Julia Mooney on the night of March 17 at Coffeyville, Kan.

The two girls first told authorities they had been assaulted by three Negroes, leading to a race riot the night of March 18 at Coffeyville in which four were wounded and an assault by a white mob on the city jail in an attempt to lynch a Negro suspect who had been arrested. State troops restored order.

Miss Akers testified in the preliminary hearing of Kennedy, who formerly lived at Coffeyville, on a statutory charge and of Miss Mooney on a charge of being an accessory before the fact.

The witness said Miss Mooney and Miss Mooney's mother urged her to tell the story about being attacked by Negroes. She added that she had feared Kennedy might kill her if she named him.

The attack took place in a house in Coffeyville which Kennedy had occupied. Miss Mooney roomed with Kennedy and his wife, who have three children. Miss Akers was a close friend of Miss Mooney and often spent the night with her. The girls declared they were alone in the house when three men entered late in the dark and assaulted them.

Miss Mooney is charged with having conspired with the assailants. Kennedy has asserted he was in Wichita on the night of the assault.

POPE TO GRANT $4000 YEARLY TO CARDINALS LIVING IN ROME

Prelates Have Been Struggling for Years to Subsist on About $1000 Annually.

ROME, June 18.—Cardinals residing in Rome have been struggling for years to live on their stipends of only a little more than $1000 yearly, but henceforth will have $4000 by grant of Pope Pius XI. He is opening his purse strings to the widest extent on behalf of elements connected with the Holy See. Prelates at the Vatican already have had an increase, while canons at St. Peter's, many of whom are drawing pre-war stipends, will be relieved of their uncomfortable positions.

This means millions of dollars of extra expense for the Pope's private budget.

Seminary priests around Rome are getting grants totaling nearly $2,000,000, which is urgently needed to bring their standards up to modern intellectual requirements. The Czecho-Slovak College at Rome, which suffered from political effects of the war, is getting $500,000.

The Oriental Institute, as well as poorer colleges, will take on new life from the Pope's beneficence. During his five years in the Vatican, Pope Pius XI has given them $2,000,000.

POSTMASTER SHORT $48,000

Retiring Hialeah (Fla.) Official Sought by Federal Officers.

By the Associated Press.

MIAMI, Fla., June 18.—Louis F. Randall, Postmaster at Hialeah, Fla., until last Monday, was sought on Federal warrants, charging embezzlement of approximately $48,000 in postal funds during his term of office.

The warrants were sworn out before a United States Commissioner, coincident with announcement that Miss A. E. McKenzie had been inducted into office as Postmistress of Hialeah.

Three Flee From Oklahoma Jail.

By the Associated Press.

VINETA, Ok., June 18.—Knocking Jailer J. L. Disney in the head with an alarm clock and overpowering him, three alleged bank robbers early today broke from the Craig County jail, leaped into an automobile driven by Frank Russell and forced him to drive them to the town of Bernice, 18 miles away. The escaped men are charged with robbing the Bluejacket, Ok., State Bank of $1200 April 28. They are C. H. Hill, Eddie Clanton and R. S. Taylor.

BYRD SETS TUESDAY FOR POSSIBLE START

Stormy Area Near Ireland Precludes Earlier Take-off of "America" for Paris.

By Leased Wire From New York World to Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18. — The giant three-motored monoplane "America" will not take off for Europe until Tuesday morning at the earliest, Commander Richard E. Byrd announced this afternoon. He had just completed a study of weather charts which showed a stormy area still remaining in the Atlantic near Ireland.

"It would be foolish to head into a dangerous situation such as exists near Ireland," said Commander Byrd. "I am certain we will not hop Sunday and feel almost as sure it will not be safe to go Monday. Tuesday may be the day."

Commander Byrd expects to keep the world in constant touch with him when he flies to Paris.

Hourly Reports by Radio.

Messages on the America's progress will be sent hourly, all the way across the Atlantic, to her hangar here, where a radio receiving set has been installed. The airplane also is equipped with an automatic communication set, through which the America's call letters will be sent out constantly after she takes the air from Roosevelt Field.

When the America has passed out of direct communication with her hangar, her radio messages will be sent to all ships at sea, to be relayed here.

The plane is equipped with a radio set whose messages can be picked up 500 miles away in daytime and if conditions are favorable, from 1000 to 2000 miles away at night.

The plane's official designation on the license issued by the Department of Commerce at Washington is the N X 266.

The antenna of the America's radio set consists of a strand of wire, with a "bob" weight on the end of it. This wire dangles from the plane, being let out to a length of about 450 feet.

Bennett Visits Airport.

Commander Byrd spent a considerable part of a busy day with Floyd Bennett, his aid in the North Pole flight, who was to have gone with the "America," but who was severely injured in a crash of the monoplane at Peterboro (N. J.) airport two months ago, and is still a patient in St. Vincent's hospital, Manhattan. Bennett, accompanied by his physician and a nurse, and with his right leg in a steel cast, visited Roosevelt Field today. Commander Byrd pointed out changes and improvements made on the monoplane since Bennett was a member of the expedition.

Speculation as to the identity of the fourth man in the expedition, which now includes Commander Byrd, Lieut George O. Noville and Bert Ocosta, continued to involve the name of Lieut. Bernt Balchen, former Norwegian naval officer, protege of Commander Byrd, who helped him considerably on the North Pole flight. He flew over the Arctic wastes in search of Capt. Roald Amundsen when the explorer was missing in 1925.

Lieut. Balchen received his first citizenship papers today at the naturalization bureau in Manhattan.

The word "Peace," with an olive branch behind it, was painted on both sides of the "America" today while the plane lay in the hangar with all preparations made for the flight except the taking aboard of fuel.

A possible change in the take-off time of the America was discussed today. It was said that if weather conditions are good, a midnight hop-off might be decided upon.

Advantages of Earlier Start.

It was pointed out that a midnight take-off would bring the "America" into Paris in daylight and not at night, as in the case of Col. Lindbergh, who left Roosevelt Field at 7:51 o'clock in the morning.

"Lighthouses would show the course to Newfoundland, and at dawn, the "America" would leave land behind and head out over the sea.

All that remains to be done to the "America" is to load her with her 1,300 gallons of gasoline, 1,200 in the tanks and 100 more stowed away in case of emergencies.

MEMBER OF BYRD'S CREW TO TAKE MOTION PICTURES OF TRANS-ATLANTIC FLIGHT

By the Associated Press.

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 18.

THE first motion picture record of a transatlantic flight will be made from Commander Byrd's monoplane, America.

Lieut. George O. Noville, radio expert of the crew, will take two automatic cameras, he said today. Under favorable conditions he expects to make pictures of Commander Byrd and Bert Acosta guiding the plane, of the last North American land gliding away underneath, of ships and icebergs, and the approach of the first land on the other side.

Lieut. Noville has been practicing with the two cameras, one a small hand machine and the other larger.

JOHN COOLIDGE FAILS TO HEAR TRIBUTE PAID TO HIS FATHER

Leaves Meeting Before Gov. Trumbull Makes Speech Urging President's Re-Election.

By the Associated Press.

PLAINVILLE, Conn., June 18.—John Coolidge who attended an outing of the Women's Republican Association at Avon today with Gov. and Mrs. John Trumbull and their daughter, Florence, missed a tribute paid by the Governor to his father, because he left the meeting with Miss Trumbull before the Governor rose to speak.

Gov. Trumbull denounced as "bunk" the "third term bugaboo," and said he hoped President Coolidge would be re-elected.

John Coolidge who had been the house guest of Miss Trumbull for several days returned to Amherst.

PARIS GUIDE ATTACKS WOMAN

State Department Investigates Injury of Federal Worker.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—With only meager information, State Department officials are investigating an attack on an American woman, Miss Mary Stewart of Washington, by her guide while visiting an American war cemetery near Paris. Ambassador Herrick, it was said today, had asked the Paris police to look into the case. Word of the attack has been in the hands of the State Department several weeks, but it was thought best not to make it public until several attendant circumstances had been cleared up.

Miss Stewart, who went to Europe in the spring on an official mission as director of the Junior Division of the Federal Employment Service, is said to have been waylaid by her guide, who, in an attempt to steal her purse and other valuables, knocked her down and inflicted several injuries.

FISHING BY TELEPHONE

Modern Izaak Walton Got Ring When Trout Nibbled.

By the Associated Press.

NELSON, B. C., June 18.—Fishing by telephone is the latest invention for the follower of Izaak Walton who likes his ease. A resident on the shores of Kootenay Lake rigged up a wire between his fishing pole and a telephone circuit which caused a bell to ring in his house when a trout nibbled at his bait. A telephone company lineman discovered the device and disconnected it.

Mis-Awarding Contracts Charged.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Leslie Small, son of Gov. Len Small and William F. Mulvihill, state superintendent of waterways, must answer charges of improperly awarding contracts, a decision in the Circuit Court here ruled today. The case was instituted by T. L. Warner, a Chicago contractor, who alleged that he was not awarded a state contract although he was the lowest bidder. He charged that Mulvihill recommended another contratcor to Small as favoritism.

MISSING ILLINOIS BANKER KILLS SELF

West Frankfort Cashier Takes Life in Vacant House—Worried Over Abduction.

By the Associated Press.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., June 18. — W. R. Todd, 55-year-old World War veteran and cashier of the First National Bank here, died here early today from a bullet wound in his head which police believe was self-inflicted.

Todd, missing since 8 a. m. Thursday, was found wounded and unconscious here last night in the basement of a vacant house. Beside him lay an automatic pistol with one shot fired.

Todd's affairs at the bank were in good condition, according to Sam W. Due, National bank examiner, who today characterized Todd as an exacting official.

Relatives advanced a theory that Todd's mind had become deranged from worry over the abduction and robbery to which he was subjected Feb. 18. His home life and personal affairs were said to be normal.

Todd was seen to enter the vacant building Thursday morning.

He was president of the Franklin County Bankers' Association last year and at the time of his death was president of the Lions' Club here. He had been connected with the bank the last 12 years.

Todd leaves a widow and three children. The funeral will be Sunday afternoon in West Frankfort.

As chairman of the Franklin County Bankers' Association, Todd recently was presented a certificate recognizing his organization as the most efficient in the State last year and having the closest to the standards prescribed by the association.

Todd directed the organization of the local town guard unit and the establishment of the County Credit Bureau.

Police were informed the banker may have been threatened and that fear caused him to kill himself.

In the kidnaping last February, three robbers waylaid Todd near the bank, took him several miles into the country, robbed him and abandoned their victim.

Todd was never able to throw any light on the incident. He was known to have worried considerably over the abduction.

Bar on Autos at U. of Michigan.

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., June 18.—A bar on the use of automobiles by students in the University of Michigan will become effective at the beginning of the school term Sept. 19. Decision to put the rule in effect was made at the annual meeting of the Board of Regents. A resolution adopted by the board prohibits the use of automobiles except in unusual cases, when the dean of students may grant the right.

Congressman Boies Ill.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., June 18.—Congressman W. D. Boies of the Eleventh Iowa District is in the Methodist Hospital here suffering from a general breakdown of health. Physicians report his condition as favorable.

Law Requires That They Have Six Years' Executive Experience.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Several prohibition administrators probably will be forced to resign by a requirement of the law reorganizing the enforcement service which requires six years' executive experience for those holding the posts, Prohibition Commissioner Doran said today. His statement was prompted by the resignation of Resco Harper, administrator for Northern and Western New York, who asserted the law would "knock out all but three administrators now in the service."

Doran said "only a few men" would be affected. The situation will be discussed at a conference to be held here July 11.

ST. LOUIS-CHICAGO BARGE SERVICE IN SPRING EXPECTED

Standard Unit Navigation Co. to Inaugurate Service, Carl J. Baer Announces.

WILL FORM LAKES-TO-GULF CONNECTION

Terminal Site Is Secured in Chicago — Facilities Will Be Made Available to All Shippers.

A barge line between St. Louis and Chicago, giving shippers of these cities and along the route the advantage of low water rates, will be in operation the first part of next year, it was announced yesterday by Carl J. Baer, president of the Standard Unit Navigation Co., which will serve as the carrier.

Baer's announcement followed the receipt of dispatches here from Chicago, which told of the acquisition of a desirable site for terminal facilities in Chicago by the Illinois Waterway Barge and Dock Co. A large terminal will be built.

"Caterpillar" Towboats.

The boats of the Standard company are operated by a "caterpillar" type of propulsion, which permits them to pull barges in streams only four feet deep, Baer said. Negotiations to establish the barge line between here and Chicago were undertaken last fall, when one of the "caterpillar" type boats, pulling two barges, was taken up the Illinois River to Chicago and thence around the city in canals which have not been used for commercial navigation for 25 years, because of their shallowness, according to Baer.

"When the Chicago-St. Louis barge line is placed in operation it will in reality form a lakes-to-the-Gulf method of water transportation, although the formal program of deepening channels and straightening portions of streams for the larger steamers now under way, will not reach completion for several years," Baer said. "Our line will serve as a feeder to the Government barge lines, it is expected, and the Government barges will carry shipments up and down the Mississippi River to their destinations.

Same as Federal Rates.

"The advantages to shippers of St. Louis and Chicago and towns between those points on the streams we will navigate are obvious, our rates, already determined on, to be the same as Government barge line rates, or an average of 20 per cent less than rail rates."

Richard Fitzgerald, president of the Chicago company, said the new terminal will be available to all shippers and all barge and boat lines, without discrimination, on the payment of dockage fees. The making of these fees will be under jurisdiction of the Illinois Commerce Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

PRESIDENT APPEARS SURE OF FIRST STATE IN NEXT PRIMARY

New Hampshire Almost Gave Coolidge Two to One Vote in 1924 Election.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Barring a political cyclone or his withdrawal from the race, which politicians consider equally remote, President Coolidge appears to be sure of the psychological advantage of carrying the first presidential primary of 1928.

Simon Michelet, local lawyer and political statistician, has just compiled the list of primary dates, showing that New Hampshire comes first on March 6. New Hampshire failed to give Coolidge a two to one vote in the election of 1924 but not by far, and the nearest approach to a dissenting voice for his 1928 candidacy to emerge from the Granite State was Senator George Moses' prophecy that Coolidge would not run again.

North Dakota comes next, on April 2, and whether Coolidge's summer proximity to that land of G. O. P. revolt will win the rebels back has yet to be seen. The others in the list of 17 presidential primary dates next year are:

April 2, Michigan; April 3, Wisconsin; April 10, Illinois and Nebraska; April 24, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio; May 1, California; May 7, Maryland; May 8, Indiana; May 15, New Jersey; May 18, Oregon; May 22, South Dakota; May 29, West Virginia; June 5, Florida.

27,650,267 MOTOR CARS

United States Has 22,137,334, Eighty Percent of Total.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—A world census of automobiles, made public by the Commerce Department today, indicated that on Jan. 1, 1927, there were 27,650,267 automobiles, trucks and busses in operation all over the globe. This was an increase of 3,176,638 over Jan. 1, 1926.

The United States had in operation 80 per cent of the total, or 22,137,334 [illegible] The United Kingdom was second with 1,023,651. France, third, with 891,000, and Canada fourth, with 826,918. Other countries with large numbers were in the order named: Australia, 465,615; Germany, 319,000; Argentina, 222,610; Italy, 138,177; Spain, 135,000, and New Zealand, 123,224.

HANNIBAL CUTS POWER RATES

Municipally Operated Plants' Reductions Average 12½ Per Cent.

HANNIBAL, Mo., June 18.—Announcement was made today by the Board of Public Works, which operates Hannibal's municipally owned electric light and water plants, of reductions averaging 12½ per cent for light users and 10 per cent for power. The Missouri Public Service Commission has been requested to authorize the new rates, effective July 1.

A saving of approximately $50,000 annually is estimated to result from the change. Hannibal has claimed the lowest rates in the Middle West. The base light rate will be 7 cents a kilowatt, with a discount of from 10 to 16⅔ per cent, with power rates considerably lower.

Sic itur ad astra

For those who entered the World War intent upon making future wars impossible, Charles Lindbergh has performed a service immeasurable in dollars and indescribable in words.

Sane thinking, sane living, and sane acts have again triumphed over fantastic philosophies, bitter jealousies and scornful interpretations of the Ten Commandments.

To all creeds, to all peoples, his achievement has carried this simple message: There can be little lasting success, no true happiness, unless we serve not alone for personal ends, but also for the betterment of humanity and a sympathetic understanding of our fellow men.

Parade '100 Per Cent Wonderful'

a smile and a salute. The smile was only momentary, but the movie man had caught it and was jubilant.

Another movie car was hovering around Mrs. Lindbergh's car. She not only smiled but waved. The onlookers knew by her smile why she was appraised in the East as "charming."

Kingshighway had been reached and there the first great volume of noise arose, for the Chase Hotel lawns were massed and the escorting motorcycle police were beginning to have work. The crowd was pressing into the street. Ahead at Vandeventer avenue the street was filled from curb to curb but the crowd melted back to each side under the charge of the police. The schedule speed to that point was 12 miles an hour. It was not being made. The crowd pressed out too eagerly.

Flanking the street at Vandeventer avenue were two lines of Boy Scouts who took up the escort of Lindbergh to the reviewing stand. It was a platform, extended on either side with boxes and bleacher seats and filled to a capacity of 15,000.

Becomes Scout Member.

It had been intended to have Lindbergh alight there for the ceremony of being declared a member of the oldest Boy Scout troup in St. Louis. But progress was being slowed by the crowds and the formality was completed by three Scouts who advanced to Lindbergh's car. Murray Cabell Jr., leader of Flying Eagle patrol—could name have been more appropriate — presented Lindbergh with a certificate of membership in Troop No. 2.

"I do certainly appreciate being a member of your troop," Lindbergh told him.

Then Roland Homer Jr. gave Lindbergh the red arm band of the troop and received Lindbergh's "I thank you."

Joseph Ehrhardt was next. He had a knife engraved "To Scout Lindy."

"I hope you don't cut yourself," he said gravely, and Lindbergh replied as gravely: "I hope so." Meanwhile other Scouts were handing Mrs. Lindbergh a bouquet.

Paper Blizzard Rages.

Grand boulevard passed, the paper blizzard set in and thereafter it raged. One of Lindbergh's few smiles was indulged in when a whole wad of paper fell into the Mayor's lap. Intermittently aerial bombs were exploded. They had signalled the start of the parade and heralded its coming at every few blocks. One of the bombs exploded uncomfortably close to one of the blimps and it hurriedly poked up its nose to get out of range.

Homing pigeons were released every few blocks from boxes carried on the rear of one of the automobiles in the parade. The poor birds were literally paralyzed by the detonation of sound. One stood in the street and nearly got under the hoofs of the horses. Another flew straight against the side of a building and clung to a precarious perch. Others sought the air above in graceful spirals.

An airplane appeared above. The parade had become too slow for the blimps and they were loafing to and fro across the course of the procession. A small boy stood with a drum and beat it valiantly. "Slim." "Slim." "Slim." he called prayerfully, but "Slim" couldn't hear.

Legion Banners in Line.

Now the parade is halted at Twentieth street. Its complexion changes. Thirty-six pairs of flags fall in. Thirty-six American flags and the banners of 36 American Legion posts. Next headquarters company of the Sixth Infantry, mounted, and what a perspiring time was in store for them in pressing the crowds back.

Next an interesting unit—Lindbergh's own outfit, the 110th Observation Squadron of the Missouri National Guard. Buddies of the hero, every one—many of whom Lindbergh had taught to fly. They form a protecting hollow square on the four sides of Lindbergh's car. Maj. C. R. Wassal is commanding. When Lindbergh departed, he was a captain in the outfit. Now he has been made a Colonel but he has said he has no intention of displacing his old commander.

A great flock of toy balloons, 100 or more, are released over Lindbergh's head. They have been weighted just sufficiently to keep them hanging in the air and they make a glowing bit of color. The paper descends in torrents, but it is paper that laboriously has been torn into small bits. There are no dangerous, promiscuous dumpings such as have occurred in previous like celebrations.

At Twelfth street, Washington avenue closes up with humanity. For the next eight blocks the troopers are compelled to ride a way for Lindbergh's car. The horses' flanks press against women and children. The crowd screams with alarm, but gives way. The horses' hoofs come inches close to their shins.

Louder and louder grows the cheering, particularly at street intersections. There motor trucks are swarming with people. Every window of every building is crowded with heads. There seems none so unresponsive that he cannot emit at least one cheer, however feeble.

It seemed that most of St. Louis had already seen Lindbergh, but the crowd from building line to as far into the street as the police will permit, is an unbroken mass. Girls from a window above a flower store begin to pelt Lindbergh with roses—dozens of them. Most of them fall short of the car and Lindbergh's attention is not attracted. The Mayor yells in his ear and points. Lindbergh gives a fractional look and comes back to eyes front.

Crowd Breaks Police Lines.

The troopers are finding it necessary to get rough. The crowd simply will not fall back. They have broken the police lines and the patrolmen stand among the people looking totally helpless and a bit foolish. Not until the turn at Fourth street is reached is the crowd in control again. The regulars from Jefferson Barracks are stationed at the turn and they held back the rush.

The turn from Fourth street is made with ease—more regulars to hold the line there, but in Olive street it again becomes necessary for the horses to cut the way.

Beautiful Olive Canyon.

The Olive street canyon is a beautiful sight. As far as the eye can see it is a-flutter with paper and Lindbergh turns his eyes up to the sight. Here, too, it is broken paper that flutters and rides the air buoyantly. Few long streamers, just a swirling mass of color. No ticker tape to spoil the effect.

Twelfth street is reached safely and passed and then the crowd thins. Lindbergh visibly relaxes. The lines of his face soften. The movie men are quick to note and swarm about the car. He laughs—actually laughs—and climbs upon the back of the tonneau of his car. But then he suddenly perceives the crowd and slides back down into the tonneau and seems abashed at his own temerity.

The final burst, at Grand boulevard, a mob at the Coronado, and it ends.

SCROLL IN GOLD BOX GIVEN TO LINDBERGH

Presentation of Official Token of Recognition for Flight Made at Banquet.

As the official token of recognition of his achievement, Col. Lindbergh was presented with an illuminated proclamation inclosed in a heavy solid gold box, by the Mayor, at the formal banquet in his honor at Hotel Chase last night.

The presentation was made by Edward Hidden, chairman of the Reception Committee. The gift was purchased by the committee from the public fund.

Several hundred pennyweights of gold were used in manufacture of the box, but the exact content was not computed, nor was the cost made known. The box is about six inches long, four inches wide and three inches high. The hinged top is convex, and on its surface is a map of that part of the world between St. Louis and Paris, over which Lindbergh flew, with the one stop at New York.

Standing out on this map are the statue of St. Louis here, the Statue of Liberty and Eiffel Tower. A line indicates the course of the flight and above it in midocean is a likeness of the plane, "Spirit of St. Louis." While most of the box is of 14-karat yellow gold, the plane is of 18-karat white gold.

Raised letters on the front of the box give the flyer's name and inscribed on either end is the legend of his Paris flight, giving the dates and the mileage, which at the time was a record for a nonstop voyage.

Lining of the box is blue silk velvet. The proclamation is an illuminated scroll on parchment, in several colors. A reproduction of it was published in Friday's Post-Dispatch.

Text of the document follows:

"The City of St. Louis and all her people unite in doing honor to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh on the occasion of his return to his home city after the courageous nonstop aerial flight (May 20-21, 1927) from New York City to Paris, France, accomplished by him alone with his aeroplane, the 'Spirit of St. Louis.

"And they extend to him a most cordial welcome home in recognition of both his splendid achievement and also in his high personal qualities, which have won for him the acclaim of the civilized world.

"And during the welcome home celebration his plane, the 'Spirit of St. Louis,' rests enshrined in Forest Park for the devoted view of the people.

"VICTOR J. MILLER,
"Mayor of St. Louis..
"St. Louis, June 18, 1927."

The box and the scroll were made by a St. Louis jewelry firm, Jaccard's.

Sidelights on Lindbergh's Home-Coming

Crowds Drown Out Bell.

The incessant pealing of a large bell at Tenth and Washington could be heard easily over the noise made by the huge crowd which gathered in that vicinity an hour before the parade passed. But with the approach of the procession the deafening roar of the crowd drowned out the best efforts of the bell ringer.

Spectators Break Line.

Police, stationed a dozen to a block, kept the crowd fairly well in tow until 10:30 a. m., when it swarmed into the street at Eighth and Washington and moved westward, increasing all the time. The crowd divided hastily at Twelfth and Washington to permit a salvage corps truck, clanging its bell and traveling at high speed, to go north.

Motor Cops Clean Way.

In order to get the crowd sufficiently out of the street to permit the parade to pass, six motorcycle policemen rode ahead, running over the toes of persons who either were unable to move back because of the jam to the rear or didn't want to give up their points of vantage, regardless of the consequences. The prancing horses of the mounted policemen served better to push back the crowd than anything else and as soon as they passed, hundreds of excited spectators, principally boys and girls, poured into the street and tagged along behind the last machine in the parade.

Almost Reached Him.

A youth and a girl, attired in sailor's outfit, eluded the police and military escort and were about to climb upon the running board of the machine carrying Col. Lindbergh and Mayor Miller when they were spied by a "hard boiled" army sergeant. He pushed them back into the crowd in a jiffy, much to their disappointment.

Gas Fumes Overcome Police.

Gas fumes from the exhaust pipes of their motor cycles overcame Sergt. August La Tour and Motor Cycle Policemen Edward Schnittker and Edgar Schnelting as the parade reached the Coronado Hotel, its ending point. La Tour and Schnittker were revived without difficulty, but Schnelting was removed to city hospital. The three men were a part of Col. Lindbergh's motor cycle escort.

Painters Occupy Vantage Point.

Several painters working on the roof of a Lindell boulevard hotel were envied their vantage points by everyone who saw them. Some of them leaned perilously over the cornice and before the parade passed were the center of attraction.

Women Among Hawkers.

Women hawkers were quite as persistent as their male compatriots. Two of them walked up and down Lindell vowing and declaring at the top of their voices, "Here's the plane 'Lindy' used." And that which they exhibited as the Colonel's plane was neither fish nor fowl. It was a cigar shaped balloon bag with some pasteboard wings on it. It couldn't fool anyone.

Horse Steps on Woman's Foot.

The mounted police preceding Lindbergh's auto, skirted the crowd to prevent spectators from rushing into the street as the auto passed. One of the horses trampled the left foot of Mrs. Lydia Tucker, 71 years old, 1114 North Fourteenth street, at Eleventh street and Washington avenue. She was taken to City Hospital for treatment.

Oscar Keeler, Golf Writer, Weds.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Oscar Bane Keeler of Atlanta, Ga., nationally known golf writer, was married in the Municipal building today to Eleanor McIntosh McAuliffe, also of Atlanta, and publisher of the South Golf magazine. Keeler has followed the career of Bobby Jones so assiduously that he is called "Bobby Jones' Boswell." The bride and bridegroom said they planned to sail on the Aquitania Tuesday for two months in Europe. Mrs. McAuliffe was divorced from L. P. McAuliffe in Atlanta seven years ago, and Keeler was divorced from Annie M. Feald Keeler three years ago.

VIENNA PLANNING BIG RECEPTION FOR U. S. FLYERS TODAY

Thousands Spend Night at Air Field to Get Good Places—Trains Every 10 Minutes.

OFFICIALS TO RECEIVE TRANS-OCEAN PILOTS

Chamberlin and Levine to Make European Tour in Bellanca Plane — Munich Their First Stop.

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, June 18.—Most of the population of Austria seems to be gathering here for the scheduled visit of Clarence D. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine tomorrow.

Many thousands are spending the night at Aspern Airfield to get good positions, and trains will arrive every 10 minutes tomorrow from various parts of Austria.

Many flyers from Hungary and Jugo-Slavia plan to come by plane to join in the air parade of the transatlantic flyers and their aerial escort of German and Austrian aviators.

Austrians are particularly anxious to see Mrs. Chamberlin and Mrs. Levine, and an extensive entertainment program has been planned on the supposition that they will be here.

Most of the officials of the Austrian Government will receive the American flyers on the landing field, with the diplomatic corps as support. The aviators will be guests of the Government at its suite in the Imperial Hotel. On Monday they will be received by Chancellor Seipel, then by President Hainisch, and in the evening by Mayor Seitz. On Tuesday they will be guests of the American legation. A long series of other functions will be sandwiched in between.

Chamberlin Tests Plane, Finds It All Right.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—Clarence D. Chamberlin, after his first real rest since reaching Europe, this afternoon gave the Bellanca plane Columbia a short tryout over Empelhofer Field and found the motor in perfect order.

He then invited Fraulein Thea Rasche, Germany's only licensed woman pilot, to go up with him for a flight over Berlin, in the course of which she took the controls of the transatlantic plane and piloted it for a short time. Yesterday Charles A. Levine, Chamberlin's companion on the transatlantic flight, was a passenger in Fraulein Rasche's plane en route from Madgeburg to Berlin.

The American aviators and their wives plan to leave for Munich at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning to begin their visit to various European cities.

BRITISH FOREIGN SECRETARY CALMS GERMAN BITTERNESS

Urges Stresemann to Be Patient Over Rhineland and Promises to Speak to French.

GENEVA, June 18.—Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, today met Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany, urging him to exercise patience in connection with the problem of the allied occupation of the Rhineland.

It is understood that Sir Austen promised to exert his good offices with the French. After the meeting German circles reflected less bitterness at their failure during the recent meeting of the Council of the League of Nations to obtain a reduction.

Foreign Minister Zaleski of Poland expressed confidence again that relations between Soviet Russia and Poland, disturbed by the recent assassination of the soviet Minister at Warsaw, would not be endangered seriously. The prevailing opinion in Geneva, however, is that the Russian problem still continues delicate.

Friendly representations by the great Powers have been made at Tirana and Belgrade for settlement of the dispute between Albania and Jugo-Slavia. Political circles here believe that the two nations will soon resume diplomatic relations.

Gen. H. O. Cornwall to Wed.

By the Associated Press.

DALLAS, June 18.—Three years ago at the United Confederate Veterans' reunion in Birmingham, Ala., Gen. H. O. Cornwall, now commander of the Texas division of the U. V. C., lay critically ill. He was administered to by Mrs. Sarah Walker, widow of a Confederate veteran, and it was through her tender nursing that the distinguished veteran survived. Tomorrow they will be married at the Dallas County Courthouse. The bridesmaids and flower girls will be attired in typical antebellum costumes. Gen. Cornwall is 81 years old and his bride-to-be is 75.

Chicago Girl Killed by Taxicab.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Miss Edna Julitz of Chicago was killed and 12 others, all Chicagoans, slightly injured when a taxicab crashed into a crowd waiting to board a street car here tonight. The cab driver, Stuart Mulholland, said the car's brakes failed to function.

25 PLANES TO ENTER FORD TROPHY AIR TOUR

Trip of 4000 Miles, to Begin June 27, Has 20 Entries Enrolled.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., Jun 18.—At least 25 airplanes of types varying from the single-seated 1-passenger to the multi-motored 10-passenger machine and possibly including the "Pride of San Diego," sister ship of the plane Col. Charles A. Lindbergh piloted from New York to Paris, are expected to participate in the National air tour, which starts here June 27.

The tour of 4000 miles will take the participants to the Atlantic Coast, thence to Texas and back to Detroit by way of Omaha and Chicago, with 24 stops en route. The schedule calls for the return to Detroit, July 12.

When the time for filing entries expired today, the tour committee announced 20 entries were on hand and that several others had been placed in the mail.

Planes Already In.

The 20 definitely accepted are shown in the following list with the tour number, sponsor, city represented, pilot and plane name:

1. Buhl Aircraft Co., Detroit; Louis G. Meister; Buhl Air Sedan.
2. Hamilton Metal Plane Co., Milwaukee; Randolph G. Page, Hamilton Metal Plane.
3. Alexander Aircraft Co., Denver; Floyd P. Clevenger, Alexander Eagle Rock.
4. Alexander Aircraft Co., Denver; Paul R. Braniff; Alexander Eagle Rock.
5. E. P. Hurd Co., Detroit; Rodney S. Lamont, Hurd monoplane.
6. Pitcairn Aviation Co., Philadelphia; James Ray; Pitcairn.
7. Aerial Service Corp., Hammondsport, N. Y.; H. C. Mummert. Mercury.
8. Cleveland Pneumatic Tool Co., Cleveland; E. W. Cleveland; Waco.
9. Advance Aircraft Co., Troy, O.; Richard Pears; Waco.
10. Advance Aircraft Co., Troy, O.; Douglas H. Davis; Waco.
11. Advance Aircraft Co., Troy, O.; John P. Wood, Waco.
12. Advance Aircraft Co., Troy, O.; John Paul Riddle, Waco.
13. Stinson Aircraft Corp., Detroit; Leonard S. Flo.; Stainson Detroiter.
14. Stinson Aircraft Corp, Detroit (piolt unnamed); Stinson Detroiter.
15. Nation Airways System, Lomax, Ill.; J. Romkey; Airking.
16. American Eagle Aircraft Corp., Kansas City; Larry D. Ruch; American Eagle.
17. Irwin Aircraft Co., Sacramento, Cal.; Jack Irwin; Irwin Meteorplane.
18. Krieder-Riser Aircraft Co., Inc.; Hagerstown, Md.; A. H. Krieder; Challenger.
19. Curtiss Wright Aero Syndicate, Detroit; Carl Milkriet; Curtiss Wright Sporteer.
20. Curtiss Wright Aero Syndicate, Detroit; Chever ,Cameron; Curtiss Wright air coach.

The committee was advised that entry notices for "The Pride of San Diego" and for a new 3-engined Ford plane were in the mail.

Title of Tour Changed.

The tour, which had its inception in Detroit in 1925, originally was known as the Annual Commercial Airplane Reliability Tour, for a trophy offered by Edsel Ford. The title was changed this year to the National Air Tour, as more befitting the scope of the event.

The Tour Committee stated today while speed would be an important factor in determining the winner, the tour was primarily a reliability and efficiency contest.

In addition to the Edsel B. Ford trophy, cash prizes ranging from $2500 for first place to $300 for tenth place have been posted. Cash prizes and trophies will be offered by some of the cities on the itinerary for the plane that arrives first, the plane that carries the greatest number of passengers and the plane that makes the best speed on a particular leg of the flight.

The Ford trophy is open to the field this year. The Travel Air Manufacturing Co. of Wichita, Kan., which won it in 1925 and 1926, has no entry this year.

LIMBURGER LOSING CASTE

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—Limburger cheese has fallen from grace in democratic Germany, members of the Reichstag Agricultural Committee today learned from the lips of prominent cheese manufacturers. Once the supreme delight of stanch beer-garden frequenters, limburger has completely lost caste and is now a drug on the market, the committee was told.

"The public's taste has changed," said one expert. "We are now trying to meet the post-war taste by manufacturing fat-containing hard and soft cheeses along French lines." Minister of Agriculture Schiele added that economic conditions also were responsible for the change in the public's taste. Following the war there was such a craving for fats that the fatter cheeses were preferred.

BELLANCA FIRM INCORPORATES

Capitalized at $1,000,000 to Deal in Aircraft of All Kinds.

By the Associated Press.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 18.—Incorporation papers have been granted to the Bellanca Aircraft Corpoartion of America, capitalized at $1,000,000, "to deal in airships, dirigibles and aircraft of every kind," it was learned at the Secretary of State's office today.

The directors named in the papers are Andrew Bellanca, Mina E. Sidel and David O. Decker, all of New York.

GEN. CHANG INSTALLED NORTH CHINA DICTATOR

Military Leaders Acclaim War Lord as Supreme Commander.

By the Associated Press.

CANTON, China, June 18.—An extensive anti-Japanese demonstration was held in Canton today. Propagandists plastered the walls of the city with virulent anti-Japanese posters and an airplane dropped quantities of propaganda leaflets.

By the Associated Press

PEKIN, June 18.—Marshal Chang Tso-lin was installed this afternoon as dictator of Northern China. The installation was held in the Hall of Ceremonies, where in the past the Chinese Presidents were inducted into office.

Chang took the oath and delivered a short address, after which the military leaders bowed thrice before him, and a salute of 108 guns was fired. Later he held a reception at the Foreign Office, many diplomats attending in their private capacity.

Chang then issued a mandate appointing Pan Fu as Premier.

Yangsen Troops Sack and Burn Portions of Shansi.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

SHANGHAI, June 18.—Yangsen troops sacked and burned portions of Shansi prior to retreating to Ichanc, according to dispatches received here from Ichang today. All foreigners were evacuated to foreign warships, which stood by to enforce warnings against anti-foreign depredations.

Nationalist troops announce the capture of Tsining and are marching on Yenchowfu, 70 miles south of Tsinan.

The Chinese press is attacking the Japanese for the dispatch of troops to Sinan, and lauds the United States for its nonintervention.

The international concession in Chinkiang is reported to have been invaded by Nationalists yesterday.

PRIEST'S FIRST MASS TODAY

Father Thomas H. Dempsey to Be at St. Patrick's Catholic Church.

The Rev. Father Thomas H. Dempsey, former St. Louis policeman and Captain in the field artillery in the World War, and veteran of the Spanish-American War, will say his first mass at 10 a. m. today, in St. Patrick's Catholic Church, Sixth and Biddle streets, of which his brother, Monseignor Timothy Dempsey, is pastor.

Father Thomas Dempsey, who is 52 years old, first studied for the priesthood in Ireland, where he was born, but gave up the study in 1891 and came to St. Louis. After leaving the Police Department four years ago he resumed his theological studies and was ordained last Sunday at St. Joseph, Mo.

MUSSOLINI FORESEES OCEAN AIR LINES SOON

Says Recent Feats of Flyers Prove Question Is Only One of Machines.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 18.—Regular transatlantic air service is no longer a question of man-power, but only of suitable machines, Premier Mussolini declared in a message read at a dinner given by the Under Secretary of Aviation last night in honor of the Ambassadors and Ministers of countries which Commander Francesco de Pinedo, Fascist long-distance flyer, touched in his 25,000-mile flight. De Pinedo, who completed his flight here Thursday, was among the speakers.

Mussolini cited the epochal flights of Col. Lindbergh, Clarence Chamberlin, Lieutenant-Commander Read, U. S. N., De Pinedo, Alcock, Coutinho and Cabral, Franco and De Barros as examples proving the courage of man in piloting airplanes in the face of hazards, adding: "It is not fantastic to say that in the near future regular transatlantic air services will be developed.

"It is now only a problem of suitable planes, because the courage of aviators has already solved the problem of man-power. Read, Alcock, Coutinho and Cabral, Franco, De Barros, Lindbergh, Chamberlin and De Pinedo are the pioneers who have opened up the skies to civilization."

Referring to the De Pinedo flight, the Premier's message said: "The Italian eagle strengthened the bonds of sympathy among countries and peoples who are so close to us in spirit, yet so far in space."

He expressed thanks to the diplomats for the many attentions given by their respective countrymen to De Pinedo and for the sympathies shown by their peoples in the flight.

Boy Injured by Fall Into Hole.

Joseph Decker, 14 years old, of 7208 Pennsylvania avenue, suffered fractures of the left arm and shoulder yesterday afternoon when he fell into a hole near Kansas street drive in Carondelet Park. He had been attending the annual picnic of his school. He was taken to city hospital.

SUIT ALLEGES AUDIT-PADDING

Two Men Seek to Break Contract to Buy Company.

Alleging that Harry L. Crown overstated the assets of the company approximately $10,000 in an audit on which the purchase price was based, Charles M. Morton and Leonard M. Morton yesterday filed suit to set aside a contract they entered with Crown last February for the purchase of the Crown Electrical Supply Co., 1514 Pine street.

Crown listed assets with a net value of $24,511.93 in the audit, the plantiffs allege.

Will Rogers' Condition Favorable.

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—Will Rogers, film cowboy, humorist and Mayor, spent a fairly good night following a major operation yesterday for gallstones. Nurses said his condition appeared favorable and that he was resting comfortably today.

MERGER OF 4 UTILITY COMPANIES PROPOSED

Missouri Electric Co. Would Absorb Three Concerns in Southern Missouri.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Approval of a merger of three public utility companies operating in Southern Missouri, with the Missouri Electric Power Co., which maintains its headquarters in St. Louis, is sought in an application filed today with the State Public Service Commission. The proposed merger would consolidate four companies with assets totaling approximately $2,000,000, now controlled separately by the Central States Power and Light Corporation of Davenport, Ia.

The new company will retain the name of the Missouri Electric Power Co. The companies to be absorbed are the Missouri Power and Development Co., operating in Willow Springs and Cabool; the Southeast Missouri Public Service Co. of Doniphan, and the Telephone Service Corporation, also of Doniphan.

Balance sheets filed with the application show the Missouri Electric Power Co. has assets of $1,261,478; the Missouri Power and Development Co., $421,105; the Southeast Missouri Public Service Co., $277,815, and the Telephone Service Corporation, $27,815. Assets of the three companies to be absorbed total $724,197. Authority is asked to issue $925,000 in bonds and preferred stock and 1000 shares of no par common stock of the Missouri Electric Power Co., to finance the merger and provide for extensions.

The Central States Power and Light Corporation of Davenport, Ia., now owns all of the outstanding common stock of the Missouri Electric Power Co. and a majority of the outstanding preferred. The application provides the additional 1000 shares of common stock will go to the Central States company, which also holds stock control of the three companies to be absorbed by the Missouri Electric Power Co.

BROTHERHOOD BANKS CONSIDERING MERGER

Mitten Interests in Philadelphia Reported Negotiating for Management of 12.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 18.—Possibility looking to an affiliation of 12 banks and financial institutions of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and the Mitten Management, Inc., of Philadelphia was seen tonight in admissions from reliable brotherhood sources that such a project is under consideration.

Although no official announcement was made, the fact was substantiated that a proposal by which the Mitten company would put a "substantial amount" of new capital into the brotherhood's holdings and assume the management of all but one of its banks, is before a committee of the brotherhood's triennial convention in session here. Thomas E. Mitten is head of the company.

New Banks Reported Planned.

It is understood if the deal is carried out the result would be the establishment of new banks, operating on a co-operative basis, in several sections of the country not at present served by such institutions.

No intimation was forthcoming as to the probable amount of additional capital that would be available. Total resources of the present brotherhood institutions, which extend across the country from Boston to San Francisco, are $89,447,709.36.

It is understood if the merger is carried out, each of the brotherhood banks would have on its board an equal number of representatives of the brotherhood and of the Mitten interests, but that Mitten would be given full authority. In addition to assuming the actual direction of the banks, it was said Mitten would take a directing interest in the brotherhood's other financial institutions, including investment, insurance and real estate companies. The entire negotiations have been secret, and there was no assurance that the project would be carried out. It is understood opposition has developed in certain quarters and there were some denials today that the matter had ever been officially brought up for consideration.

The brotherhood's chain of banking institutions and related companies was formed under the direction of the late Warren S. Stone, president of the brotherhood.

Mitten Is Traction Magnate.

As head of the Mitten company which operates the Philadelphia Rapid Traction Company as well as a string of other traction systems and banks, Mitten has been known for his policy of permitting employes to participate in profits. His projected alliance with the general financial activities of the brotherhood grows out of the merger sometime ago of the Producers & Consumers Bank at Philadelphia, of which he was the directing head, and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Title & Trust Co., in that city.

Of the total present resources of the brotherhood institutions, $45,656,488.53 is credited to banks, $27,555,882.53 to investment and insurance companies, and $14,533,890.90 to one realty company at Venice, Fla.

It is understood the only brotherhood bank not included in the merger plan is the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Banking & Trust Co., at Birmingham, Ala. No reason was indicated for its omission.

WEATHER MARKET IN GRAIN DURING WEEK

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Wheat was extremely nervous in tone today. Better weather caused pressure but commission houses should buying orders on the dip and the locals were forced to cover short sales on an advancing trend in prices. The late rally in corn also had a firming influence. Closing prices were ⅜ to ⅞ higher and for the week ⅝ to 1⅛ up, July 1.45⅜ to ½, September 1.42⅞ to 1.43.

It was a weather market all week, with price fluctuations erratic and net changes small.

While there were rains over the southwest where the harvest is now in progress, indications were for clearing and warming weather and this was regarded as favorable although there were some complaints that the precipitation was harmful in this section as well as in the northwest and Canada. Winnipeg Free Press in its second estimate of the season makes the wheat acreage in the three western provinces 19,240,000 acres, an increase of 1,560,000 acres over their previous estimate, but 2,500,000 acres less than last year. Liverpool closed 1⅝@2c lower because of the weakness in North America markets yesterday and rains in Australia. Export demand was quiet and a local exporter pointed out that vessel room was booked from Montreal to the continent at six cents a hundred today compared with 18c a few weeks ago.

Corn rallied in later trading after acting heavy most of the session. Commission house buying and local bull support caught locals short. Closing prices were half to ¾ higher and for the week 7½ to 8⅛ higher. July 1.00½ to ¾. September 106 to ⅛. Shipping sales were 73,000 bushels. Weather was showery in parts but there were indications of fair and warm weather over the week-end.

Oats were affected by the action of other grains and rallied after an easier start caused by more favorable weather. Shipping sales were 10,000 bushels. The close was ¼ to ⅜ higher and for the week 1½ to 1⅞ higher. July 48⅝, September 48¼ to ⅜.

Provisions were little changed, the market being influenced by the action in corn. Lard closed unchanged and ribs and bellies 5c lower.

ST. LOUIS TRADERS WATCH GRAIN TREND AT CHICAGO

There was no trading in grain on the Merchants' Exchange today, owing to celebration in honor of Col. Lindbergh, but prior to parade in latter's honor, many traders visited local offices of Chicago grain houses to watch developments in that market. Prices of wheat there were influenced by rain in the wheat harvest parts of Southwest, while corn was up on unfavorable crop comment.

St. Louis closing prices Friday were: July hard wheat, $1.43b; July red wheat, $1.44½a; September hard, $1.41⅞b; September red, $1.43¼b; December hard, $1.43½b; July corn, $1.01⅝; September corn, $1.06¼b.

Offerings of the new bonds are being made at 97 and interest to yield 5.20 per cent.

UNINTERESTING WEEK ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

ST. LOUIS STOCK EXCHANGE, June 18.—There was little of outstanding interest in the trading on the local board during the past week, or rather part of a week, as the first and last days were clipped off owing to celebrations in honor of Col. Lindbergh. Wagner Electric, which was the relatively most active issue, ranged between 38 and 36, closing at 37, for fractional decline. Pedigo-Weber gained a point at 36, selling between 25 and 36.

St. Louis Public Service was unchanged to fraction higher. National Candy common ranged between 109½ and 107 and closed at 108⅛, for 1⅞ loss.

Elder Corporation A stock was listed to trade.

An incident of the week's trade was turnover of 1321 shares of Granite Bimetallic at 30 cents per share.

Weekly Butter Review.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—The outstanding feature of the butter trade is lack of speculative demand. This kind of demand, however, during June is most necessary in order to provide a healthy active market, and in its absence business is unsettled and nervous.

Operators for the most part are not expressing a great deal of confidence in regard to storing of butter at the present level of prices, which are about 2¼c higher than in June a year ago.

At no time during the last week could trade have been called active. Receivers, therefore were sending a large percentage of their arrivals of fine butter to the freezers, chiefly to avoid taking losses which would be incurred by selling at the current level of prices.

In spite of the unsatisfactory trade prices nevertheless showed practically no change at Chicago, and the decline on Eastern markets amounted to only ¼c although reports on butter production indicated steady gains, and the general outlook is for maintained production in the major producing states for some time to come.

With the exception of bulls and veal calves, the killing classes of cattle all showed improved price trends here the past week, native beef steers leading with a gain of 25c to 35c, while Western steers, mixed butcher yearlings, heifers and cows were 25c higher. Receipts were heavier than the previous week, but lighter than for the corresponding period last year. Best mature steers topped the week's trade at $13, while a top of $11.50 was registered for strictly yearlings, some lightweight steers on the yearling order making $11.85. Bulk of all native beef steers for the week sold at $9.75 to $11.85. Western steers were considerably fewer in number than the previous, feature sales being some caked Oklahoma steers at $10.25, bulk of Texas steers makwing $7.50 to $7.25. A few mixed yearlings sold up to $11, practical top for both mixed and straight heifers being $10.75. Bulk of good and choice kinds made $10 to $10.75, plainer varieties and grass yearlings downward to $6 or less. Top beef cows reached $9, bulk $6 to $8.25, while cutter cows sold mostly from $5 to $5.75. Canner cows bulked at $4.25 to $4.75, tops reaching $4.85. Active trade ruled the greater part of the week, some slowness apparent toward the close. Bulls were on a strong basis early, with top bologna bulls $7.25. Later trade slacked off, however, and closing top was $7, bulk $6 to $7. Beef grades ranged upward to $8. Stocker and feeder cattle were very quiet all week and hardly enough were on sale to accurately test quotations. Prices on the few sold indicated a steady market, however.

Veals were uneven throughout the week, with tops varying from $12.25 to $12.75, the first mentioned figure closing top. First cuts sold from $9.50 to $10.50, $9.50 to $9.75 catching most on the close. Heavy calves, which up to now have been in good demand, showed weaker tendencies, and although the spread of $6 to $9 was maintained, movement was slow. Canner yearlings declined 50c to $4.50 to $5.25 basis, occasional lots good enough to make $5.50.

Hogs Steady Last Week.

Receipts of swine the past week were lighter than the previous week but heavier than the same time last year. Quality was good throughout the week. The first session of the week the market whipped up 15c to 25c, but in later sessions this advance was wiped out. Values were trending lower until the Friday trade, when they were steady. Today the market jumped up 10c to 15c and closed the week practically steady with last week's finish. Few heavy hog sales at the close were a little higher than last Saturday. High top for the week was $9.50, but this declined to $9.05, but whipped up, and today top was $9.30, within 20c of the top Monday. Extreme heavy hogs sank to $8.75 at the low time. Bulk of the light hogs sold for the week at $9.05 to $9.30. Hogs weight 200 to 325 pounds bulked at $8.90 to $9.25, with some few down to $8.75. Thursday all weights from 160 to 225 pounds sold in a very narrow range of $9 to $9.10. Order buying demand was slow in mid-week, but picked up towards the close. Packers bought with comparative freedom each day and effected a good clearance. Pigs and light lights in the forepart of the week were in poor demand, but sales were very uneven. The latter part of the week the demand improved considerably. Light pigs 100 to 120 bulked for the period under review at $9.25 to $8.30, with the stronger weights up to $9.25. Inferior grades sold down to $7. Packing sows closed the week steady. As compared with Monday, they are 15c to 25c lower. Few Monday sold up to $8.25. At the close $8 was the best price obtainable. Bulk sold for the week at $7.90 to $8.15. Stags $7.75 to $8.15.

Receipts of sheep and lambs the past week show a moderate gain over last week. Total receipts were 30,392 as compared with 22,977 last week. Quality was medium to good. Native spring lambs comprised the bulk of the offerings. Sharp declines were noted in lambs and at the close of the week best springers were $2 under last week's close. Culls are $1.50 lower and aged sheep show a 50c loss. Top the previous week was $17.25 as to $15.25 at the close of the current week. The markets invariably opened slow with buyers bidding sharply lower. The most losses were noted in the Thursday period, when best lambs closed $1 off. Monday buyers forced a 50c to 75c cut. High price of the week for full loads was $16.60, with a few odd head up to $16.85. Bulk of lambs sold for the week at $15 to $16.25. Latter part of the week $15 was the popular price for good quality springers. Medium grades sold at $12 to $14.50. Culls at the close of last week were cashing at $11 as to $9.50 today. Bulk of culls ranged from $9.50 to $10.50. Friday the market was full steady. All classes of aged sheep were forced to take a 50c cut. Best ewes are going at $4.50 to $5.50, according to weight. Choppers and bucks mainly at $3 with canners $1. About the only wethers on sale were aged kinds of fair quality that cashed principally at $5.25.

Quotations: Slaughter stock: Good to choice spring lambs $14.75 to $15.25, medium to good $13.00 to $14.75, plain to medium $11.50 to $13.00, culls and common $9.00 to $11.00. Good to choice yearling lambs (dry lot fed) $13.25 to $13.75, medium to good $13.25, plain to medium $11.00 to $12.75, culls and common $9.00 to $11.00, skins $7.00 to $9.00. Grass fed kinds discounted $1.00 to $1.50 under dry lot fed kinds. Good to choice aged western wethers $8.00 to $9.00, good fat southern kinds $6.50 to $7.50, thin to fair kinds $4.00 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes $4.50 to $5.50. Plain to good $4.00 to $4.50, choppers and bucks $3.00 to $3.50, canners $1.00 to $2.50. Fat goats $3.00 to $4.00, fair to good kids $4.00 to $7.00, thin to fair kids $1.50 to $3.00.

Horses and Mules.

Steady prices ruled in all classes of horses and mules here the past week and a ready outlet was furnished the better kinds. Inferior quality mules, of which a large part of supplies consisted found slow demand and barely maintained steady prices. All kinds were well cleared by the end of the week.

Receipts were of goodly proportions, combined receipts of horses and mules totaling 825 head for the week, part of which were on through billing, however.

Native horse quotations: good to choice draft, $135165; medium to good draft, $75@135; good to choice chunks, $75@100; medium to good chunks, $50@65; choice Southern horses, $25@50; fair to good southern horses, $20@25; smooth-mouthed Southerners, $15@25; plugs, $5@15.

Native mule quotations: Draft mules, 16 to 17 hands, $175@250; mine mules, 15 to 16.2 hands, $125@160; cotton mules, mare, fat, good hair, 16 to 16.2 hands, $125@150; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair 15 to 15.2 hands $100@125; cotton mules mares, fat, good hair, 14.2 to 15 hands $85@100; cotton mules, mares rough haired, 15 to 15.2 hands, $65@90; cotton mules, mares, rough haired, 14.2 to 15 hands, $45@65; horse mules, $15@20 per head less than above quotations. Farm mules, broke, good bone, 15.3 to 16.2 hands, $110@135; medium farm mules $80@100; farm mules, thin, half broke, 15.2 to 16 hands, $50@75; small common mules, $15@40.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Evening Post in the copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"An unexpected sharp rise in Monday's brokerage loans emphasized the recent extension in marginal speculation and when the markets resumed on Tuesday this week prices fell heavily. Improvement set in the very next day, however, and the stock market ever since has been able to maintain its equilibrium. In its present mood the financial district finds it easy to ignore news developments not to its liking, but this week when New York Central restored the $8 dividend rate that had been abandoned in 1884 the move was made an occasion for another bullish demonstration. In some ways this dividend action was more significant than those not close to the situation realized. Following as it did closely on the heels of Baltimore & Ohio's decision to issue $63,000,000 in additional common stock, the New York Central declaration was looked upon as a step in a program to sell stock.

Adjusting Structures.

"The railroads in recent years have been taking a smaller and smaller portion of the new capital offered by investors in this country but one reason is that the managements know only too well how important it is for them to correct a maladjustment in their capital structures. They have been waiting patiently for the time when they might restore the proper balance between fixed and contingent obligations through an increase in the ratio of stocks to bonds.

Credit Situation Reviewed.

"Yesterday's renewal rate on call money was the lowest in about three weeks but, in viewing the mid month adjustments now in process it was not taken as an indication of any permanent change. Large and important shifts in funds will be made between now and the first of next month but no signs indicate any pronounced variation for the immediate future. As the crops mature more funds will be needed to carry them to market but this tightening influence should not greatly disturb the stability in money rates. An unprecedented expansion in member bank credit since the beginning of the year based on the heavy gold inflow has made some authorities fearful of the credit situation. The member bank credit has been built up on gold imports and without any important change in borrowings from the reserve banks. The additional credit represents little or no expansion in commercial loans but does reveal an enormous growth in investments and in loans on securities. In the Federal Reserve Board's bulletin for June the Washington authorities speak very plainly on this matter. They say in so many words that the possession of $300,000,000 in securities nuder the control of the reserve banks "affords them a means if at anytime it should become desirable, of withdrawing funds from the market through the sale of all or part of these securities."

European Bank Heads Coming.

"What the Federal Reserve Board means is that the reserve banks could very effectively apply the brakes by forcing member banks to come to them for additional accommodation. Such a withdrawal of funds from the market increasing the dependence of the member banks upon the reserve banks, would have a tightening influence on money rates. Interest in the whole credit situation was lightened this week by the announcement that a conference on this side of the water between Gov. Strong and leading heads of the European Central banks had been arranged. Private bankers here and in Europe are in constant touch but every report of a discussion between the Central Bank heads is made the basis for rumors of some important decision about to be announced. Only by these frequent conferences can our own Federal Reserve authorities know how to proceed in the formation of world policies and it is to the best interests of business that the banks tighten rather than loosen their contacts one with another.

Agricultural Price Improvement.

"As the July period approaches no signs appear of the downturn in business predicted earlier in the year. It is even thought that the motor industry with the help of Henry Ford may produce more in the second half of 1927 than the first. Activity in the steel industry holds on a higher level than had been anticipated and even the building volume for 1927 to date about equals that for the same period a year ago. By a fractional variation last month the Bureau of Labor statistics index number shows that the curves on agricultural prices finally have come together again after a long separation. An upturn in agricultural commodities begun late in 1926 finally has put farm products up to 144 taking 1913 as 100, or to precisely the same relative position now occupied by industrial prices. While it is not quite accurate to say that the farmer now is able to sell what he grows as advantageously as industry may sell its products, the fact remains that this very goal is in prospect. The new spirit in the agricultural districts stimulated by the price improvement will in itself tend to prolong the period of general prosperity.

Confused Price Movements.

"Confusing price movements, reflecting profit-taking in many parts of the list and speculative operations for the rise in special stocks, again gave the stock market an appearance of irregularity today. Although most of the recenly favored leaders moved quietly in a narrow range, heavy buying lifted ordinarily inactive specialties to new peaks. Prospects of continued favorable credit conditions and a feeling of satisfaction in trade circles stimulated activity among pool operators who have scored important successes in the last few weeks. In the meantime hopes of traders looking for higher levels have been pinned on expectations of a heavy reinvestment demand about the first of July.

Clearing House Report.

"An explanation of more favorable credit conditions that prevailed toward the end of the week was provided in the weekly statement of the clearing house banks, which revealed last week's deficit of $26,419,530 had been reduced to $13,887,140 by an increase in surplus of $12,532,390. Loans, discounts, etc., increased $26,359,000. This improvement was not so large as had been anticipated and money rates may not ease appreciably next week.

Among the Features.

"Despite conflicting price movements throughout the general list, speculators for the advance expressed confidence in the markets stability in the early trading by bidding up several volatile specialties including some low prices shares that have claimed attention recently. Seasoned dividend payers which had led previous advances were rather quiet, but steady. Pittsburg Coal again edged into the spot light with a further recovery in respond to suggestion that the company's proposed new offering of $7,830,800 in stock would be put out at par to conform to the Pennsylvania law. Previous the shares had declined precipitately from above 70 to below 50 on acount of the financing. Consolidated Textile and Trans-Continental Oil were among the prominent low priced shares that displayed activity at higher levels. In the railroad group Lehigh Valley continued its recovery in response to discussions of new Loree merger developments, while New Haven and Ontario and Western again climbed.

Exchanges Irregular.

"Fluctuations in foreign exchanges continued to move irregularly in quiet trading. French francs eased off a trifle to a new for the movement while peseta again broke sharply to below 17 cents. The remainder of the European list was steady. Japanese exchange pointed higher again in continuing the pronounced recovery that caused a brisk advance this week.

BOND PRICE CHANGES NARROW AT WEEK END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Price changes in the bond market today were narrow, and no definite trend was established. A better inquiry was noted, however, for high grade investment issues, many of which have declined to a point at which they are again attractive to buyers. Last week's new offerings fell to less than half the volume of the week before, giving the market an opportunity to assimilate some of the recent new issues.

Trading in listed bonds gave an impression that supply and demand are fairly well matched. There was some early buying of such bonds as U. S. Steel 5s, Chesapeake 5s and Canadian National Railway 4½s but profit-taking later wiped out the gains.

Some convertible issues were subject to realizing. International Telephone 5½s, Erie "D" 4s and Delaware & Hudson 5s all sustained losses ranging from fractions to more than a point.

Government issues were active, especially Treasury 4s, more than $500,000 of which changed hands at slightly easing prices. A quarter of a million in Liberty fourth 4¼s were dealt in around yesterday's final figure.

Foreign bonds were relatively quiet and irregular. There was some liquidation of French and Belgian obligation and City of Berlin 6½s were offered.

Foreign Exchange

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly foreign exchange says:

"Fluctuations in foreign exchange continued to move irregularly Saturday in quiet trading. French francs eased off a trifle to a new for the movement, while peseta again broke sharply to below 17 cents. The remainder of the European list was steady. Japanese exchange pointed higher again in continuing the pronounced recovery that caused a brisk advance this week.

"Business this week generally was quiet, the observance of Monday as a holiday in the banking district interfering to a considerable extent with dealings here. In the remaining days of the week bids and offers of the leading exchanges were well balanced for a good part of the time, and movements in the most important exchanges were confined to a narrow range.

"Sterling was in moderate supply and yielded about ⅛ cent, and French held close to the almost fixed price of 3.91⅝ for cables.

"Speculative buying made Italian prominent for a time, lira cables moving up to above 5.58, but the Italian Institute and other Government agents appeared as sellers and quickly caused a reaction to 5.53.

"Dutch exchange was a strong feature, making a new high for the year, when guilder cables advanced to above 40.07. Swiss was in fair demand and varied only slightly. Firmness was shown in Scandinavian rates generally, Danish making a new high for the year on an advance to 26.73½, and Swedish reaching its previous top of 26.81 for cables. Norwegian was active on a decline of five points to 25.83. Spanish, after rallying from the previous week's low, was again in supply, and for few days was under pronounced pressure, pesetas falling from 17.37 to 17.12. Portugal developed a firm tone after being heavy in the preceding week.

"Japanese exchange was a strong feature in the last half of the week when yen cables sold as high as 46.80, a gain of more than a half cent from the low level early in the week. Some here attributed this late strength to a demand from Japan but in other quarters it was laid to covering for Chinese shorts.

"A strong tone was shown in Argentine exchange, which made a new 1927 high, advancing to 42.50 above parity. Uruguay was available at concessions.

"Canadian developed increased weakness, falling to ⅛ discount."

Drygoods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Cotton goods were steady today with business of fair volume in gray cotton goods, print cloths and sheetings now being closely sold for July-August deliveries. Finished goods were in moderate demand. Raw silk closed the week steady. Silk traders report a moderate amount of selling in summer silk fabrics. Some lines of velours for cloakings have been advanced. More interest was being shown in wool goods for early cutting. Burlaps held steady. Fancy lines sold moderately.

OND PRICE CHANGES NARROW AT WEEK END

the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Price changes the bond market today were narrow, d no definite trend was established. A tter inquiry was noted, however, for high ade investment issues, many of which ve declined to a point at which they again attractive to buyers. Last week's w offerings fell to less than half the lume of the week before, giving the arket an opportunity to assimilate some the recent new issues.

Trading in listed bonds gave an im- ession that supply and demand are fairly ll matched. There was some early buy- of such bonds as U. S. Steel 5s, esapeake 5s and Canadian National Rail- ay 4½s but profit-taking later wiped t the gains.

Some convertible issues were subject to alizing. International Telephone 5½s, rie "D" 4s and Delaware & Hudson all sustained losses ranging from frac- ns to more than a point.

Government issues were active, espe- lly Treasury 4s, more than $500,000 of ich changed hands at slightly easing ices. A quarter of a million in Liberty urth 4¼s were dealt in around yester- y's final figure.

Foreign bonds were relatively quiet and regular. There was some liquidation of ench and Belgian obligation and City of rlin 6½s were offered.

Foreign Exchange

Leased Wire From the New York Bu- reau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Evening st in its copyrighted weekly foreign ex- ange says:

"Fluctuations in foreign exchange con- nued to move irregularly Saturday in iet trading. French francs eased off a ifle to a new for the movement, while eseta again broke sharply to below 17 nts. The remainder of the European st was steady. Japanese exchange point- higher again in continuing the pro- ounced recovery that caused a brisk ad- nce this week.

"Business this week generally was quiet, e observance of Monday as a holiday the banking district interfering to a nsiderable extent with dealings here. In e remaining days of the week bids and ffers of the leading exchanges were ell balanced for a good part of the time, nd movements in the most important ex- hanges were confined to a narrow range.

"Sterling was in moderate supply and ielded about ⅛ cent, and French held ose to the almost fixed price of 3.91⅝ r cables.

"Speculative buying made Italian prom- ent for a time, lira cables moving up above 5.58, but the Italian Institute and her Government agents appeared as sell- s and quickly caused a reaction to 5.53.

"Dutch exchange was a strong feature, aking a new high for the year, when uilder cables advanced to above 40.07. wiss was in fair demand and varied only ightly. Firmness was shown in Scan- inavian rates generally, Danish making new high for the year on an advance 26.73½, and Swedish reaching its pre- ous top of 26.81 for cables. Norwegian as active on a decline of five points to 5.83. Spanish, after rallying from the revious week's low, was again in supply, nd for few days was under pronounced ressure, pesetas falling from 17.37 to 7.12. Portugal developed a firm tone fter being heavy in the preceding week.

"Japanese exchange was a strong fea- ure in the last half of the week when en cables sold as high as 46.80, a gain f more than a half cent from the low vel early in the week. Some here at- ributed this late strength to a demand rom Japan but in other quarters it was aid to covering for Chinese shorts.

"A strong tone was shown in Argentine xchange, which made a new 1927 high, dvancing to 42.50 above parity. Uruguay as available at concessions.

"Canadian developed increased weakness, alling to ⅛ discount."

Drygoods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Cotton goods were steady today with business of fair volume in gray cotton goods, print cloths and sheetings now being closely sold for July-August deliveries. Finished goods were in moderate demand. Raw silk closed the week steady. Silk traders report a moderate amount of selling in summer silk fabrics. Some lines of velours for cloakings have been advanced. More interest was being shown in wool goods for early cutting. Burlaps held steady. Fancy lines sold moderately.

precipitately from above 70 to below 50 on acount of the financing. Consolidated Textile and Trans-Continental Oil were among the prominent low priced shares that displayed activity at higher levels. In the railroad group Lehigh Valley continued its recovery in response to discussions of new Loree merger developments, while New Haven and Ontario and Western again climbed.

Exchanges Irregular.

"Fluctuations in foreign exchanges continued to move irregularly in quiet trading. French francs eased off a trifle to a new for the movement while peseta again broke sharply to below 17 cents. The remainder of the European list was steady. Japanese exchange pointed higher again in continuing the pronounced recovery that caused a brisk advance this week.

UNCERTAINTIES ARE BRITISH TRADE CHECK

Special Wireless to New York Evening Post

LONDON, June 18.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of London Morning Post in financial review says:

"The political and monetary uncertainties current in England are combining to restrict business, which usually slackens during the second half of June. The Egyptian situation is better, but it is impossible to forecast what may be the nature of Russian developments, the obscurity of which is greatly increased through the censorship of news.

"If the soviet administration is having difficulty in maintaining its position, it is possible that there will be a strenuous effort to fan the warlike feeling against other nations, so as to avert internal disorders.

"The possibility of the development of a strong national feeling among the peasants just now makes Russia a danger spot impossible to ignore. Monetary conditions are largely dependent on the future French policy, but it is considered probable that the Banks of France and England are now in touch, and that French demands for gold may moderate sufficiently to prevent a rise in our bank rate before early autumn.

"All hopes of a decline in the bank rate, however, are banished and the difficulty of forecasting international monetary conditions far ahead is increased by the artificiality of the various positions.

"Thus the francs artificially pegged at 124 to the pound, and even the fluctuation of American exchange are somewhat surprising in view of the huge foreign loans in the United States, which collectively must be greater than our debt service to the states.

"Even as regards the central bank conferences like that to take place soon in New York, opinions are somewhat divided.

"America's future monetary policy is the subject of considerable differences of opinion among financial authorities here. Capel Court looks for a quiet and steady maintenance of present rates.

"A small technical point, but not unimportant in our situation, arises out of the legal limitation of currency notes which during Whitsuntide week were only $1,000,000 under the legal maximum. If these notes should expand on the same lines as they did two years ago, we might by August see the legal maximum exceeded by several millions.

"This, in turn, might develop a situation involving large transfers of Bank of England notes from reserve to the currency department, with the material effect of hardening the money market.

"After a moderate improvement, the shipping, steel and coal industries present an outlook less favorable. Present orders are satisfactory, but new business is scanty.

"It is too early yet to determine whether the second half of the current year will see a resumption of financial activities, but present indications suggest that political conditions throughout Europe will have to improve materially to justify a return to pronounced optimism."

GENERALLY STEADY TONE TO COTTON AT NEW YORK

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The cotton market showed a generally steady tone today. Week-end realizing or liquidation caused moderate declines early, but after selling off to 16.80c or 7 points net lower, October contracts rallied to 17.00c and closed at 16.97c. The general market closed steady at an advance of 8 points to a decline of 4 points, with near months relatively steady on covering, which was thought to be partly for foreign account. There was some Southern selling of later deliveries, and the market eased off after the early demand had been supplied.

The Government report on boll weevil emergence prior to June 1 indicated it had been greater than last year, with the exception of sections of Louisiana and Georgia, and was considered a bullish statement by local traders. It proved the signal for considerable realizing, probably on the ground that it showed no greater an infestation than suggested by recent private reports, and the market reached the lowest points of the day shortly after its publication.

July sold off to 16.44c, December to 17.03c and January to 17.11c net declines of about 5 to 7 points, but this dip seemed to attract more buying and prices rallied in late trading. At the best July sold at 16.65c, December at 17.22c and January at 17.28c, or 11 to 14 points net higher. The close was within a few points of the top. Business was quiet at the start but became somewhat more active in the forenoon, although much of the trading was attributed to evening-up of commitments for over Sunday.

Private reports from the South continued to emphasize the increased infestation of boll weevil, but some of the mid-morning selling was attributed to belief that the average condition of the plant had been improving since the recent break in the west Texas drouth.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance was estimated at 100,000 bales, against 45,000 at the same time last year.

New York Cotton

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Government report indicating that emergence of boll weevil in the cotton belt prior to June 1 had been greater than in previous seasons except in sections of Louisiana and Georgia was considered in line with recent private reports of increasing infestation. First it failed to create much fresh buying and the market eased after its publication under liquidation of long accounts but it rallied towards the close on covering. December advanced from 16.93c to 17.22c and closed at 17.19c, or 11 points net higher. Spots advanced 15 points to 16.90c.

Financial and Industrial Briefs

NEW YORK, June 18.

Sharon Steel Hoop Co. declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common stock. The previous payment was 50 cents on Jan. 15. The regular quarterly of 2 per cent on the preferred also was authorized.

Gross earnings of the Canadian Pacific from Jan. 1 to June 14 were $78,010,000 against $74,282,000 in the same period of 1926.

Commercial failures in the United States this week are put at 402 by R. G. Dun & Co., against 441 the week before and 449 a year ago.

Some railroad stocks are selling at what would seem to be a high price for the yield, but when the assets behind these properties are taken into consideration, they apparently are getting into the same class as bank stocks, said E. E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, sailing for Europe. He considered the business outlook excellent. Under certain circumstances, he said, it was difficult for a student of economics to be a pessimist.

Business continues to be transacted in fair volume in the electrical industry, Electrical World says. Although there has been a decrease in sales compared with last year, the decline is not large and has had little influence on the attitude of manufacturers. Negotiations are pending for several large projects and the drop in summer business is not expected to be more than seasonal.

• • •

Frank Bailey, chairman of Realty Associates, has been elected a director of the St. Louis-Southwestern Railway.

Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power Co. has called for redemption at 105 on July 20 the remaining $318,000 outstanding of its original $2,500,000 7 per cent convertible bonds.

• • •

S. Davies Warfield, president of the Seaboard Air Line, was quoted as saying he expected May earnings to exceed those of May last year, which was a record for that month with surplus of $248,621 after charges.

New capital investment in the electric light and power industry in 1927 promises to exceed $1,000,000,000, says a review by Pynchon & Co. This industry spent $900,000,000 last year, compared with $885,000,000 by the railroads, exceeding the latter for the first time. New financing for the industry was more than $722,000,000 in the first five months this year.

The Erie Railroad is inquiring for 25 baggage and express cars, bids to be closed July 5.

• • •

Advancing prices at primary markets in Chile have brought an increase of 10 cents per 100 pounds for nitrate of soda for arrival at New York during the first half of July, the Oil, Paint and Drug Reporter states.

Weekly Metal Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Improvement in steel operations noted recently proved to be but temporary apparently. Reports during the week were that a further curtailment of business occurred and that there was an absence of large contracts either in the East or Central West. Prices were again irregular and shading of bars, shapes and plates continued, while steel strips were relatively strong.

Pig iron was unsettled and there were rumors of a moderate reduction in prices in some markets soon.

A further decline has occurred in copper. The more immediate needs of domestic consumers are believed to have been covered and the bearish view of the monthly statistics evidently encouraged buyers for both domestic and export account to await further developments. Producers have been slow to meet lower prices and show little disposition to press for business on a declining market, but small sales have been reported at 12⅛ cents for electrolytic delivered at Connecticut Valley points.

Tin was irregular with business largely between dealers. There was moderate activity early in the week when prices were slightly easier, but later this subsided as the market steadied.

Lead was quiet and easier. Larger stocks appeared to bring out some increased offerings in the outside markets at slight price concessions.

Zinc was quiet and steady. Estimates were of moderate stocks held by smelters.

Antimony was a shade firmer in a quiet market. The inquiry appeared to be principally for prompt and July shipments.

SOME SHARP GAINS ON CURB EXCHANGE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The movement towards recovery proceeded with greater vigor in today's dealings on the Curb Exchange. Sharp advances in the more prominent issues lifted quotations to the high level for the year. Equitable Office Building and White Sewing Machine rights scored early gains of about 2 points to new peak prices. Other to top previous levels were Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Louis, Richmond Radiator common and convertible preferred, Celluloid Co. and Gobel, Inc.

Deere & Co., which was in supply yesterday, rallied 2 points, and Curtis Publishing also moved upward. Hood Rubber dropped 3 points to the year's low quotation. Celanese Corporation old shares sold at 281, a decline of 18 points from last sale.

Yellow Taxicab Corporation of New York and Thatcher Manufacturing became strong features later in the trading, with sharp upturns of about 5 points registered in each.

Westinghouse Air Brake new issue, approximately 3,172,110 shares to be exchanged on the basis of four shares or new for one present stock, was admitted to unlisted trading privileges.

Oil shares were in better demand at rising prices. Prairie Pipe opened up a point at a new high at 185, and then reacted 3 points.

Tidal Osage continued active and upward and Transcontinental preferred improved 2 points on small sales.

Public Utility issues were neglected, with some recessions occurring on light offerings.

Hydromel Wins American Derby; Whiskery Runs Last

HANDY MANDY SECOND IN $25,000 RACE

Buddy Bauer, Victor in Fairmount Derby, Finishes Third in Field of Five at Washington Park.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOMEWOOD, Ill., June 18.—Johnson N. Camden's Hydromel, son of Light Brigade-Honey Dew, was triumphant in the American Derby decided at Washington Park today and in addition to contributing $22,750 to his owners, gained distinction for himself by the handy manner in which he took the four rivals that tried conclusions with him into camp. Handy Mandy was second and Buddy Bauer third.

Hydromel registered his success in the most approved fashion and it left doubt whether he alone was not the only one that favored the mile and a half distance.

Whiskery Finishes Last.

Harry Payne Whitney's Whiskery, winner of the Kentucky Derby, was the sad disappointment. He was an outstanding favorite and raced with the leaders for a mile and a quarter, but when asked the question in serious style he was found badly wanting and finished a badly defeated and hard punished last.

The time of the race was hung out as 2:29, which establishes a track record, but the timer evidently erred for private time showed 2:32 2-5. Boot to Boot raced his mile and a half last year in the fast time of 2:30 1-5. The new layer of dirt has slowed the course materially since that running.

Five in Field.

Five of the eight originally entered overnight accepted the issue, the absentees being Bog Rogers, Aregal and Black on White.

Whiskery was a pronounced favorite with Hydromel and Buddy Bauer next, Dolan next and Handy Mandy the outsider.

Alfred Johnson, immediately after the break, took the Bradley representative into the lead intending to duplicate his success with Boot to Boot and the colt raced under easy restraint commandingly in advance of Whiskery and Hydromel following, with Dolan and Handy Mandy a considerable distance away.

There was no material change in the leadership, excepting that Hydromel and Whiskery alternated in second place until just after the mile and a furlong had been negotiated. At this stage, McDermott, on Hydromel, sent him into the lead with a rush, and Ellis, on Whiskery, tried to keep pace, but in this he was thwarted, and the big following for the Whitney color bearer were consternated when Ellis began applying the whip to Whiskery. The colt, however, was all in, and he steadily dropped back to ultimately finish as the whipper-in.

Buddy Bauer Makes Bid.

After rounding into the stretch, McDermott took a restraining hold on Hydromel and the colt had the race safe at all stages of the final trip. Buddy Bauer struggled on gamely and sought to again wear down the flying leader, but in this he failed, and a new menace developed in the last sixteenth, when Hydromel was restrained for the first mile, moved into the lead with a rush and held race safe all during the stretch. Handy Mandy raced far out of it for the first mile, but came fast and steadily in last quarter. Buddy Bauer showed fine speed for the frist mile, but began tiring in stretch. Dolan had no mishaps. Whiskery began weakening after going mile and a quarter and tired almost to a walk in the last furlong.

Earl Smith, Pirates' Catcher, Knocks Out Bancroft; Victim Is Carried Off the Diamond

Braves' Leader Had Just Scored a Run When Pittsburg Receiver Shot a Left to the "Button"—Cut Face Is Stitched Up —Heydler to Review Case.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURG, June 18.—A baseball feud of long standing between Dave Bancroft, manager of the Boston Nationals, and Earl Smith, Pittsburg catcher, flared to white heat at Forbes Field today when the husky Pirate backstop sent his left fist crashing into Banny's jaw. Bancroft was knocked out by the blow. Three stitches were required to close a cut in his face.

According to baseball experts Bancroft and Smith had been at odds dating back to the days when the scrappy catcher was with the Braves. In the seventh inning of today's game between the Pirates and Boston, Bancroft came to bat and was given a walk. As he strolled to first, Smith shot the ball down the first base line. Bancroft halted, and said something to Smith, who retorted.

Later Bancroft scored. As he crossed the plate he halted and spoke to Umpire McCormick. It was the general belief that he complained about Smith's general attitude. Smith put in a hot sentence or two while Banny and the arbiter stood at the plate. Then, as Bancroft turned toward Smith, the latter flung the catching mitt from his hand and shot his fist into the Boston manager's jaw.

Bancroft Carried Off Field.

Bancroft was carried from the field, and the Pirate's physician sewed the cut in his face. He then went to his hotel. Smith was banished from the game.

Later, Bancroft said Smith had been "riding" him for some time. Asked what he intended to do about today's incident he replied "I'll put this thing up to President Heydler. Let him dispose of it."

Donie Bush, Pirate manager, seemed to think that both Smith and Bancroft were to blame for the flareup. He did not seek to excuse Smith, saying he would "sit tight" and await Heydler's ruling.

The Smith-Bancroft clash caused a tense feeling on the field, and resulted in several close calls While Bancroft was being carried out Smith and Coach Dick Rudolph of the Braves, came close to a clash. Smith started after Rudolph, but other players stepped between them.

Incipient Quarrels Quelled.

A little later Pie Traynor, Pittsburg captain, who has been out of the game with an injured thumb, became involved in an exchange of words with Pitcher Joe

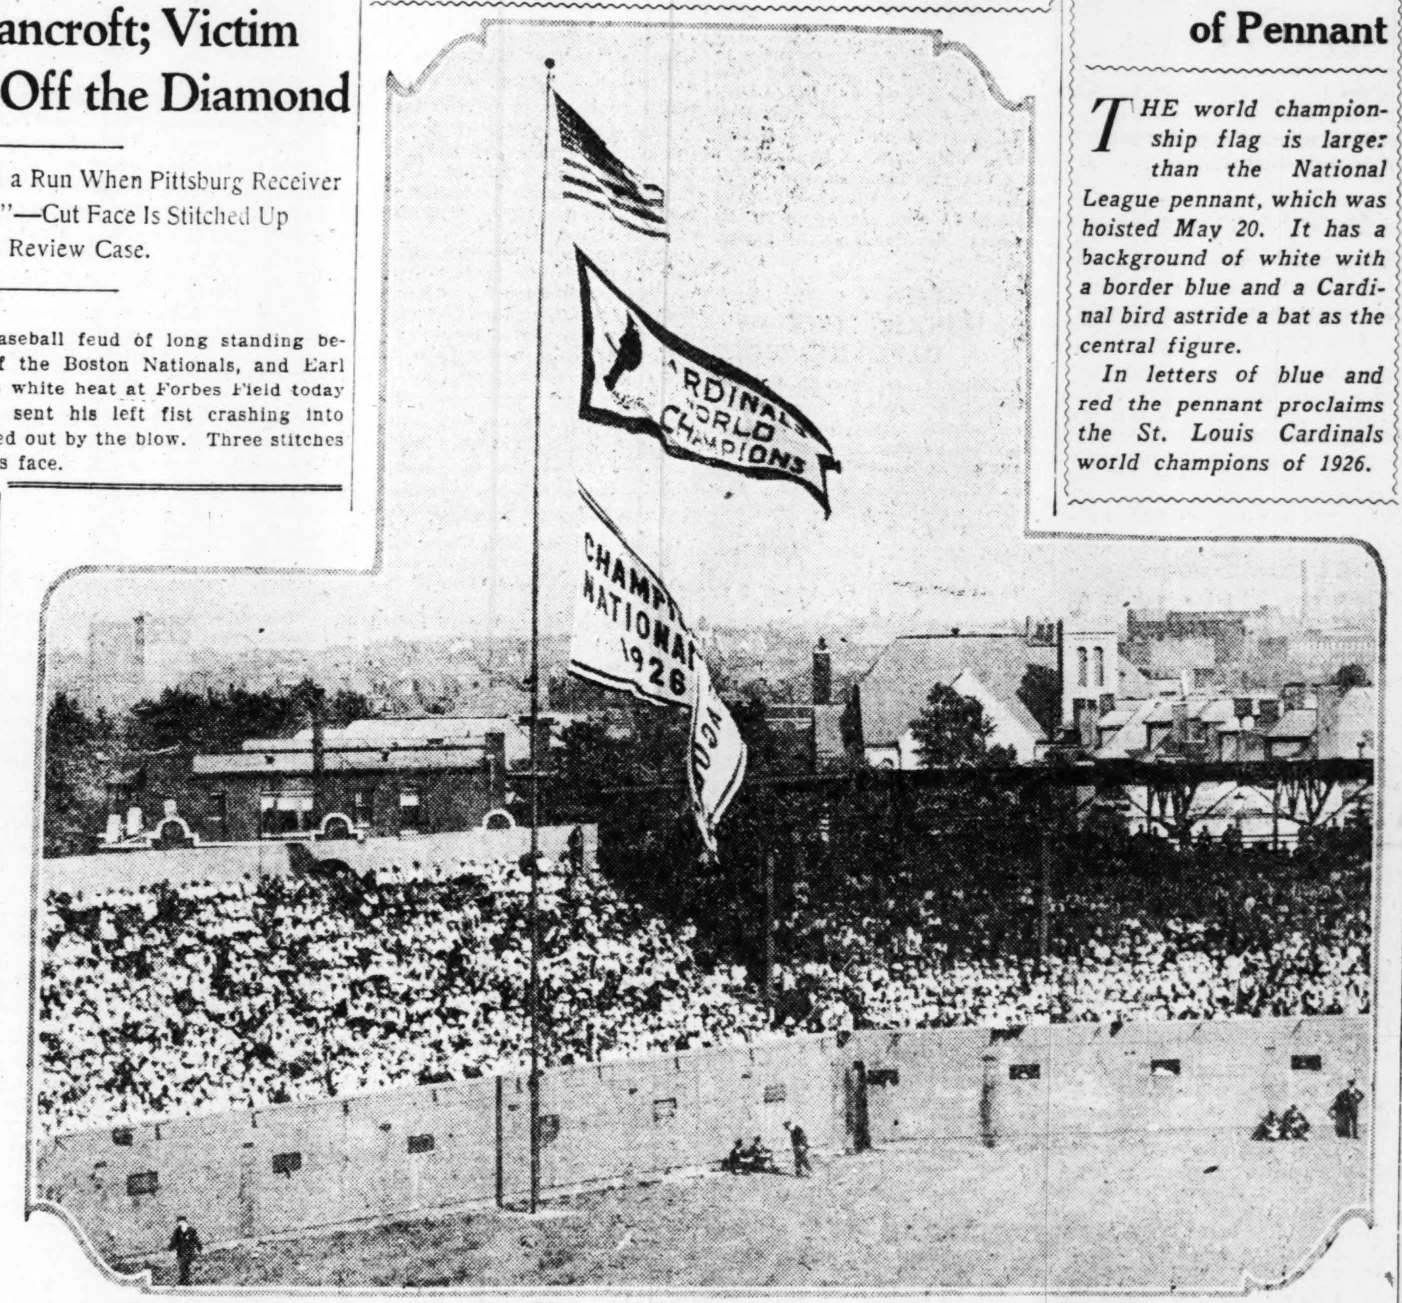
AFTER 41 YEARS



The above picture was taken by a Post-Dispatch staff photographer shortly after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, Hornsby and the Cardinals had participated in raising the first world's championship flag to be hoisted locally since 1886, when the old St. Louis Browns won the title. The bottom pennant is the National League flag.

Description of Pennant

THE world championship flag is larger than the National League pennant, which was hoisted May 20. It has a background of white with a border blue and a Cardinal bird astride a bat as the central figure.

In letters of blue and red the pennant proclaims the St. Louis Cardinals world champions of 1926.

President John Heydler in Presentation Address at Sportsman's Park Praises World Flyer.

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, New York to Paris flyer, added another medal to his long list at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon during the world's championship flag ceremonies of the Cardinals. It was an emblem from the National League, extending to Col. Lindbergh the courtesy of all the parks of the senior major league organization.

The presentation was made by President John A. Heydler of the organization.

Inscribed on the lid of the box, in which was the medal, a baseball with a replica of Lindbergh's "Spirit of St. Louis" were the following words in gilt.

"Extending to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and party courtesy of all its parks.

"Compliments of National Baseball League, St. Louis, June 18, 1927.

President Heydler's presentation address in full follows:

Col. Lindbergh—To no other boy has come this honor of taking part in raising the first championship flag won by the team of his home town.

This flying emblem is symbolic not only of the highest honors of our national game, but it is emblematic of that spirit of valor and fighting courage which best expresses the spirit of St. Louis, and which doubtless served as an inspiration to you and to the men of this city who had faith in you.

COL. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH

Lindbergh's Life-time "Pass."

Your aeroplane and that championship flag are both emblems of the spirit of this city—world's championship emblems that have brought glory and acclaim and, more than these, inspiration to a city and a nation.

There could be nothing finer in sport than that these young men—champions of the green diamonds, should here honor the champion of the air.

On their behalf, and the organization they so well represent, I present you this token. It is a memento from those who have excelled collectively to you whose immortal flight will endure as the world's greatest individual feat of sportsmanship.

ALEXANDER'S PITCHING AND TWO EARLY-INNING RALLIES DECIDE GAME

Bottomley's Home Run Smash With Two Runners On Is Big Punch—Champions Show Power With Extra Base Hits—Hornsby Poles a Double, Frisch a Single.

By J. Roy Stockton

Grover Cleveland Alexander's pitching and a heavy batting attack in the second and third inning, enabled the Cardinals to celebrate the raising of their world championship flag yesterday afternoon by beating the New York Giants, 6 to 4, before 33,500 paid spectators, the city's largest baseball crowd of the season.

Alexander's pitching, viewed through perusal of the box score, does not stand out as much better than the pitching of the New York hurlers. He was touched for ten safeties and Fitzsimmons and Henry, for the Giants, allowed ten.

But Alexander had something in reserve in the pinches and no matter how hard the Giants tried to start a rally, they could not bunch hits off the old master, except in the second inning, when four safeties produced two of their runs and gave them for the moment a two-run lead.

Fitzsimmons Routed.

In contrast Fitzsimmons, who started for the Giants, was belted from the slab in the third inning. Jim Bottomley's home run with two on bases being the finishing touch to a devastating Cardinal attack that overcame that two-run lead and put the world champions out in front with a margin of three tallies.

Terry and Jackson singled with one out in the second inning and after Roush's infield out had advanced them, Taylor slammed a single to left center, scoring the two runners.

It did not take the Cardinals long to match those two runs. Holm opened the Cardinal second with a double that whistled down the left foul line and Southworth scored him quickly with a triple to left center. Snyder then shot a single to center and Southworth scored.

The Real Bombardment.

That was all for the inning, but in the third the bombardment started again. Douthit doubled to right and reached third on Frisch's single, which was too hot for Lindstrom.

Bottomley, who is the more dangerous when men are on the bases, lived up to his reputation, socking a home run into the right field seats.

Giants Score Twice More.

In the fourth, Jackson's grounder, too hot for Frisch, gave the Giants an opening. Roush forced Jackson, but Taylor slammed a double to center and Roush sprinted home.

In the fifth, Mueller singled to center to start a promising rally and Lindstrom sent him home and put the Giants within one run of a tied score by punching a triple to left center.

But the run that Lindstrom carried never reached home, so effective was Alexander in the pinch. Lindstrom held third while Frisch threw out Harper and when he tried to race home on Hornsby's hot grounder to Thevenow, he was nailed by Tommy's perfect throw to Snyder.

That was the last productive bit of Giant batting.

Mueller single with one out in the seventh, but Lindstrom forced him and Lindstrom went out trying a delayed steal. In the eighth, Hornsby doubled to right center with one out and went to third on Terry's infield out. Once more the tying run was on third base and once more the great Alexander displayed his greatness.

Alex Fools Jackson.

Travis Jackson, usually poison to the Cardinals, and one of the most dangerous batters in the league, in the pinch, tried to match his skill with Alexander and old Pete struck him out for his pains, sending a sweeping curve over the plate for third strike while Jackson looked and guessed that it was a ball.

With the Giants thus threatening, the Cardinals deemed it wise to add to their lead and they pushed over a run in the eighth, Southworth hitting to center for a base with two out and Lester Bell

FOUR RECORDS BROKEN IN WESTERN A. A. U. TRACK MEET

Buddy Sample Sets New Mark and Puts Shot Over 44 Feet

Previous Record was of 12 Years' Standing; Westminster Wins High Point Trophy, Nosing Out Washington by One Point.

The first Western Amateur Athletic Union outdoor track and field meet in almost 12 years, held at Francis Field yesterday afternoon, had the effect of lowering four records when existing marks for the 16-pound shotput, 440-yard dash, running broad jump, and women's high jump were bettered. Counter attractions held the attendance to a scant 500.

The field of 95 entrants in the meet included representatives of seven colleges and universities, nine high schools, nine athletic clubs, and three industrial organizations. Although the event was not intended primarily for team competition, Director Robert Probst offered a high point trophy which was captured by the Westminster College athletes with a score of 19 points. Westminster had seven men entered while Washington University, tied for second with 18 points, was represented by 11 entrants. Oklahoma A. & M. managed to tally 16 points for fourth place through the efforts of its three-man team.

Sample Breaks Record.

Husky Buddy Sample, one-man track team of Webster Groves High School and sensation of recent meets, performed in his usual fine form by shattering the 16-pound shot-put record when he replaced the mark of 42 feet, established some 12 years ago by Barker of New Orleans, with the decidedly better distance of 44 feet, 3½ inches. The youthful star placed in both of his other events, taking third in the discus throw and the running broad jump.

Leo Best of the Oklahoma Aggie team gained an early advantage in the 440-yard dash to break the record with the tape. Best's time of 49.8 seconds replaced the previous mark of 50.2 seconds.

Another local athlete was responsible for a new record when Robert Poos of the Bears' track team won the running broad jump with a leap of 22 feet, 1 inch.

Women's Record Broken.

Catherine Maguire of the Pacific (Mo.) Athletic Club featured the women's events by breaking the district record in the high jump of 56.2 inches when she cleared the bar at 58 inches. Miss Maguire is also national women's high jump champion, having won the title last year with the mark of 59¼ inches. Miss Maguire placed in both of the other events she entered, winning the eight-pound shot put and taking a second in the broad jump.

Carl Johanningmeier defeated a field of several stars in the 880-yard run when he forged ahead in the stretch after lagging for most of the distance to win by a decisive margin. In the 440-yard run, however, Johanningmeier was no match for the record-breaking pace of Leo Best, Oklahoma sprinter.

Rossfeld Winner in Mile.

Botz Rossfeld, local athlete of the Concordia gym, provided a thrilling finish in the mile run when he sprinted a quarter lap from the tape to overtake several leaders and finish with a good lead.

Dee Boeckmann, allround St. Louis girl athlete, wrested the district championship for the 50-yard dash from Bernadine Beicher, and placed also in the 100-yard dash, running second to Irene Maguire of Pacific.

Gold, silver and bronze medals were awarded to entrants for first, second and third places, respectively.

Cards Raise Title Flag, Then Defeat Giants, 6-4 parking a triple between the pavilion wall and the wire screen built against the wall as a protection to outfielders.

Alexander, however, did not need the extra runs. He turned back the dangerous Roush, the equally hard-hitting Taylor and a pinch hitter, Ott, without the ball being hit out of the infield.

The victory enabled the Cardinals to gain a full game on the Cubs, who lost again, but the Pirates maintained their first-place margin by beating the poor Braves.

SHERDEL TO FACE GIANTS TODAY IN FINAL OF SERIES

BILL SHERDEL and Larry Benton probably will do the pitching in the fourth and final game of the series this afternoon. Sherdel warmed up a bit while the Giants were getting rough with Alexander, but that won't keep Wee William from going to the hill.

However, Jess Haines has had three full days of rest since beating the Giants in the series opener and he can go to the slab this afternoon if he is wanted.

Hornsby has had much the better of Frisch in batting in the three games. Rogers has been at bat 10 times and has made five hits for an average of .500, while Frankie, up 14 times, has four hits and a percentage of .286.

Rogers and Frankie each had one out of four yesterday and each base hit was handled. Hornsby got a double on a drive to right center, Southworth reaching the ball after a hard run, but dropping it. Frisch's single was a grounder too hot for Freddie Lindstrom.

Frankie had an error for a time. Jackson hit a hot grounder straight at him and the ball scorer signalled that he had called it an error, but there were protests and he later stated that he had changed the decision and given Jackson a hit.

Overflow of Policemen.

The expected overflow crowd did not appear, and only the surplus policemen were on the field. They caused trouble in the third inning, when Southworth hit to left. Heine Mueller got tangled among the legs of several officers of the law, and Southworth, trying for four bases, was nailed at the plate.

However, Umpire Moran was on the job and called it interference by uniformed police, and ordered Southworth back to second. Soon after that Moran invited the police to beat it, and they did.

The attendance fell 6000 short of the record of 39,552, established last October at the third St. Louis game of the world series. Only 33,500 persons paid to see Lindbergh and the flag raising. But there were many more in the park.

Some Real Socking.

Six of the ten Cardinal hits were for extra bases. Bottomley hit a homer, Southworth a triple and a double, Bell a triple and Douthit and Holm doubles.

Southworth got his seventh consecutive safety before his string was broken. He hit safely on his last trip to the plate Wednesday, made four out of four Thursday and started with a triple and a double yesterday. His net time at bat he flied to right. Last time up he singled.

Today's game will conclude the Giants' series.

Cubs Cal. Tuesday.

Tomorrow is an open date and Tuesday the Chicago Cubs open a three-game series, with a double-header.

The Cardinals received their world championship rings before the game, Col. Lindbergh presenting them and shaking hands with each of the players.

President Heydler presented to Lindbergh a life-time pass to all National League games, a gold medal engraved with the flyer's name.

Bell's triple in the eighth inning would have been a home run a week ago. President Heydler, on request from Sam Breadon of the Cardinals, issued a ruling making a drive behind the protective screen a three-bagger, thus conforming with the American League rule.

Umpires in the National League are urging that foul lines be improved at Sportsman's Park. The foul line stops at the top of the bleacher and pavilion front wall and balls hit above that are up to the judgment of the umpires, if any.

Lindbergh Sees Home Run.

It makes it tough on some of the boys. A piece of iron pipe extending to the top of the grandstand and painted white, would make it much easier and more satisfactory to all concerned.

Foul bunts and home runs are all the same to Lindbergh. Not a quiver from the flyer when Bottomley hit a home run with two on, breaking a 2-to-2 tie. However, he wanted to see everything and when the flags draping his box blocked his view he asked that they be rearranged.

SPORT SALAD

The Bohemian Whirl.

(Old Songs Made New.)

WHEN other birds with other planes
Across the ocean skim,
At such a moment I would ask
That you'll remember "Slim."

He winged his solitary way
Across the sea and won;
For other birds he blazed the trail
And showed it could be done.

Alone, across the trackless deep,
Our modest hero sped;
And while he lost a lot of sleep,
He never lost his head.

When Kings were decorating him
Amidst the din and noise,
It didn't feaze the youthful Slim,
Who never lost his poise.

Midst rockets' blaze and bursting bomb
That sounded near and far,
Our unplumed Knight remained as calm
As Henry of Navarre.

When human fish in axle grease
Across the ocean swim,
At such a moment I would ask,
That you'll remember Slim!

Col. Lindbergh was glad to get back home where he has a wide circle of acquaintances and needed no letters of introduction.

Incidentally the "I knew him when—club" is holding daily sessions and the ring of hammer is heard on the anvil.

JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE.

THE shooting of a guy is not
Oft times a grievous sin;
For, we hear that Dan McGrew was shot
For reciting Gunga Din!

NICE WORK.

Announcement is expected shortly of the consolidation of about six trade and professional journals. Mentioned in the group are Barbers Journal, Beauty Culture and Perfumers Journal.—News item.

We take it that the better features are to be retained. Otherwise the Perfumers Journal will look like 30 cents.

LINDBERGH LULLABY.

OUR Lindy flies over the ocean
Our Lindy flies over the sea;

Bring back, bring back
Bring back the bacon to me, to me;
Bring back, bring back,
Bring back the bacon to me.

Good morning, is there anything in the paper about Lindbergh?

LOCAL ROWING CLUBS ENTERED IN REGATTA

All St. Louis rowing clubs are expected to be represented in the Central States Rowing Association regatta at Quincy, Ill., July 2 and 3. The entry list for the event closes tonight.

The committee has arranged for a river boat to take care of the delegation from St. Louis for the two-day affair, and details regarding the trip may be secured from officers of the rowing clubs.

Miss Joliet Is Winner in First Lap of Boat Race

Arrives at Joliet 2 Hours 35 Minutes After Leaving Chicago.

By the Associated Press.

JOLIET, Ill., June 18. — Miss Joliet, piloted by Helm Glass of this city, won the first lap of the Chicago to New Orleans motorboat race today when he arrived here on the 50-mile canal trip from Chicago in two hours and 35 minutes.

A crowd of 2000 people witnessed the finish. Miss New Orleans, Miss St. Louis, Miss Vicksburg, Miss Memphis, Miss Peoria, and Miss Chicago finished behind Glass in the order named.

Tonight the Joliet Chamber of Commerce held a reception and banquet for the drivers and presented Glass with a trophy for winning the first lap.

The boats leave Joliet early Sunday morning for Peoria, the destination of the racers on the second lap of their 1800-mile journey.

Hull Trophy to Victor.

PEORIA, Ill., June 18.—Members of the Illinois Valley Yacht Club will go to Henry early Sunday morning in motorboats to meet the racers from Chicago, according to James Lacey, commodore of the club. The racers are expected here at about 4 o'clock and will dock at Main street landing, spending Sunday night here. A banquet will be given for them at the Creve Coeur Club, and the Congressman William E. Hull trophy will be awarded the winner of the Joliet-Peoria lap.

The umpires, McCormick, Klem and McLaughlin, had a busy day keeping the would-be battlers apart. They aided in quelling the clashes and said they would report to President Heydler.

The Pirates won the game, 7 to 4.

HEYDLER TO ISSUE STATEMENT AFTER HE GETS UMPIRE'S REPORT

John A. Heydler, president of the National League, declared here tonight that he "certainly will investigate" the circumstances surrounding the encounter at Forbes Field, Pittsburg, this afternoon between Dave Bancroft, manager of the Boston Nationals, and Earl Smith, Pittsburg catcher.

"Such a thing certainly is regrettable," said President Heydler in commenting on the fight. "However, I cannot make a statement until I receive an official report on the affair from the umpires of the game."

"I am leaving with the Giants tonight for Cincinnati for a game there tomorrow. I probably will get the umpires' report on the fight there."

Later President Heydler changed his plans about going to Cincinnati after he had given consideration of the Pittsburg encounter. He said he would depart tonight for Chicago, where the Pirates will play the Cubs tomorrow, and that he undoubtedly would receive an official account of the affair there.

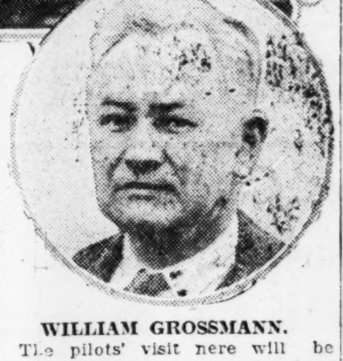
Boats in Chicago-New Orleans Race Will Reach Here Monday

"Miss St. Louis," Entered by William Grossman, Represents This City in Long-Distance Event.



WILLIAM GROSSMANN.

Motor boats in the Chicago to New Orleans race will reach here late Monday where their pilots will be the guests of officers of the St. Louis Yacht Club. Entrants in the race are competing for the Mayor William Hale Thompson trophy, the Mayor Victor J. Miller trophy, and other minor trophies.

St. Louis is represented in the race by "Miss St. Louis," piloted by William Grossman. The St. Louisan is an experienced motor boat pilot and he is conceded a good chance to finish first. Six other cities are represented.

The pilots' visit here will be marked with a banquet to be given on board the Steamer Cape Girardeau Monday at 6 o'clock.

William Hale Thompson's trophy will be a large engraved cup, and will be presented to the winner of the race, while the winner in the Peoria to St. Louis lap will be awarded the Victor Miller trophy. Awards to winners of additional laps will be made by other Mayors en route.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Not the Odor of Sanctity.

THE Chinese found out long ago that the "stink" bomb caused a disturbance, but won no battles.

The agitators of the recent wrestling investigation today must have arrived at the same conclusion. They now realize that they went into action with some high-smelling explosives, but no dynamite.

Hence, today all that remains of the legislative committee's delving is an odor, as of Shakspearean Denmark.

Dispatches yesterday stated that the investigating committee, while admitting that there was evidently something "high" in Chicago athletic circles, absolved the State Athletic Commission of complicity in the matter.

As the sole purpose of the investigation was to approve or condemn this body, its finding ended the matter. The committee puts its O K on the commission, the members of which were never really doubted by the public.

Too bad that the investigation should have ended with clearing the State commission. Broader powers might have enabled the committee not merely to find that the commission was not guilty, but to determine WHERE THE GUILT LAY!

Some day Uncle Sam or some other "go-getter" will take up this subject properly and collect evidence that will stick. Then the dynamite will explode ahead of the stink bomb.

Business of Charity.

AS A RESULT of last week's boxing benefit in New York Sid Terris, Ruby Goldstein and six other boxers who self-sacrificingly sold their services to charity, gained $102,000; the intended beneficiaries, the Catholic Boys' Societies, accumulated a deficit of $2000.

Charity, as usual, began at home, with the pugilists. Those big business men, captains of pugilistic industry, Terris and Goldstein, received between them $54,000 for working one minute 47 seconds!

Guarantees of $15,000, $10,000, $8000 and other large sums were paid to other boxers. Only one of them, Kid Kaplan, whose guarantee was $7500, had the grace to be charitable. The Kid refunded $1500 to the cause; but even that failed to lift the Catholic Boys out of the red ink.

Instead of Charity using the Boxing game to help its cause, Boxing is employing Charity to fatten its bank account.

Not all the sinners who are hiding under the well-remembered mantle, have yet been revealed. There may be a promoter or two in the woodpile.

Leonard $25,000, Charity $25.

CHICAGO had another such Charity show. Benny Leonard was guaranteed $25,000—and received it. Other fighters were paid off; also and the promoters.

The net amount left for CHARITY consisted of $25!

Tie it if you can.

Going Some.

ENGLISH horses and English men specialize in distance running. But for a long time Ethelbert, an American racehorse, held the world's record for 2¼ miles, established in 1900—3 minutes 49 1-5 seconds.

In a recent race at Lingfield, England, Dakota covered the 2¼ miles distance in 3 minutes 37 3-5 seconds, clipping 12 seconds from the mark set by Ethelbert.

The remarkable feature of Dakota's race was that he ran the first mile in 1:38.

It was the second time in 27 years that the record of Ethelbert was broken, the first fracture having been suffered in 1920, when Bracket, another English runner, accomplished the feat in 3:46 3-5.

Distance races in this country are almost extinct. Latonia still maintains a race at the regulation cup distance of 2¼ miles; and outside of steeplechases that about closes the list.

Even the mighty Man O' War was never raced over the cup route. His longest distance race was at 1⅝ miles, for which he still holds the record.

The betting action is too slow for the American bettor, who is trained by the national sport of African Golf to expect a quick turnover on his bank roll. Shorter races and more of them suit the American. But that doesn't improve the breed of horses, nor yet the corpulency of the bank roll.

ROWING CREWS IN TRAINING WORKOUTS AT POUGHKEEPSIE

By the Associated Press

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 18.—A stiff breeze from the south chopped up the surface of the Hudson river today and sent the crews here in training for the intercollegiate rowing association regatta on June 29, hustling to the east shore for their workouts. The water there was far from placid.

Dick Glendon sent his three Columbia crews out for a smart row this afternoon, starting them at the finish line and rowing to the start, the wind and tide at their backs.

Syracuse, Cornell and California were all out late in the afternoon and appeared to have trouble with the rough water.

Lieutenant Commander Kessing of the navy squad was busy today preparing for the arrival of the midshipmen tomorrow night.

UNIVERSITIES RENEW NONSCOUTING PACT

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18.—The crusade to eliminate scouting in Eastern college grid circles, sponsored last fall by Princeton and Yale universities, gained new impetus today with the announcement that their pact had been renewed for another year and four other elevens on the Tiger schedule had joined the nonscouting movement.

Dean Henry B. Fine, acting chairman of the Princeton Board of Athletic Control, in disclosing extension of the agreement to Amherst, Lehigh, Washington and Lee and William and Mary, said the proposal had been submitted to all elevens meeting the Tigers this fall. Although four responded favorably, Cornell asked that the matter be held in abeyance and Ohio State did not reply.

Triple A Tennis Tourney Opens

Wray Brown Defending Club Title—Seventy-Two Players Participating.

By Davison Obear.

Play in the annual tennis tournament for the championship of the Triple A Club opened yesterday afternoon, six matches in the singles being decided. The doubles event will open in a few days.

In the feature match of the singles, Harvey Frohlichstein defeated George Broeker, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5, in Class A.

Arthur Reppert, former city champion, Forrest Stuckman, St. Louis County title holder, and Fred Josties, a former Triple A champion, advanced to the second round of the championship class. Reppert won from William Bierman Washington University captain two years ago, Stuckman eliminated W. D. Dalrymple, while Josties defeated Harry Fassett.

Wray Brown, the present Triple A. champion, is defending his title in the singles. The 1926 doubles tournament was won by Fred Josties and Teddy Eggman, but this team will not be together this year. Eggman, who captained the Cornell University team the past year, will compete in the national intercollegiate championship at Philadelphia, which opens Saturday.

There are 72 players participating in the Triple A singles event. Of this number, 16 are entered in the championship class, Class A and Class B, while 24 will play in Class C. At least 24 teams will enter the men's doubles event.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Men's Singles.

Championship Class—A. Reppert defeated W. Bierman, 6—1, 6—3; F. Stuckman defeated W. Dalrymple, 6—2, 6—3; F. Josties defeated H. Fassett, 6—2, 6—3.

Class A—A. H. Frohlichstein defeated G. Broeker, 3—6, 6—1, 7—5.

Class B—Dr. F. Ailworth defeated E. Sherzer, 6—3, 7—5.

Class C—C. Beckett defeated H. G. Brouster, 6—1, 6—1.

Three additional committees to assist in the management of the Central States tennis championship to be played at the Triple A Club here during the week of July 2 have been appointed. Dr. Frank Diekneite is chairman of the tournament committee which was previously announced.

The committees are as follows:

Umpires—Eugene Sanders, chairman, Forrest Sruckman and Harvey Frohlichstein.

House and Grounds—W. D. Dalrymple, chairman, George Broeker and Fred Josties.

Entertainment—Joseph Werner, chairman, and Karl Hodge.

The above appointments were made by President Werner of the St. Louis District Tennis Association. Eugene Sanders, who heads the umpires and linesmen, is a member of the O'Fallon Park Tennis Club. He assisted Dr. Edgar M. Carson in the district indoor event and has had considerable experience as a tournament umpire.

CHICAGO BLOWS UP AND PHILADELPHIA TAKES GAME, 7 TO 2

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Bob Osborn blew up in the eighth inning after engaging Alex Ferguson in a pitching duel and Philadelphia bunched three hits with an error and two walks and two double steals, in which Wilson and Thompson each stole home in the eighth inning, to gain an even break in the four-game series with Chicago, by taking the final game, 7 to 2. The locals were able to bunch hits in only two innings off Ferguson for their markers.

LaBarba, Brody To End Training For Bout Tuesday

Sparring Partners Selected for Contenders in Flyweight Battle Tuesday.

Fidel La Barba, flyweight champion of the world, and Mike Brody, the speedy little Peoria challenger, plan to hold sparring workouts this afternoon and tomorrow at the National Gymnasium, to taper off training for their coming 10-round bout, scheduled as the main event of six professional glove contests making up Promoter Jack Tippett's program for an outdoor ring card at the St. Louis University Athletic Field next Tuesday night.

Tippett stated last night that he plans to have Johnny "Peewee" Kaiser, local featherweight champion, and Lawrence Hawkins, a dusky bantam scrapper, serve as sparring partners for La Barba in the champion's local workouts. Billy Cain, a local flyweight, has agreed to serve as a sparring mate of Brody.

The match between La Barba and Brody is the first flyweight attraction of world's championship distinction any local promoter has booked since the match between Jimmy Wilde of England and Johnny "Babe" Asher of this city, who fought at the Coliseum arena about seven years ago.

La Barba, a former National A. A. U. and Olympic amateur champion, annexed world's championship honors in the professional boxing game in August, 1925, when he won a 10-round decision over Frankie Genaro at Los Angeles, Cal. He successfully defended his crown against Lew Perfetti of New York City in December, 1925, and against Elky Clark, the European titleholder, last January.

Brody was introduced to local fistic fans about three weeks ago, when he won a popular decision over Jimmy Lucas of this city, in an eight-round prelim to the Kaiser-Steadman battle at the New Coliseum. The Peoria midget displayed rare punching skill and ring generalship in piling up a comfortable point margin over Lucas. Three decisions over Jimmy Russo, the Grand Rapids star, and victories over Frankie Mason, Jimmy Sayers, Kid Russell, Harry Forbes and Joe Ryschel are other high lights on Brody's pugilistic record.

Three California battlers will be introduced to local fans in preliminary events of Tuesday night's card. The outstanding prelim attraction in a light heavyweight event of 10 rounds, in which Joe Wood of Los Angeles, meets Tom Pivac of this city. Wood is a stablemate of Champion La Barba and his record indicates he is a comer. Pivac has won five successive bouts on knockouts.

Ad Allegrini, a Los Angeles middleweight, and former Olympic contender, is slated to oppose Tim Charles of Collinsville, Ill., in one of three preliminary bouts of six rounds each. Another six-rounder brings Harry Lee, a light heavyweight mauler from San Diego, Cal., against Mann Dugan of Plainview, Ill.

Eddie Burke and Buddy Schlereth, local lightweights, are slated to mingle in the other six-round go. This match will mark the professional debut of Burke, who formerly held the Western A. A. U. featherweight title.

Bill Johnson, a local middleweight, meets Norman Travis of Belleville, Ill., in a four-round bout carded as the curtain-raiser.

GEHRIG GETS YANKEES SIX RUNS; BROWNS LOSE, 8 TO 4

Lou Hits Two Homers Off Vangilder, Triples And Scores on Single Elam's Only Success Against Slugger Is When He Strikes Him Out With Bases Filled — Schang Drives Ball Over Fence.

By George W. Daley.
Of the New York World Sport Staff.

NEW YORK, June 18.—The Browns were beaten for the third straight in the present series here and the seventh time of the season this afternoon because they couldn't hit at opportune times. They had 15 men left on bases in a slugging battle with the Yankees, making 11 hits and receiving any number bases on balls.

The score was 8 to 4 and was the most interesting of the series to a large holiday crowd because the Browns were always threatening, though never getting anywhere.

Elam Vangilder pitched well to all the Yanks except Lou Gehrig. He had Ruth hog-tied, except for a single, but the first baseman was a different proposition. In the first Lou smacked a homer, for his sixteenth of the year, with two men on base, and in the eighth he cracked a second with one man on. He hit a triple in the fifth and scored on a single. All told, the Yankee first baseman was responsible for six of the Yanks' eight tallies, one way or another. Durst also flogged his old teammate for three hits, but they didn't count anywhere near as strong in the run-getting.

Dugan Banished from Game.

Twenty-two minutes were consumed in making two runs for the Browns in the first. O'Rourke hit the first ball for a single, but after that the action dragged. Melillo walked and Sisler popped to Lazzeri. With Miller at the plate, O'Rourke stole third—McGowan said he did—and Dugan kicked so hard over the decision that he was sent out of the game and Koenig went to short for the Yanks and Lazzeri to third base.

O'Rourke scored while Morehart was throwing out Rice after Miller had walked, and then Schulte also walked to fill the bags again. Schang drove a hot one to Koenig, who did well to stop it and the blow went for a single, scoring Melillo. The bases were still full when Gerber struck out.

Gehrig Busy Early.

It didn't take five minutes for the Yankees to erase the lead. Combs singled to center and when Melillo fumbled Morehart's slow grounder, which should have retired at least one man, both runners were safe. Ruth flied high to Schulte, but Gehrig hit Vangilder's first offering into the bleachers in right-center for his sixteenth homer. Durst's fly fell safe for a two-base hit in center, but Lazzeri and Koenig failed to send him home.

Vangilder squared the account in the Yank second. The Hugmen filled the bases on Grabowski's hit and passes to Combs and Ruth, but Gehrig fanned after whaling a ball over the right-field fence a dozen feet or so outside the foul line.

There were three innings of fine pitching and fine fielding, and then with two out in the fifth, Sisler singled to left and Morehart let Miller's hopper go through his legs for an error. Sisler beat Ruth's long throw to third by an eyelash, but after bringing the count to three and two, the best Rice could produce was a bounder to the box.

More New York Scores.

Gehrig came back at Vangilder in the Yankee fifth. He took a called ball after Ruth had rolled to Sisler and then smacked a three-bagger to left. Durst raised a high pop back of third base, which O'Rourke and Gerber, who might have made a catch, stood and watched, while Miller made a gallant attempt. He couldn't reach the wind-blown ball and it went for a hit, Gehrig scoring and Durst taking second on the fruitless throw to the plate. Koenig was passed and stole second and then Vangilder passed Grabowski, who had made two hits. It was bad strategy, for Thomas dropped a Texas League single in center for two more runs.

His success as a batter affected Thomas. He passed Schulte in the sixth and Schang after letting a ball pass, hoisted a long drive into the right stands. Williams batted for Gerber and lined to Ruth, but Vangilder was safe on Koenig's fumble.

Thomas Goes to Showers.

O'Rourke tapped to the box, but instead of throwing to second for a sure double play, Thomas tossed to first and Vangilder went to second unmolested. Thomas thought there were two out. He learned better when he passed Bennett, hitting for Melillo, and Sisler rammed a hit to right to fill the bases, for Thomas was taken out and Moore went in to the box. He retired Miller by an eyelash on a great pick up and throw by Koenig.

The Browns had two men left on bases in the seventh and three in the eighth. The Yanks made no such waste of powder. Morehart was safe on a bunt in the eighth and then Gehrig lammed his second four-bagger of the day.

Mad Bull Leads Marathon Field

By the Associated Press.

SCOTIA, Cal., June 18.—Chochee, the 48-year-old Zuni Indian in the 480-mile Redwood Highway Marathon from San Francisco to Grants Pass, Ore., was reported held this afternoon at Pepperwood, eight miles south of Scotia and about 10 miles behind Mad Bull, Karook, Ore., leader in the race, begun Tuesday. A physician was called to examine Chochee and reports were that he was considered in poor condition.

Chochee was sent on the road last night by his American trainer, Mike Kirk, with instructions to overtake Mad Bull if possible. For 15 hours the Zuni Indian strained every muscle to catch his adversary and at one time was within one mile and a half of the leader. He covered approximately 50 miles before stopping at Pepperwood, 263 miles north of the San Francisco starting point. Mad Bull started from Scotia apparently fresh and smiling.

If Chochee were forced to quit the race it would mean that Mad Bull would lead the remaining Indians by 21 miles, for Melika, the 51-year-old Zuni runner, and Flying Cloud, Karook runner, were 13 miles south of Pepperwood late today.

Twelve miles behind Melika and Flying Cloud was Falcon, Karook; one and one-half miles behind him was Fighting Stag, Karook; eight and two-tenths miles behind him was Rushing Water and 20 miles back of him were Sweet Eagle and Big White Deer, both Karooks.

NATIONAL HANDBALL CHAMPION WILL PLAY EXHIBITION AT Y. M. C. A.

George Nelson, national handball champion, winner of the recent A. A. U. matches in Detroit, will play exhibition matches in the courts of the new Downtown Y. M. C. A. Wednesday and Thursday, June 22 and 23, against the best handball talent in St. Louis. His opponent in the first match will be "Mike" Cunningham, St. Louis entry in the national tournament and former city champion. The other member of the St. Louis team in the Detroit championship, J. Srenco, will compete for the opportunity to meet the champion in a play-off between W. Kamman, Robert Larmore and J. Kessler.

Nelson at the Detroit Athletic Club went through the best field that has ever entered a national handball championship with comparative ease. He played six matches in six days and did not lose a single game. The greatest number of points scored against him in the two game matches that he needed to continue on his victorious way was 31.

Nelson is a receiving cashier with the Pullman company in Baltimore, Md. He is 31 years old and has been playing handball since he was in his teens.

It is an unusual fact that Baltimore, the home of the champion, has only two handball courts and these of the odd size, 39 by 19 feet. The courts at the "Y," where the St. Louis matches will be played are of standard size, 40 by 20 feet.

Intentional Slice, or Fade, Useful Shot if Controlled, Says Jones

Few Players Have Understanding of What Makes Deflection and in Trying to Avoid It Cause It.

Chief Advantage Lies in Combatting Right or Left Wind to Keep Ball on Fairway.

By Robt. T. Jones Jr.
(British Open and Southern Open Champion.)

BOBBY JONES.

It has occurred to me that it might be of greater assistance to one plagued with hooking or slicing to gain a better understanding of the most likely causes of the trouble than to be told exactly what should be done to correct it. It is often a mistake, I think, simply to say to a person that he should swing his club in a particular manner. It seems far better, to me, to explain just why the ball continues to go off line. The pupil is then able to understand why certain changes will help and he is in a better position to follow instructions.

I am quite sure that every golfer has been wont to regard a golf ball as endowed with a diabolical spirit which causes it always to seek the spots which the player is most anxious to avoid. A boundary fence or yawning bunker seems to have a magnetizing effect upon the ball. But the explanation lies in the fact that few players have a proper understanding of just what causes a hook or slice, and in trying to avoid either they do exactly what is required to produce the dreaded result.

I know of no better way to explain the cause of slicing than to describe my conception of the manner of producing an intentional fade. After all the controlled fading shot differs only in degree from the unintended slice which usually ends in trouble.

What Makes a Slice.

To be able to produce a fade or slice it is necessary to know just what is meant to be done. The primary object is to have the face of the club open or turned outward slightly at impact. That means that the hands and shaft must be in advance of the club-head, and the path of the club-head should be perceptibly across the line of play if more than a little spin is desired.

I find that it is seldom necessary to alter the stance materially or to shift the position of the ball with respect to the feet, unless I want a virtual rainbow curve. I usually address the ball in ordinary fashion except that my left shoulder, possibly, is drawn a little back from the line of play, and I may stand a very little closer to the ball than I should do for a straight shot. The position at address should be designed to restrict the turn of the body on the backward swing so that the plane of the stroke will be on the upright side.

This much can be said with fair certainty, but I dot not care to be understood as doing much more than merely guessing in what I am now going to say.

It has always seemed to me that the most necessary part of the golf stroke is the forward motion of the left shoulder and knee at the beginning of the downward stroke, and I think that it is the exaggeration of this movement which is the primary cause of the left to right drift of the ball. This motion tends to throw the weight forward and to cause the body to forge ahead of the hands and club. It is made up almost wholly of a lateral shift with little in the nature of turning.

All this makes for late hitting, that is, the right hand lags and the club head does not come around squarely to the ball, the face remaining open at impact.

After the ball is struck the hands and arms do not go out toward the hole, but slip inside the line of flight and to the left of the objective.

Use Fade Against Wind.

Up to what is properly the finish of the actual stroke and until the muscles relax again and the club goes up over the shoulder of its own momentum, the back of the left hand and the palm of the right are upward. But this is merely the result of what has gone before and not an end in itself. The finish simply indicates that the wrists have not turned over and that the right hand has been more or less subdued in the hitting.

The chief use which I have found for an intentional fade in driving is in combating a right or left wind. British players, having grown accustomed to bothersome breezes, are audacious enough to ride a wind of this kind with a pull or hook and thereby gain considerable length. My attitude, however, when confronted by a side wind has been one purely of defense. I am quite happy to sacrifice a few yards in order to keep the ball in the fairway. A little fading spin to counteract the force of the wind gives very good control.

Often, too, a fade is useful to hold the ball on a dry sloping fairway, or to avoid a dangerous place on the left. When attempting to drive a straight ball, it is impossible to foresee on which side the error will lie, but if the intent is to slice there is little chance of being off line to the left.

INDUSTRIAL TRACK AND FIELD MEET OF Y. M. C. A. SATURDAY

The Wagner Electric team will try to repeat its winning performance of last year at the second annual track and field meet next Saturday at Beaumont High School Field, sponsored by the Y. M. C. A.

Three track events, two relays and three field events compose the program, which starts at 2 p. m. The 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, the 220, running high jump, running broad jump, shotput, quarter-mile relay and half-mile relay are the events.

Each industry will be allowed as a maximum four entries in each event and one team in the relays. An individual may compete in four events other than relays.

Employes of any industry may compete in the meet who qualify according to the eligibility rules of the City-wide Industrial A. A., chief of which is the one which states a participant must have been employed at least 30 days before participation.

A trophy will be awarded to the winning team and gold, silver and bronze charms will be awarded to first, second and third place winners, respectively.

17-YEAR-OLD CHICAGOAN WINS MARYLAND NET CROWN OVER BOWMAN

BALTIMORE, Md., June 18.—Emmett Pare 17-year-old Chicagoan, today won the State open tennis championship tournament by defeating Herbert Bowman, New York veteran, in a hard-fought five-set final, 6—1, 1—6, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3.

A change of tactics in the fourth and fifth sets, after Bowman seemed to have solved the youngster's hard driving service, pulled the match out of the fire for Pare. He went to the net at every opportunity in the last two sets, refusing to be led into the base-line play of the New Yorker, who was not so capable of covering the court and playing the net.

Armour's Victory Is Lesson That Persistence Eventually Will Win Success in Life

Starting With Injury to Arm and Loss of Sight in One Eye During War, New Open Golf Champion Has Had Numerous Setbacks.

By Ray McCarthy.

OAKMONT, Pa., June 18.—Tommy Armour's great victory in the thirty-third annual open golf championship of the United States offers a splendid lesson to all young men. The black-haired, slender Scot has given all youngsters a fine example of how persistence will eventually win success.

For nearly ten years, dating back to the first year of the World War, Armour has had enough setbacks to flatten a dozen ordinary mortals. He suffered a severe injury to his left arm and the loss of sight in one eye during the war.

The war seemed to have imbued him with a sort of reckless philosophy, although things broke badly for him. His golf game soared, but after a rosy start he was a flop. So everybody thought he was through. Three years ago Armour turned over a new leaf. He decided to earn his living at the thing he could do best, namely golf.

Takes Work Seriously.

He took his profession seriously and went to work at it. In the open tournament at Worcester two years ago he made a creditable showing. In the tournament at Sciota he did better than the previous year. He carried on during last year wel land finaly came to the goal all professional golfers seek—an American open championship.

Armour well deserved to win his laurels at Oakmont. He played the most consistent golf of any competitor in the tournament.

It was quite interesting to observe the differences in the styles of Armour and "Lighthouse" Harry Cooper as they fought it out in the playoff Friday. Armour showed himself to be a wonderfully fine shot maker in every respect.

Harry Cooper, who is just turned 24, deserves credit for his wonderful showing. This is his second open championship entry. He first came into prominence in January, 1926, when he captured the $10,000 open at Los Angeles.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Six meet records were broken and three were tied as the Illinois A. C. won the team title in the Central A. A. U. track and field championships at Soldiers' Field today.

The I. A. C. scored an overwhelming total of 133 points, smothering the Chicago A. C., in second place, with 47 points. The winners scored in each of the 20 events.

Athletes representing Northwestern University scored 15 points. Other points were scored as follows: Illinois 9, Chicago 5, unattached 8.

Records for the meet were broken by Herman Phillips of the I. A. C., former Butler star, in the 440; Herbert Schwartz, Wisconsin athlete, in the shotput; "Phin" Guthrie, former Ohio state hurdler; Della Maria, Notre Dame dash star; Johnny Sittig, Illinois half-miler, and Douglas Graydon, former Little Rock (Ark.) high school star, in the javelin.

Guthrie's mark of :23.8 in the low hurdles, with his second place in the high hurdles made him high point man of the meet.

Sittig's half-mile in 1:54.2 and Graydon's 200-foot throw in the javelin were outstanding performances.

The defeat of Harold Osborne, Olympic high jumper, by Anton Burg of the University of Chicago was a surprise. Burg won with a leap of six feet, 4 1-4 inches.

Gwinn of Pittsburgh, national collegiate hammer throw champion, won his specially with a toss of 150 feet, 8 inches.

Professor a Pitcher.

New Orleans has a professor on its pitching staff and Owner Heinemann hopes he knows his subject. The new man is Mac King, who comes from Tulane University, where he teaches biology.

MRS. HORN WINS WOMEN'S T.-M. GOLF TOURNEY

Defeats Mrs. O. S. Hill, 6 and 4, and Takes Title; Defending Champion Badly Off Game.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 18.—Long drives and accurate putting for par scores today gave Mrs. Miriam Burns Horn, Kansas City, a 6 and 4 victory over the defending champion, Mrs. O. S. Hill, Kansas City, and the title in the women's transmississippi golf tournament.

Mrs. Horn, former Western champion, ended the 36-hole final match at the Blue Hills Club on the thirty-second green when she sank her put for a par 4, while Mrs. Hill was taking five.

Mrs. Hill was badly off her game at times, dropping two holes to Mrs. Horn on the first nine of the morning round and three more going out in the afternoon.

The new champion went out on the morning round in par 41, while Mrs. Hill took a 43. Coming in, however, Mrs. Hill matched Mrs. Horn hole for hole, both taking par 40s.

On the first nine of the afternoon round the defending champion again was off her game, taking a 46, five over par, while Mrs. Horn had a 42. For the five holes of the final nine played, Mrs. Horn was one under par and Mrs. Hill had par.

The cards:

Morning Round.

Mrs. Horn:
Out ...6 6 4 3 5 4 4 5 4—41

RYDER CUP GOLFERS TRAIL CANADIANS IN MEDAL PLAY

By the Associated Press.

TORONTO, Ont., June 18.—Members of the British Ryder Cup Golf Team, which lost to the United States players at Worcester, trailed Canadian professionals in 36-hole medal play here today. First and second places went to golfers from western Canada and another from that section tied the leading Britisher for third.

Shooting the best golf of the day, Jimmy Rimmer of Jasper Park turned in an afternoon round of 69, four under par, for a card of 76-69—145. Two strokes behind for second was Davie Black of Shaughnessy Heights, Vancouver, with a 75-72—147.

Arthur Havers topped his fellow Ryder Cup players with a 149 for a tie for third with Eric Bannister of the St. Charles Club of Winnipeg. Herbert Jolly of the British team scored a 151 for fifth honors.

Prizes of $1,000 each, donated by the Toronto Golf Club, went to Bannister and Rimmer for the best morning and afternoon rounds, respectively. Jolly's 73 in the morning gave him second for the round and a $50 prize, while Black, with his 72, won a similar reward in the afternoon.

ST. LOUIS STARS WIN OPENING GAME WITH CLEVELAND TEAM, 8-1

The St. Louis Stars of the Negro National Baseball League defeated the Cleveland Hornets in the opening game of the series at the Stars' park yesterday by a score of 8 to 1. Bobo led the batting attack with four hits in five trips to the plate.

Bell's leaping catch of Watts' long fly in center field and Wells' single-handed catch of Riggins' line drive were the fielding features of the game. Creacy collected a home run in the fifth inning.

The second game of the series will be played this afternoon.

PEANUTS BEATS CHANCE PLAY IN BROOKLYN HANDICAP

GETS UP IN LAST STRIDES TO WIN RACE

Mile and Furlong of Event, Valued at $13,500, Is Run in Near-Record Time of 1:48 4-5.

By G. F. T. Ryall

Of the New York World Sport Staff.

APUEDUCT, N. Y., June 18.—R. L. Gerry's Peanuts, beaten a head in the Brooklyn Handicap a year ago, beat Chance Play that much in the thirty-ninth running of the classic before some 20,000 frantic persons here this afternoon.

The game little 5-year-old son of Ambassador IV and Agnes Said, under the light weight of 112 pounds, followed the pace to the last sixteenth of the mile and a furlong and then came on to win in the remarkable time of 1:48 4-5, a fifth of a second behind his own world's record. Display was third.

Crusader, with Sande in the saddle, showed nothing of his Suburban Handicap form and finished fifth. However, it developed after the running of the race that the son of Man O' War was badly kicked while at the post.

Chance Play Sets Pace.

Stunning as was the defeat of Crusader, an odds-on favorite, it wos not nearly so much as the running of Chance Play. The son of Fair Play and Quelle Chance set the pace for more than eight furlongs, running the mile in the surprising time of 1:36, and looked the winner 50 yards from the winning post.

All 10 of the horses named overnight paraded to the post and after a three-minute delay, caused by the bad manners of Display, the barrier went up.

Peanuts broke running and led for the first sixteenth, but Chance Play took the track away from him before they had gone a furlong. Our General, Pompey and Black Maria were closest to the pace, while Crusader was in the ruck with Espino, Light Carbine, Dangerous and Display.

Peanuts Comes to Front.

Chance Play opened up a length or two as they spun down the back stretch, but Peanuts hung on with all the gameness for which the little horse is noted. The Fair Play colt increased his advantage to three lengths as they rounded the stretch turn and Peanuts was twice that in front of Light Carbine, which had moved up fast as they left the back stretch.

Straightening for home, it looked as though Chance Play had enough left to breeze home for Crusader seemed to be in trouble and Black Maria, which had passed Light Carbine began to tire.

Peanuts was the gamest horse for his inches and pounds on the rack track and a quarter of a mile from home, Thurber began to work on him. Stride by stride he lessened the distance between the leaders, but as the winning post neared, it looked as though he could not make it.

Winner Earns $13,150.

Inside the furlong pole, he caught Chance Play but the big chestnut still had something left. Peanuts kept on charging and drew level in the last 30 yards. A half dozen strides from the finish he got his nose in front.

Display, as he usually does, ran over horses in the last furlong to be third, a length in front of Pompey.

The fractional times show the pace, they were: :24, :47, 1:12, 1:36, 1:48 4-5.

In winning the Brooklyn Handicap, Peanuts earned $13,150 for the Aknousti Stable, the nom de course of R. L. Gerry during his period of mourning.

Illinois Girl	102	7	8	7^{3}	9	9	9	C. Yates	82.40

Post Mistress raced closeup and forced the pace for a half, then took the lead and held Chesterbrook safe to the end. The latter saved much ground racing on the inside and was wearing the winner down in the last 70 yards. Kindred raced well up all the way and held on resolutely. Mickey Free showed early speed and Hidalgo was away poorly.

$2 mutuels paid: Post Mistress, win $31, place $9.90, show $4.50; Chesterbrook, place $4.60, show $3; Kindred, show $3.50.

SECOND RACE—$1000 added, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, six furlongs—Start good, won easily, place driving. Went to post at 2:31; at post one minute. Winner, ch. g. 4, by Atheling II—Phedodin. Trainer, I. Hinton. Time, :23 1-5, :47, 1:13 3-5. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100.

Seeress	106	5	9	10	10	10	10	R. Moser	498.25

Booze Beyer displayed much the most speed, raced into a long lead and won eased up. Forelady, far back for half a mile, closed a gap quickly in the stretch, outfinishing Johnny Campbell. Latter also made up ground and finished gamely. Dr. Glenn raced close up to the stretch, then raced wide, losing much ground and tired. Play Hour showed early speed and so did Lucent. Louisville and Nashville lacked his recent good form.

$2 mutuels paid: Booze Beyer, win $25.80, place $11.30, show $5.70; Forelady, place $8.90, show $4.20; Johnny Campbell, show $4.80.

Open Fire	112	7	4	3^{2}	3^{2}	6^{2}	7½	8	G. Wilson	7.60

Tick Tock raced restrained for a half mile, then responded quickly when urged hard, overhauled the leaders on the inside entering the stretch and held sway to the end. Bray Annie set a good pace for six furlongs, then held on well to the end. Arrow Hawk raced forwardly, forced pace to the stretch, then tired slightly in the last eighth. Stars and Stripes closed some ground. Blah tired. Open Fire went well for the first half mile, then quit badly.

$2 mutuels paid: Tick Tock, win $6.40, place $3.90, show $3.60; Bray Annie, place $12.70, show $7.30; Arrow Hawk, show $6.50.

FOURTH RACE—$1000 added, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, six furlongs—Start good, won driving and place same. Went to post at 3:32; at post one minute. Winner, b. g. 4, by Westy Hogan—Veracity. Trainer, J. Reed. Time, :23 3-5, :47 4-5, 1:13 2-5. Value to winner, $700; second, $200; third, $100.

Adieu	105	5	6	6	6	6	6	R. Moser	37.65

Estin forced a fast pace for a halfmile, then raced Orbit into defeat in the stretch and held Henry Sommers in the final 70 yards. Latter gained ground gradually and finished with a rush, outgaming The Hovel. Latter was forced to race on the outside all the way, but held on well to the end and outfinished Orbit. Latter set a fast pace for half a mile but began tiring fast in the stretch and stopped badly in the 50 yards. Word of Honor was taken back when in the lead in the first quarter, making a poor showing.

$2 mutuels paid: Estin, win $13.10, place $6.40, show $3.70; Henry Sommers, place $6, show $3.80; The Hovel, show $3.60.

aMcLean and Audley Farm entry.

Arch Duchess, well managed, closely followed the early pace set by American Thunder to the stretch turn, then gamely wore down the latter in the final furlong and won with speed in reserve. American Thunder displayed splendid speed and raced away with a long lead, then tired when the winner challenged, but held on gamely to outfinish Aleader. Latter was away slowly, improved her position gradually and finished fast and gamely on the outside. Soiree had no mishaps and just got up to nose out Narva, which raced well for the first half mile, tiring in the final 70 yards. Portia went well for the first half mile. Lila G. and Cherokee Maid were soon outpaced.

$2 mutuels paid: Arch Duchess, win $8.60, place $5.30, show $4.10; American Thunder, place $12, show $5.20; Aleader, show $3.70.

SIXTH RACE—$1000 added, claiming, The Springfield, 3-year-olds and up, 1¼ miles: Start good, won handily and same place. Went to post 4:31. At post 1 minute. Happy Bob set a good pace under restraint for the first seven-eighths, was shaken up mildly in the final eighth and held Ocean Current safe to the end. Latter raced closer up than usual, challenged strongly in the stretch, but was unable to menace the winner. Indianapolis was away slowly, made up ground and finished going well. Sir Maurice saved much ground racing on the inside and closed a gap in the stretch. Pride showed early speed but gave way after going six furlongs.

$2 mutuels paid: Happy Bob, win $5.30, place $3.20, show $2.90; Ocean Current, place $4.20, show $3.20; Indianapolis, show $4.30.

*Field.

Seldom Seen, away into a safe lead and never seriously threatened, easily won all the way. Becky Sue improved her position quickly after going a half mile and, challenging the leaders in the stretch, outgamed Starless. Latter raced prominently and held on well to the finish. Holly Boy displayed good early speed and stayed well to the last eighth, then tired. Gay Hallie closed a gap, but also tired at the end. Rosovia made up much ground from a slow beginning.

$2 mutuels paid: Seldom Seen, win $13.90, place $7.10, show $4.80; Becky Sue, place $31.90, show $13.10; Starless, show $4.50.

EIGHTH RACE—$1000 added, claiming, 4-year-olds and up, one and one-sixteenth miles—Start good; won driving; place same. Went to post 5:31. At post 1 minute. Winner, b. g., 5, by Sweep On-Biddy McGee. Battle On, restrained for half mile, slowly improved position and responding well to hard riding in the stretch, wore down Tippity Witchet and held the latter safe to the end. Tippity Witchet raced close up, also was restrained to the stretch, then passed Captain Fox and took the lead but was no match for the winner when challenged. Prince K. raced far back for six furlongs, then closed a wide gap and finished fast. Captain Fox tired after setting the pace to the stretch turn. Spearo was done in the stretch.

$2 mutuels paid: Battle On, win $8.40, place $5.00, show $3.60; Tippity Witchet, place $3.60, show $2.80; Prince K., show $3.30.

aIsland Farm entry.

Happy Time, away fast, showing most speed, swerved out badly after reaching last furlong and under mild pressure, outstayed Toro. Latter, close up and saving much ground first half mile, moved to winner with a rush in stretch, suffered from being carried out by winner and began tiring near end. Kentucky Ace went forwardly and saved ground entire trip. Charley J. S bore out badly at stretch turn. Cartago finished fast. Gold Handle showed nothing. Col Shaw was badly outrun and eased near end.

$2 mutuels paid: Happy Time, win $5.40, place $2.80, show $2.40; Toro place $4.20, show $3.80; Kentucky Ace, show $4.20.

aJ. E. Griffith entry; bJ. W. Parrish entry.

Single Foot began rapidly, displayed fine speed, racing wide and swerving out at stretch turn, was taken under restraint and easily held Percentage safe despite continued bearing out in the last furlong. Percentage raced in closest pursuit of winner from start, followed winner far out into track at stretch, made game finish but was overmatched. Cotlogomor, away very slow and racing far back first five furlongs, closed with a rush and was going best at end. Rolled Stocking swerved badly entire trip. Canter was done at stretch turn. Nedda and Rothermel bumped when nearing stretch and both quit thereafter.

$2 mutuels paid: Single Foot, win $7.20, place $3.40, show $2.80; Percentage, place $3, show $2.60; Cotlogomor, show $4.40.

*Field.

La Morte, racing in much improved form and away fast, moved into the lead with a rush, and holding on gamely for the entire trip, just lasted. Presidential, also away forwardly and forced to race wide in early stages, came with a rush through stretch and was going faster than winner at the end. Chaff was a strong factor for the entire trip. The Huguenot also showed a good effort and tired only near the end. Colonel Seth had no mishaps. Chink was a strong contender at the stretch turn, where he bolted.

$2 mutuels paid—La Morte, win $24.80, place $13, show $6; Presidential, place $16.90, show $7; Chaff, show, $4.30.

SECOND RACE—$1200, claiming, 3-year-olds and up, 1¼ miles: Start good; won handily; place driving. Went to post at 2:49; at post 1 minute. Winner—Br h 6 by George Smith-Coy Maid. Trainer—P. M. Burch. Time—:24 3-5, :50, 1:16 4-5, 1:44 4-5, 1:56 4-5, 2:09 3-5. (New track record.) Value to winners—$850, $225, $117, $50.

Try Again	106	2	5	4^{1}	4^{h}	6	5^{1}	6	P. Snow	8.05

Dixie Smith raced restrained for the first mile, saved much ground in last quarter and won well in hand. Hawk Eye was restrained and moved up fast when called on but bolted at stretch turn and could never recover fully thereafter. Kinsley showed a good effort and held on well. Bosh began tiring after showing the most speed for the first mile. Far Over and Try Again were done when reaching the stretch.

$2 mutuels paid: Dixie Smith win $7.10, place $4.10, show $3.30; Hawk Eye, place $3.70, show $2.90; Kinsley, show $3.90.

aH. G. Bedwell entry. bLa Brea Stable entry.

Bulletin broke fast and took a good lead in the first quarter, held on gamely in stretch and outstayed Rival. Latter had no mishaps and finished going strong. Scotland showed a good effort and finished with a rush. Sandy Man was far out of it for half mile but saved much ground and finished strong. Orestes II was given a bungling ride and raced poorly. Little Cyn and Senator Norris retired in the stretch.

$2 mutuels paid: Bulletin, win $9.00, place $4.20, show $3.20; Rival, place $3.80, show $3.10; Scotland, show $3.30.

FOURTH RACE—$1500, The Oakwood Handicap: 3-year-olds and up, 1 mile out of the chute): Start good; won driving and place same. Went to post at 4:10; at post 3 minutes. Winner—Ch. f. 3 by Man O' War-Yokohama. Trainer—C. E. Durnell. Time—:24, :47 3-5, 1:13, 1:39. Value to winners—$1000, $330, $170, $50.

Arabian	97	1	7	7	7	7	7	7	L. Jenner	22.75

Yeddo, restrained for three-quarters, disposed of Cudgeller with ease when called upon, and held Flagstaff safe during final drive. Flagstaff began slowly and gained steadily during stretch, finishing fast. Iron Mask II closed a big gap during last furlong. Jack Alexander had no mishaps and tired in stretch. Cudgeller showed fine speed for three-quarters before tiring badly. Devon was outrun. Arabian was beaten off after the start.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Yeddo, win $7, place $3.50, show $3.20; Flagstaff, place $3.70, show $3.50; Iron Mask II, show $5.

Bird Behave began fast and, racing prominently in early stages, wore down Myrtle Belle in last sixteenth. Latter was a prominent contender in early stages and, disposing of Finland, seemed to have race won, but tired. Latter held on fairly well. Foreland would have been a stronger factor with more vigorous handling. Majoe closed a good gap. Eager had no mishaps.

$2 mutuels paid: Bird Behave, win $22.50, place $9.20, show $4; Myrtle Belle, place $6.40, show $3.10; Finland, show $2.80.

MISS THAYER WINS EASTERN NET TITLE

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Miss Mary Dixon Thayer of the Merion Cricket Club, today won the Pennsylvania and Eastern States Women's Tennis Championship by defeating her clubmate, Mrs. M. B. Huff, 6-1, 6-3 in the final round.

Miss Thayer thus gained permanent possession of the challenge cup, having won the title twice previously, in 1920 and 1924.

ARCH DUCHESS IS CLOSE TO TRACK RECORD IN WINNING

FINE STRETCH RUN GIVES FILLY THE 'ILLINOIS'

Two-Year-Old Is Daughter of Black Toney, Sire of Black Gold; Several Long Prices at Fairmount.

By Dent McSkimming

There was an echo of the Kentucky Derby of 1924 in the air at Fairmount Race Track yesterday afternoon when Arch Duchess won the $5,000 Illinois stakes. The handsome Duchess is a 2-year-old daughter of that famous sire, Black Toney, and it was Black Gold, a son of this same Black Toney, which won the derby in 1924.

Arch Duchess has something more than mere pedigree to make her owner, H. Teller Archibald, confident that she will develop into an outstanding purse winner. In this, the second start of her career, she all but equaled the track record, covering the 5½ furlongs in 1:06 4-5 the best time ever made at the track is 1:06.

American Thunder, breaking fast from the outside post position, passed the other seven contestants and reached the rail with a lead of two lengths before they had traversed a quarter of the distance home. And American Thunder, a big dark brown filly, maintained her long stride and threatened to run away with the race. But the daughter of Black Toney was not far away and as they turned into the stretch, Jockey R. G. McDermott found an opening on the rail a. American Thunder swung wide and he shot the Duchess through. She responded to McDermott's urging and was winning in an easy, convincing way as they passed the judges' stand. The thundering American Thunder was second and Aleader third.

14,000 at Track.

The Lindbergh celebration in St. Louis probably was responsible for the tardiness of the crowd. When the horses went to the post in the first race there were scarcely more than 7,500 persons in the grounds but before the start of the third race, there were nearly 14,000 present.

Post Mistress Upsets Form.

Chesterbrook, Kindred and Polymel, all previous winners, took the crowd's attention in the pre-race wagering on the opening event, but when it came to actual running the race went to Post Mistress. Micky Free had the advantage for a fleeting moment, just after the rise of the barrier, but for the remainder of the six furlongs Post Mistress showed them all how to run.

Chesterbrook was only a half length behind reaching the stretch and Kindred was making a move as if to overtake them both, but Post Mistress refused to weaken and came through a winner, paying $31 for $2.

Louisville and Nashville Loses.

The thing which many prognosticators have been looking for finally came to pass when Louisville and Nashville, winner of five straight races, was beaten in the second event on the card. The 6-year-old gelding was not alone beaten but finished second to last in a field of 10 starters. Jockey Root could get no speed out of his mount and it is probable that the winner of five straight is raced out for the present.

Shakspeare Was Good Playwright But a "Bust" as "Rassling" Expert

Also a False Alarm on Women; Rosalind a Pale "Frail" Type Compared to Her Sister of Today; Celia Just a "Yes" Girl.

By Jack Alexander.

WILL SHAKESPEARE has been accused of writing some pretty sophisticated stuff but in the matter of wrestling he was just one of the $5.50 boys.

The following scene from "As You Like It" ought clearly to demonstrate to those who would expurgate the dramatist that, after all, he was just an innocent guy with a flair for blank verse. Here is how he would tell of the wrestling match, in the first act:

Ros.—Now Hercules be thy speed, young man!

Cel.—I would I were invisible, to catch the strong fellow by the leg. (They wrestle.)

Ros.—O, excellent, young man!

Cel.—If I had a thunderbolt in mine eye, I can tell you who should down. (Shout. Charles is thrown.)

Duke F.—No more, no more.

To those followers of the sport to whom Shakspeare is just part of the game of authors, it may be explained that Ros. (Rosalind) is the gal of one of the "mat artists." By the way she roots for him, it may be guessed that she has a strong crush on her baby. Cel. (Celia) is her "most intimate friend." The boy friend's name is Orlando and Charles is the defeated villain. The Duke is just one of the props.

Enter the "Artists."

Had he been hep to his onions, Will might have put it thus:

Ros.—Well, Kid, the prelims is over.

Cel.—Yea bo, now for the main agony.

Ros.—Holy cats, ain't "The Crusher" built like a Mack truck?

Cel.—You tell 'em, Oscar. He'd sink the St. Paul. But say, John the Greek ain't no starved Armenian.

Ros.—No, he's a pretty tough berry. But "The Crusher" won't take no chances with him. He'll put a headlock on that artichoke which John calls his head and model it into a door knob. "The Crusher" says to me last night, he says, "Kid, soak your diamonds and bet on me." He was that confident.

Cel.—He's a prince of a guy. You're sure a lucky bird.

Ros.—Yeah? So was Cleopatra and Cholly Lindbergh.

Cel.—He's bowing to you, kid!

Ros.—I'm grinning, ain't I? Should I laugh and spoil him?

Cel.—I wasn't beefing, honey.

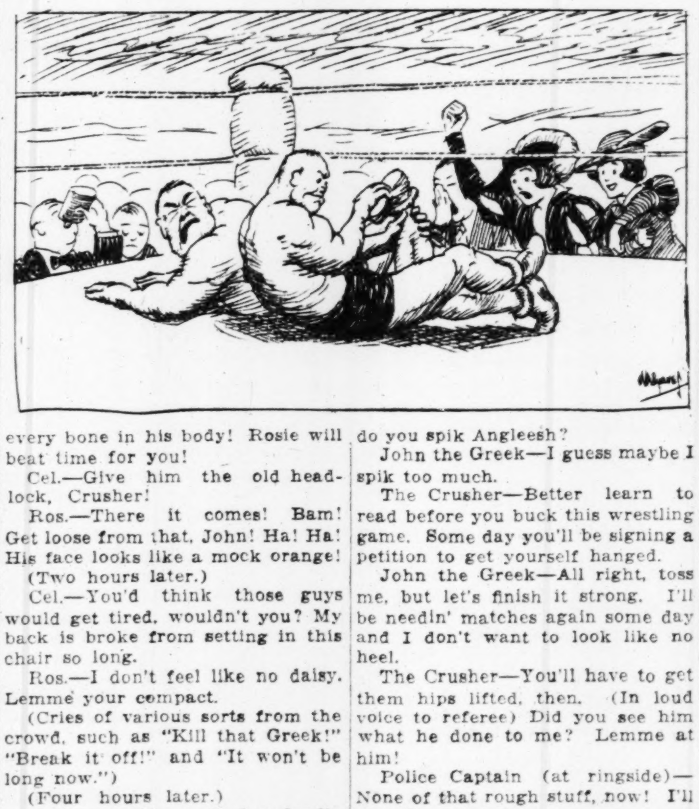
Ros.—Keep your lip buttoned.

Cel.—There they go! Wow, what a grip!

Ros.—I told you "The Crusher" had a wristlock, too, didn't I?

Cel.—Break it off! He's no bargain!

Ros.—Crack it, kiddo! Crack every bone in his body! Rosie will beat time for you!



Cel.—Give him the old headlock, Crusher!

Ros.—There it comes! Bam! Get loose from that, John! Ha! Ha! His face looks like a mock orange!

(Two hours later.)

Cel.—You'd think those guys would get tired, wouldn't you? My back is broke from setting in this chair so long.

Ros.—I don't feel like no daisy. Lemme your compact.

(Cries of various sorts from the crowd, such as "Kill that Greek!" "Break it off!" and "It won't be long now.")

(Four hours later.)

Gallery genius: Cock-a-doodle doo!

Other gallery geniuses: Cock-a-doodle-doo! Urka-urka-urk!

The Crusher (whispering): All right, John, when I leave loose this toe hold, jut out your dome so I can git a headlock. We been working long enough now. I won't hurt you none. You can make a lot of faces.

What Ho! Perfidy!

(Ten minutes later.)

The Crusher (hissing) — Poke out that there dome, you dirty double-crosser!

John the Greek—No spik Angleesh! Ha! Ha!

(Fifteen minutes later.)

The Crusher—You writ a lot of English when you signed them papers.

John the Greek—What Papers? Wasn't them just autographs?

The Crusher—Roll across the ring. I'll tell you later.

(Ten minutes later.)

The Crusher—Autographs, hey? From your admirers, hey? Groan a coupley times, quick!

John the Greek (very agonized) —Oh-h-h! Ah-h-h! Carramba!

The Crusher—Carramba's Mexican you heel! You're a Greek.

John the Greek—Well, I used to be Mexican Frank. What did I sign?

(Half hour later.)

John the Greek—What did I sign? Not so hard with that scissors.

The Crusher—Well, I tell you. You gotta "play ball" or you're going to see me drivin' to your restaurant every morning in that wire-wheeled coop and setting back of the cash register all day. Now, do you spik Angleesh?

John the Greek—I guess maybe I spik too much.

The Crusher—Better learn to read before you buck this wrestling game. Some day you'll be signing a petition to get yourself hanged.

John the Greek—All right, toss me, but let's finish it strong. I'll be needin' matches again some day and I don't want to look like no heel.

The Crusher—You'll have to get them hips lifted, then. (In loud voice to referee) Did you see him what he done to me? Lemme at him!

Police Captain (at ringside)—None of that rough stuff, now! I'll call the wagon!

Crowd—Kill that Greek! He's fighting dirty! Wreck him!

Cel.—Look at those brooms go to it! They sure must be mad!

Ros.—Get his dome, honey! Twist it! Break it off!

Cel.—He's sure a darb! Look at him!

Ros.—The old headlock, hon! Bam! There it goes! Look at that mug! Down—and out! Attaboy, hon, I knew you could do it.

Cel.—Methinks he is a right bonny wrestler.

Ros.—Better lay of this Garden Theayter stuff. That's only for college guys and their frails.

Cel.—He's hot wrestler and the swellest turkey in town!

Ros.—Ain't you tootin'?

MUNICIPAL TENNIS SCHEDULE REVISED

Because of the Lindbergh celebration in Forest Park today, the schedule of interclub municipal tennis matches has been altered. Three clubs—Forest Park, Kingshighway and Oakland—have their courts in Forest Park and the Park Department has issued instructions that the courts shall not be used today.

The revised schedule, as issued by Martin Telle last night, is as follows:

Men's Tournament.

Forest Park at St. Louis; Sublette at Carondelet; Kingshighway at Sherman; Oakland at Tower Grove; O'Fallon at Fairground.

Women's Tournament.

Forest Park at St. Louis; Carondelet; at Sublette; Fairground at O'Fallon.

HYDROMEL WINS AMERICAN DERBY

the lightly weighted Handy Mandy began coming with determination and was successful in the closing strides to wear down Buddy Bauer to land second place by a head to earn $3000 as her portion of the purse. Buddy Bauer received $1500 for being third, and Dolan, which finished fourth, took down $800.

The victory was immensely popular, judging by the prolonged cheering that greeted the colt and rider on their return to the judges' stand.

MUNY LEAGUE HURLERS TURN IN GOOD PERFORMANCES

WUNDERLE STRIKES OUT 16 BATTERS

Allows 3 Hits; Heideman Gives Only One Safety in Junior Evangeline Circuit Ted Saussele Stars.

Ed Heideman's one-hit game against the St. Peters team in the Junior Evangelical League was one of the high lights of yesterday's games in the Municipal Baseball Association. Heideman, pitching for Zion, allowed but a single hit and shut out the losers, 7 to 0. He fanned five men and passed only one.

Last Saturday Heideman turned in a two-hit contest.

Ralph Wunderle, whose work is periodically sensational, broke loose again in the senior Evangelical circuit and fanned 16 batters, allowing only three hits. His team, St. James, won over Friedens, 13 to 0. The Independents in the same league won their sixth straight game.

There were two shutouts in the Manufacturers' League, Peters beating the Currans, 6 to 0, and Triple A whitewashing Frisco, 6 to 0. Rock Island kept a tie with Triple A for first place by beating Butler Brothers, 13 to 8.

In the Commercial League, Ted Sausselle, high school league athlete, pitched well in a relief role as the Retail Bakers beat Huttig, 10 to 5. Century still leads the league as a result of a 6-to-5 victory over Sunshine.

FOUR RECORDS BROKEN IN EASTERN TRACK MEET

YONKERS, N. Y., June 18.—Four district records were shattered and two tied today in the senior track and field championships of the metropolitan A. A. U. Phil Edwards of New York University stepped the half-mile in one minute, 35 seconds, towering a record that had stood since 1909. Henry Cummings of the Newark A. C. ran the 220-yard dash in 21 1-5 seconds and knocked over the mark set in 1923 by Loren Murchison.

Nathan Kranich, University of Pennsylvania star, now represnting Newark A. C., tossed the discus 141 feet, 2 inches and beat a mark that had stood for seven years.

Ove Anderson, Finnish intercollegiate distance champion, captured the six-mile run in record time of 31 minutes, 35 seconds. Anderson was not pressed for his victory as Ritola was forced to drop out at the half-way mark because of a stitch in his side.

Johnny Gibson, Fordham University athlete, tied the district record for the 440-yard hurdles by covering the gruelling barrier race in 55 4-5 seconds.

Ben Hedges of Newark A. C. tied the high jump record by clearing six feet, four incnes. A team of 18 athletes will be selected from today's winners to represent the metropolitan district in the national championships at Lincoln, Neb., two weeks hence.

DEMPSEY TO BEGIN TRAINING IN WEEK FOR SHARKEY BOUT

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Gus Wilson, advance guard for Jack Dempsey, left here today for New York to pick out a training camp where the champion will condition for his match with Jack Sharkey, July 21.

Wilson says Dempsey favors Saratoga Springs, but one or two other spots are under consideration.

The former title holder will be in camp within a week, Wilson said.

SCOTCH ARE ELATED AT ARMOUR'S VICTORY

By the Associated Press

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, June 16.—Tommy Armour's victory in the American Open at Oakmont has greatly pleased golfing fans at this shrine of the ancient game, for the former Edinburgh player is one of the few Americans whose entry already has been received for the British Open starting July 11.

Whether Armour can turn the trick that Bobby Jones accomplished last year and leave Britain at the end of July wearing both the American and British open crowns is a question that was being debated tonight in the smoking rooms of the numerous golf club houses lining the famous links.

British regrets over the inability of their Ryder Cup Team to make a better showing at Oakmont was somewhat assuaged by the playoff between Armour and Harry Cooper of Los Angeles, as both of them are British born, Cooper having been born in England.

Some British golfers are beginning to suspect, they say, that the only way British players ever can compete seriously against Americans is to follow Armour's example and emigrate to the United States practicing putting there three or four years and then start after the titles.

Bobby Jones will not defend his title at St. Andrews, but nearly a dozen Americans have indicated their their intentions of coming, although less than half a dozen have sent entries to the Royal and ancient. The entries close July 1.

Municipal Opera in "Sari" While Garden Will Give "She Stoops to Conquer"

Paul Kleman and Dorothy Seegar to Have Leading Roles in Operetta in Forest Park This Week.

EMMERICH KALMAN'S operetta, "Sari." remembered by many music lovers as the starring vehicle of Mitzi Hajos way back in 1915 at the old Olympic Theater, and favorably recalled by productions at the Municipal Theater in 1921 and 1922, will again be offered at the open-air theater in Forest Park, this time as third attraction of the current Municipal Opera season. The first performance of the revival of the Kalman opus is scheduled for tomorrow night. Tonight is "Lindbergh Night" at the opera and a capacity house is sure to be on hand for the final presentation of Victor Herbert's "Princess Pat."

"Sari" is a modern work in every respect. Its American premiere dates back to 1914 when Henry W. Savage produced it at the Liberty Theater, New York. It enjoyed a long and prosperous run at the Liberty and was equally successful on tour, Mitzi scoring a hit almost in keeping with the popularity of the operetta.

In Europe the piece was known as "The Gypsy Leader." The continental version is the work of Julius Wilhelm and Max Gruenbaum. The American adaptation is by Catherine C. S. Cushing and E. Percy Heath.

The story revolves about old Pali Racz, a gypsy leader, and takes for its theme, "victorious ever is youth." Old Racz, still believing himself as youthful and attractive as ever, with his true splendid traits of character hidden by the vanity and conceit that grew up in him from the many years of flattery and praise showered upon him for his skill as a violinist, has set his mind on marrying Juliska, daughter of his friend, Joska Fekete, whom he has befriended and who assents to the proposed match.

RACZ'S family consists of his son Laczi, two daughters—Sari and Klari—Sari being the eldest and the real head of the Racz household. Juliska is in love with Laczi, the son, and a feeling of bitterness has grown up between the father and son, accentuated by the old master's contemptuous treatment of his son's ambition to follow in his footsteps and become a great violinist.

To the Racz home comes Gaston, Count Irini, who invites Racz to make a public appearance in Paris at a reception Gaston is giving in honor of the King of Massillia. The old gypsy, while flattered at the invitation, feels a slight distrust of his powers and at first refuses to accept. Gaston, however, has met Sari and fallen in love with her and resolves to do all in his power to induce father and daughter to come to Paris. Ill advisedly, Laczi offers to take his father's place at the reception and the old man, stung at the thought of anyone, even his own son, taking the place of Pali Racz, quarreled bitterly with Laczi and drives him from the home and then consents to play in Paris.

Sari and her father go to Paris, where the daughter is courted by Count Irini, while Pali awaits the moment of what he expects to be his last and greatest triumph. He is late at the concert and Laczi plays the first portion of the program in his father's place, scoring a tremendous ovation. Pali arrives and amid great expectations begins his recital, but his skill has deserted him, the notes from his famous Stradivari are weak and faltering, and the audience cruelly and quietly depart. When he reached his great climax he looks upon an empty audience chamber.

Heartbroken, he smashes his violin to bits and then, realizing for the first time that youth alone can win both in the field of

Pola's Husband No Prince, Nor Is Mae's

Here goes another illusion of the movies. Ping! like that!

Pola Negri, it seems, became no more a princess by marriage than her sister-in-law, Mae Murray, who is no more a princess by marriage than your neighbor's ice man's wife.

The fact is that Pola's new husband, "Prince" Serge Mdivani, and Mae's "Prince" David, who is his brother, are just nice boys from a good middle-class family in the Russian Province of Georgia.

This is the discovery made by Photoplay magazine, which engaged a Slavonic genealogist to investigate the claims of the brothers to their titles of nobility.

What Is Going On BEHIND THE SCREENS Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, June 18.

TWO St. Louisans, Herbert Williams Weber, 1138 Kingshighway Park, and B. F. Hobart Cale, 5531 Chamberlain avenue, are two of the men selected at different universities by First National Pictures and College Humor as typical college men, with personality, character and photographic possibilities. Weber is a student at the University of Illinois and Cale is from Princeton. Almost 500 feet of film was made of each student, and the film will be shown at theaters all over the United States.

Weber is a junior at Illinois and a member of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity. He is proficient in football, basketball, track, swimming and riding. Cale is a senior at Princeton and is proficient in crew. While they were not among the 10 men selected to be sent to Burbank, Cal., for work with Colleen Moore, Richard Barthelmess, Milton Sills, Harry Langdon, Ken Maynard and other stars, they were among the few men selected for final judges' decision. However, they still have an opportunity for film work if other companies are allowed to make selection for their productions.

College men will have a real opportunity in the movies, according to H. N. Swanson, editor of College Humor, and John McCormick, who had charge of the tests for First National.

Coming as something of a surprise is the announcement that James Cruze, for years one of the industry's leading directors, has affiliated himself with Cecil B De Mille, and that in the future he will produce for release through Producers' Distributing Corporation. Cruze, who directed such box-office successes as "The Covered Wagon," "The Pony Express" and "Old Ironsides," upon the termination of his present contract with Paramount - Famous - Lasky will join forces with De Mille immediately and launch activities upon a most ambitious production schedule. Among the pictures he will produce for release this season are two road shows, one of which it has been decided definitely is to be "The Pioneer Woman," Arthur Stringer's novel of the Western frontier.

College men, incidentally, and intelligensia among motion picture actors seem to be the ones who play the majority of the more important "low-brow" roles.

Milton Sills, Ernest Torrence, Lefty Flynn, Edmund Lowe, Jean Hersholt and Louis Woolheim are a few examples of film players who talk philosophy and usually play rough-and-ready, "hard - boiled" roles.

Sills, occupying the position of star, has varied characterizations, but their usual character is typified by his latest production, "Hard-Boiled Haggerty." Torrence,

As a Comedian Sees Municipal Opera

By ROBERT PITKIN

LIKE most dreams that come true, Municipal Opera is greater than the dream itself. To St. Louisans, who created this civic institution, nurtured it, and developed it into the wonderful thing it is, this may seem hyperbola.

But to one, like myself, whose profession for many years has been that of entertaining the public and whose profession has taken him for many years to different cities in opera repertory, it is an amazing reality.

Back in the days when I was acting as a cub reporter and cartoonist in New Orleans, a person who would have suggested the possibility of such a thing as Municipal Opera would have been ridiculed. And when I made the jump from amateur theatricals to the professional stage, it was just as inconceivable.

IN those days and even today opera repertory thrives on a minor scale in various cities. And practically every summer I have joined one of these companies, because of the experience it affords an entertainer.

For as a newcomer to the stage I saw in summer operatic work the opportunity for training and experience that were requisite to progress. Today it still remains just as necessary to me. The inclination now is for long runs—an engagement for a season or even two in the same piece and same role. As a result one has a tendency to fall in a rut, and in repertory one gets out of the rut by facing a new experience, a new part every week.

In this way I have gained fresh points of view practically every summer. From audiences in New Orleans, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta—I have acquired valuable contacts and reactions.

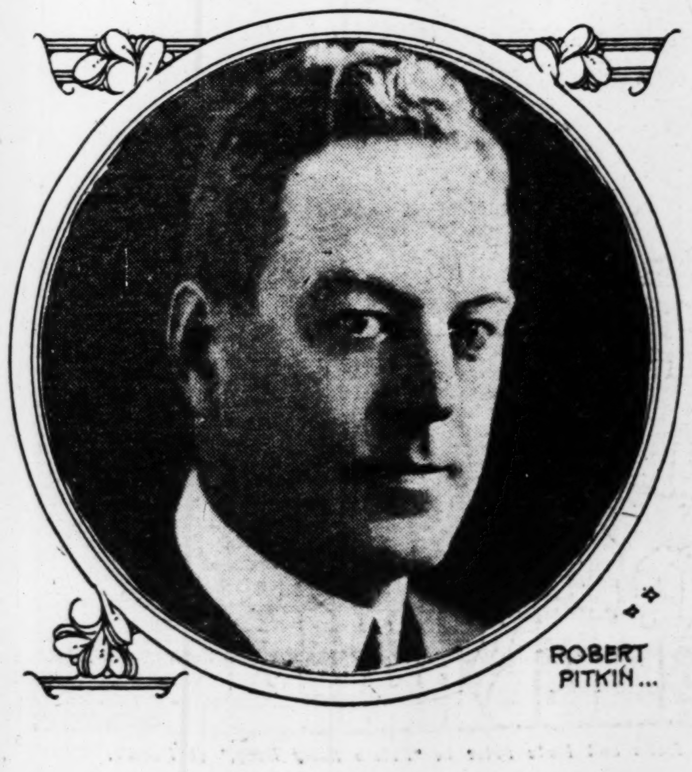
BUT nothing through the years has impressed me so vividly as Municipal Opera. Nowhere else is there opera performed under the canopy of the sky—on a scale so magnificent, executed in such a perfect manner.

You who sit out front can't get quite the thrill the artist back stage can. To him the auditorium seems a vast place—especially when he thinks of throwing his voice to the far corners of this black auditorium. This affords one thrilling moments and also fearful ones.

For there is the problem of talking to the person in the back row, which is easily mastered with the amplifiers. And there is also the great size of the stage—so much bigger than any other in the world, and so presenting worries about timing exits.

But these are matters that Mr. Sinclair from his experience disposes of quickly at dress rehearsal. What matters is that the very bigness of the Municipal Theater really makes it the wondrous institution it is. It becomes opera plus the pageant. For the charm of opera with its lovely melodies is enhanced by the splendor of the natural settings of the pageant.

No other city can offer such productions. Only St. Louis has such a theater in which opera is endowed with the richness of nature. And the bigness of the theater in turn makes it possible to grace the theater with finished productions worthy of such a setting.



ROBERT PITKIN...

Vaudeville Theaters in Big Combination to Fight Picture House Opposition

Constantly Growing Variety Programs in Cinema Palaces Result in Organization to Supply An Entire Show.

By NIE.

WHETHER or not the motion picture magnates are really trying to corner the entire amusement field with the cinema palaces or are admitting that the films alone are no longer able to attract large audiences and need a great deal of bolstering up, they are adding every day to the "presentations" and vaudeville acts on their stages. It is no uncommon thing now for the feature picture to be advertised in small type below the variety attractions. The Missouri is doing it consistently and if—there is still an "if" in it—Fox actually has a theater in the big building he is putting up on Grand avenue he will have vaudeville and stage shows heading his bills. Loew's, as has already been told, will probably make the same move this summer so that the picture houses will, in reality, be vaudeville theaters instead of movie show places.

Does this mean that the enormous popularity of motion pictures is fading? Certainly business is no longer what it used to be in the movie theaters. No longer do the crowds go blindly from one theater to another to see a "picture." Now they want to know what's playing before they put their money on the line. This is due to many things, no the least of which is poor films and a countless repetition of the same plots. Indecency and vulgarity have played a great part in driving a large class of people out of the movie show houses and higher prices of admission have also had an effect. Not that the theaters are losing money or in danger of it by any means. The intake, in most houses, is still enormous but the overhead expense is being increased every week by the addition of stage attractions and the really big, worth while films are being shown elsewhere than in the picture house where they belong.

THE vaudeville circuits are preparing to meet this sort of competition with vaudeville AND pictures. The St. Louis Theater is really a vaudeville house with a picture as one of the acts. The Grand is the same and the Orpheum last season did remarkably well with a variety-film program. The better films for a large part, however, are controlled by producers who are either very directly interested in the theaters or are tied up with the chains of show houses. Now the vaudeville managers are going to start in on the ground floor and put up a real fight and the final launching of the first motion picture enterprise to encompass in one company all phases of the industry from the manufacture of the raw film stock to the presentation of the finished pictures, was announced by Cecil B. De Mille, Elmer Pearson and John C. Flinn, officials of the new organization, at the De Mille-Pathe-P. D. C. Convention in Los Angeles.

This enterprise, which results from the recently consumated alliance of the De Mille Pictures Corporation, Pathe Exchange, Inc., and Producers' Distributing Corporation with the Keith-Albee, Orpheum, B. S. Moss, Proctor and affiliated vaudeville theater circuits, will be beaded by John J. Murdock, who is now general manager of the Keith-Albee vaudeville interest. In number of pictures and diversity of product, he says, the output of this affiliation will exceed that of any existing motion picture company, and officials declare that in point of revenue, it should easily top any figures heretofore attained in the business.

EXAMINATION of the plans reveals that this new enterprise expects to be in a position to supply every type of entertainment essential to the operation of a motion picture theater.

Cecil B. De Mille will produce for 1927-28 release 40 feature pictures with the number of "specials" and "road show" attractions quadrupled over last year's. There will be 26 regular attractions, 10 "specials," to be made for long runs and "two-a-day" policies, and four "road shows" to be handled as has been "The King of Kings." At least one of the latter group will be directed by De Mille.

Pathe's 1927-28 production schedule calls for a total of 450 pictures, both short subjects and featured, including 104 Pathe News issues, 52 releases of the Pathe Review, 52 Topics of the Day, 52 "Aesop's Film Fables," six 10-episode serials, 26 Grantland Rice "Sportlights," 52 Mack Sennett and Hal Roach comedies, 12 Will Rogers one-reel features, and eight "Rarebits." Pathe also will release three Monty Banks feature comedies and 40 western feature-length productions.

The new concern, through its association with Pathe-Dupont and the Pathe interests, manufactures its own raw film, cameras and home projectors. The Keith-Albee, Orpheum, B. S. Moss, Proctor and affiliated circuits, provide a large reservoir of stage talent as well as a fame and love, surrenders Juliska to Laczi, blesses the happy love of Sari and Count Irini and departs to live amidst the memories of the happy past.

THE assignment of parts in "Sari" brings to Paul Kleman, the baritone of this summer's company, a role that will probably establish him more firmly in the hearts of the local Municipal Opera goers. As Pali Racz he will be constantly in the limelight.

Some of the principal musical numbers in the first act are: "Marry Me," "Pick a Husband," "Paris," "Love Has Wings," "Ha-Za-Za" and "Triumphant Youth." Second act, "With Lowered Head," "Follow Me," Simple Little Village Maid," "My Faithful Stradivari," "Softly Thro' the Summer Night," "Long Live the King" and "Loves Own Sweet Song."

"SHE Stoops to Conquer" will be the vehicle for the third week of the season of Garden Theater, which starts Tuesday night. As usual, the play will be given for six consecutive performances. There will be no performance tomorrow night, but a Sunday performance will be given at the end of the week, in line with this season's policy.

Oliver Goldsmith succeeded in giving the world a play as wholesome as it was funny when he wrote "She Stoops to Conquer." It was first produced in March, 1773, at Covent Garden, London. Hardly a theatrical season has passed since that remote date that the play has not been produced successfully somewhere. It has been revived in America again and again, and, generally, successfully.

In "She Stoops to Conquer" Mr. and Mrs. Hardcastel start out by fussing, mildly to be sure, about kin, who likes ale houses better than school houses.

Tony's best prank is when he directs Young Marlow to the Hardcastle home by telling him it is an inn. Young Marlow is on his way to the Hardcastle's to view the daughter of the house and to woo her. All that being arranged by the two fond fathers, who desire to make their true friendship hereditary by the marriage of their children.

Miss Hardcastle, whom he is to court is mistaken for a barmaid, and it so happens that Young Marlow, bashful with nice women, is rather forward with the other sort. He is fond of barmaids.

With these twisted situations there is much of humor and many a real laugh as these characters try to understand one another and the more they try the deeper they plunge into misunderstanding.

THE production of "The Song of the Flame," by the Municipal Theater Association on the Forest Park stage next week, will mark a further step in the institution's program of presenting works that the city could not otherwise hear.

For St. Louis will be the third city in the United States to enjoy this piece, even though it was a New York hit only two years ago. It is such a tremendous offering, however, that the cost of production prohibited its being sent beyond New York and Chicago.

Arthur Hammerstein, original producer of "The Song of the Flame," realizing that the Municipal Theater Association possessed the resources with which to present adequately this modern operetta, consented to its inclusion in the opera repertory this season. With a libretto by Oscar Hammerstein II and Otto Harbach, and score by George Gershwin and Herbert Stothart, it was an immediate hit in New York.

The Municipal Theater Association, because of its ample resources, plans a production on a scale exceeding even that of New York and Chicago. A co-incidence of the offering next week is that Municipal Opera tenor, Allan Rogers, was a member of the original "Song of the Flame" company.

"Second Thoughts on First Nights"

By ALISON SMITH

NEW YORK, June 18.

THOSE assistant sleuths, who stand guard over a practically non-existant season through the summer months, have long since learned not to be surprised at anything. It is wiser to face Broadway with an air of calm acceptance once you have been deserted by your chief on a sweltering June evening with the sardonic injunction to keep the home fires burning. The first thing to remember is that in mid June, almost anything can happen—and frequently does.

Nevertheless, with the best possible fortification against freak announcements and still more freakish entrances, a note which reached this desk recently brought a certain shock of mild incredulity. It read: "Next week, Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle in a revival of 'Baby Mine.'"

This was as fantastic a combination as was ever heralded, even in the theatrical mail of midsummer. And what it suggested was even more depressing than most of these. The play by Margaret Mayo first opened in 1910 for a record-breaking run but there are few farces that can survive the changes in popular humor of 17 years. Moreover, long experience with the behavior of screen stars suddenly grown articulate on the stage (an experience stamped with one excruciating memory of Theda Bara in "The Blue Flame") held out little hope for Roscoe Arbuckle.

It is true that his very early career started on the stage but this was so long ago and his roles were so obscure that none of the oldest inhabitants we questioned could trace his appearances to Broadway. He had been identified entirely with innumerable comedies on the screen and one tragedy—off-stage—through which he was barred irrevocably from the films by Mrs. Grundy.

SO HIS opening the other night marked his first conspicuous entrance as a star before the footlights. To the surprise of at least one spectator, he emerged not only as an excellent comedian but as an actor possessing a certain subtle sense of expression which might carry him far beyond farce. He played the part of Jimmie, the good-natured, obliging friend of the squabbling young couple who finds that his innocent offer of assistance involves him in every form of social embarrassment, including the kidnaping of triplets. There is plenty of chance here for the grotesque horse-play of the screen comedy—for the mugging and bouncing and comic falls that belongs to the changeless traditions of slapstick.

Mr. Arbuckle ignores them all. He does one fall, it is true, but that was because he tripped legitimately on the doorstep which is exactly the sort of thing that does happen to you when your accumulated woes are more than you can bear. For the most part, he gives the authentic values of a blundering, perspiring mass of humanity lumbering through a tangled situation which was none of his making. It is the sort of comedy that has real suffering behind it and thus, such is the tender nature of our tribe, is all the funnier.

There were moments, however, when you really felt sorry for Jimmie and when Arbuckle disposed of the amiable theory that a fat man is always the most hilarious figure in the world. (It is a theory which Somerset Maugham speedily dispatched in his tale of a grotesquely fat and genuinely terrifying monster which he called "The Magician," but that is another story and perhaps another play.) Arbuckle makes the most of that most pathetic spectacle—helpless bulk in distress—and his appearance after all these years indicates that the adamant and outraged authorities who have barred him from the screen may unwittingly have restored to the footlights an excellent stage comedian.

HE has done this with little assistance from the play. The old farcical situations—so successful in their day that the piece became the "Abie's Irish Rose" of its period—emerges almost 20 years later with the threadbare aspect of a batered Merry Widow hat still doing its best to be perky. Its first situation gives the piece away: the young husband has quarreled with his wife because she went out to lunch with another man! In the face of the domestic follies of 1927, this dates it beyond all redemption.

THIS is the time of year when postmortems are breaking out in the most unexpected quarters and when, from various offical and unofficial quarters, you get solemn statements as to the 10 best plays, the 10 worst failures and the most important events of the season that has just closed. The latest symposium was on the two actors who contributed the best performances.

Last week, the Morning Telegraph, as represented by Burton Davis, its dramatic critic, subpenaed the rest of his confreres to testify on their own choice. The verdict was swift, and, though the identity of the voters is guarded in secrecy, it seems to have been fairly unanimous. Their medals were pinned on Alfred Lunt as the best actor and Pauline Lord as the best actress of the year that began last Labor day. Alice Brady, Holbrook Blinn and Ruth Gordon were the closest runners up. And Walter Huston, Edward G. Robinson, Lee Tracy, Helen Menken, Lynne Fontanne, Jane Cowl, Ethel Barrymore, Morgan Farley, Frank Wilson and Blanche Yurka achieved honorable mention.

The tribute to Miss Lord is all the more gratifying in that her year was a disastrous one for the box office. Apart from a minor role in the all-star revival of "Trelawny of the Wells," her season was made up of "Sandalwood" and "Mariners," both of them failures though the letter had the cold comfort of being called an artistic failure. Mr. Lunt's record is more cheerful, financially; he appeared in "Juarez and Maximillian," "The Brothers Karamazov," "Ned McCobb's Daughter" and "The Second Man," all of them, except the first, fair financial triumphs in the Theater Guild's breathless rotations of repertory. Miss Lord received five votes out of a possible eighteen, Mr. Lunt, ten. The verdict seems to have been received with reasonable approval by the man on the aisle.

After the publication of the entire list, however, the air was rent with indignant inquiries as to why Eva Le Gallienne, Clare Eames, Helen Gahegan, Jeanne Eagels and Laura Hope Crewes were omitted from the also-rans. One furious first-nighter went so far as to write to the paper demanding instantly the head of its draamtic critic because he obviously had cast no vote for the writer's favorite player. "Her name stands so far above all the others in popular appeal," he wrote, "that it outshines all the lights of Broadway." This dazzling and obliterating name was Fannie Brice.

TWO plays scheduled themselves for an opening last Monday night—and then very wisely changed their minds. For, of all tragic and hopeless attempts at competition, we can imagine nothing more futile than opening "against" Lindbergh. From early morning the city had spent itself in a mad, happy orgy of swirling banners, confetti, aeroplanes and anthems all encircling about the slim figure of a grinning, tousled-headed boy. In the evening some of them went to the theater but most of them chose to race excitedly up and down the orange-lighted, flag-crowned thoroughfare of Fifth avenue. After such a day anything seen behind footlights must seem inexpressibly tame by comparison. It was the greatest drama New York had ever known—and they were part of it.

who plays some of the roughest film roles, is a piano virtuoso; Hersholt an artist, and a long list of others might be compiled, whose roles and cultural advantages present equal contrast.

There are exceptions to the rule, of course, not mentioned here because of their possible sensitiveness on the subject. For the same reason, actors lacking educational advantages who play highly polished roles, need not be named.

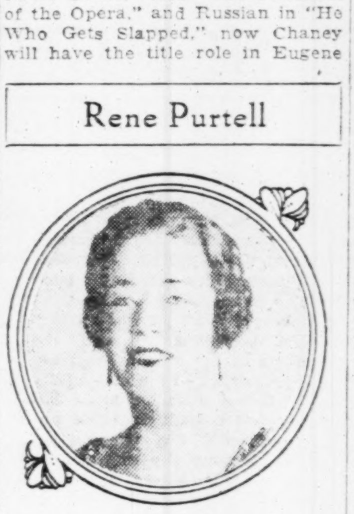
When Frank Borzage, the director, was ordered to Paris to "shoot" street scenes for "Seventh Heaven,' the Fox special which is now on Broadway, he regarded the assignment as a sort of vacation. But when he became entangled in the red tape which runs through Parisian municipal affairs he realized why his friends offered him condolences instead of wishing him bon voyage when he sailed.

Of great importance to the story of "Seventh Heaven" is a scene showing the mobilization of the taxicab army, which rushed to the defense of Paris in the early days of the war, and Borzage, after he had rounded up 115 ancient cabs, thought his task was almost completed. But the real difficulties were yet to come

Before the scene could be "shot" permission had to be obtained from the police to use the street—a matter of three weeks. From the War Office permission had to be obtained for the showing of the uniformed and armed poilus who occupied the cabs—another two weeks of unwinding red tape. By orders of the police the scene had to be taken in the very early hours of the morning and, as the men who drove the cabs were all union chauffeurs, a special arrangement was insisted on by their union, protecting them on the matter of extra pay for the extra time—another week of negotiations.

Lon Chaney, who has been almost everything but a tarantula in his screen work, will become Jewish according to plans in prospect. A Chinese in "Shadows," "Outside the Law" and "Mr. Wu," a limehouse crook in "The Blackbird;" French in Victor Hugo's "Hunchback of Notre Dame," and "The Phantom of the Opera," and Russian in "He Who Gets Slapped," now Chaney will have the title role in Eugene Sue's world-famous story, "The Wandering Jew." Work on the script has been in progress some time.

Rene Purtell



Headliner at Grand Opera House.

With Ricardo Cortez assigned to do the romantic lead in "Terror," the Chaney picture in production, a new leading man had to be had for Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina," to be filmed under the title, "Love." Norman Kerry will draw the assignment, replacing Cortez; Greta Garbo will be the object of his affections.

The life of Jenny Lind will be brought to the screen under the title, "The Song of Love." Norma Shearer will play the part of the Swedish Nightingale.

Lee Moran, one-half of the former comedy team of Lyons and Moran, and later prominent in support of Reginald Denny, has been given a part in "Spring Fever," William Haines' first starring picture.

The famous Longchamps racecourse, with its mobs of tourists, its Parisians and Parisiennes, and the endless list of mannequins displaying the latest in Paris fashions, will be brought to the screen in "On Ze Boulevard." Lew Cody has the role of a waiter, who, after winning a fortune in a lottery, poses as a man of fashion. Renee Adoree plays his fiance, a cashier in a Parisian restaurant. Dorothy Sebastian is a Parisienne vamp; Roy D'Arcy is the "heavy" in this farce.

For the machines which needed repairs in order to allow them to act their parts in the scene a score of mechanics had to be hurriedly impressed and rushed at the work. Tires of absolute dimensions had to be bought and shipped to the garage where the repairs were made, and likewise all sorts of automotive parts.

Finally when all the permits and arrangements were in hand and everything was ready for the actual recording of the scene, the gentleman whose business it is to hose the Rue de la Paix, made trouble because someone had forgotten to notify his chief that his work could be delayed that morning. This interruption almost nullified all the plans of Mr. Borzage, but it had its compensation, for the hose-cart man was one with an amusing "make-up" including an astonishing mustache, which was copied exactly.

Harry Langdon, in addition to "The Butter and Egg Man," is to make a golf comedy called "The Nineteenth Hole." Jack Mulhall and Dorothy Mackaill, now making "Smile, Brother, Smile," will also be teamed in "Lady, Be Good," from the musical comedy by Bolton and Fred Thompson; "Ladies Night," from the stage farce by Avery Hopwood, and "Man Crazy," from the story by Grace Sartwell Mason.

As soon as Dolores Costello completes work on "The Heart of Maryland," she will start East for her first visit to New York since she entered screen work. It is two years since Dolores Costello has been in New York. At that time she was signed by the Warner brothers when she was appearing on the stage in George White's Scandals. Soon after she was selected by John Barrymore as his leading woman for "The Sea Beast."

William Collier Jr. has been cast in Irene Rich's next picture, temporarily titled "The Outpost." Director Michael Curtiz chose young Collier as juvenile after seeing his performance in Miss Rich's recently completed picture, "Dearie."

The cast to date of "Breakfast at Sunrise," Constance Talmadge's next picture, now in production, includes, besides the star, Bryant Washburn, Paulette Duval, Burr McIntosh, David Mir, Don Alvarado, Marie Dressler, Alice White and Alfonse Martel.

Lois Weber, one of the few women ever to become successful motion picture directors, has been signed to direct Leatrice Joy's next starring picture, "The Angel of Broadway." This screen play, which was written for Miss Joy by Lenore Coffee, is scheduled for early production. It is played out against a background ofNew York's slums, presenting in fascinating manner the activities of the Salvation Army.

Jetta Goudal has returned to Hollywood after an extended trip to Chicago and New York. Miss Goudal acted as official hostess of the Chicago Exhibitors' Association movie ball, and then went to New York to attend the premiere of her latest picture, "Fighting Love," at the Roxy Theater.

vast theater outlet for the product.

IN the weekly letter from Hollywood on these pages last Sunday attention was called to the fact that Gloria Swanson was going to make a picture out of Sadie Thompson, the story on which the stage play, "Rain," was based. On this subject Quinn Martin of the New York World, says that resourcefulness the girls and boys of the films have, too, and points out as one of the current evidences of this fact that Miss Swanson is setting out from her palatial Beverly Hills residence each morning for the studio for the purpose of putting "Sadie Thompson" upon the screen. "Rain" happens to be one of those stage plays most vehemently denounced, denied and rejected by Will H. Hays as being unfit, from the so-called moral point of view, for motion-picture presentation.

The method employed in persuading Mr. Hays that the original script from which the Sam H. Harris drama was drawn could be adapted for screen purposes with none of the material considered objectionable left in is not known. Supposedly the relinquishment of the title did the trick. At any rate, it is reasonable to presume that in any ordinary dramatist's treatment of the story the character of Sadie must come through resembling at least that unhappy solicitor of Pago Pago.

It is possible, of course, that Miss Swanson and her producing assistants have discovered that in turning "Sadie Thompson" into a stage play, John Colton missed altogether the intent of Mr. Maugham's original. It may be that the screen folks of Hollywood (for they are a keen and analytical lot) find now, after all those years of Sadie's life as a sailor's pick-up, that she was indeed designed to be a Presbyterian missionary, and that in her heart there was actually to be found no trace of that crimson professionalism which Sadie, as we met her behind the footlights, seemed so inexorably to have absorbed in her vague but undeniably interesting early life in San Francisco.

Can it be that we are to learn at this late date that Sadie Thompson was a good girl?

Miss Swanson, in a telegram just received, says, among other things: "I am very happy about the selection of 'Sadie Thompson' for my next production, and all of us here are enthusiastic about its possibilities."

A Good Pair

Sidney and Murray in "Lost at Front," at the Ambassador.

It would be interesting to know how happy and enthusiastic Mr. Harris, the producer and holder of the rights to "Rain," is at hearing the news. Particularly since it is quite well understood that Mr. Harris only recently has been considering, in view of "Rain's" rejection by the cinema indusry, making a film play of the subject himself, thereby testing both the ability of the screen to refuse representation to any given work of literature or drama without good and sufficient reasons and also the desire on the part of the public to see a motion-picture version of a highly popular and generally approved play.

SOME persons have fought their way into the movies; many more persons have fought without getting into them, but the case of lovely Sally O'Neil, who has the leading role in "Frisco Sally Levy," down at Loew's this week, was nothing like that at all. In fact, Miss O'Neil would have had to fight rather strenuously to have kept herself off the screen, once she had been spied by Marshall Neilan, the director.

Miss O'Neil, born Virginia Noonan, daughter of the late Supreme Court Judge F. T. Noonan of New Jersey, and educated at Notre Dame Convent, New York City, hadn't any more idea of becoming an actress than she had of discovering the North Pole, perhaps even less. Mention might be made of the fact, however, that in her veins was the blood of the famous Costello acting family of Ireland.

It happened that Miss O'Neil's family moved from New Jersey to Los Angeles, merely seeking a change of climate and not thinking about the movies at all unless it was as a means of entertainment. Once in Los Angeles, what was more natural than that Miss O'Neil should be dancing at the Ambassador Hotel on the same night that Mr. Neilan and his wife, Blanche Sweet, were there for the same purpose.

Mr. Neilan had been looking long for just the right type of girl to play the title role in a picture called "Mike" that he was then making. No sooner had he and Miss Sweet seen Miss O'Neil than they exclaimed simultaneously, "There is Mike!" They arranged to be introduced to Miss O'Neil immediately. Within a day or two Miss O'Neil had passed the necessary screen tests and had made her debut as a screen player playing a lead. And, as if that were not Cinderella-like enough, Rupert Hughes decided right away that she was the only girl to play the lead in his picture, "Don't."

Besides the pictures mentioned, Miss O'Neil has appeared in "Sally, Irene and Mary," "The Auction Block," "Battling Butler," "A Certain Young Man," and "The Mysterious Island." Needless to say, she is under a long contract.

SHORTAGE OF TEA TASTERS

London Sees $5000 a Year Job Go Begging.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON.—So seriously does Mincing Lane regard the shortage of tea tasters that the London County Council is to be asked to establish tea-tasting classes in night schools.

"The other day," said a broker, "a job was advertised at a salary of £1000 ($5000) a year, plus commission. It was not filled, for not a single suitable applicant could be found. Yet before the war there would have been 50 first-rate men waiting for that job. Parents are not willing to send their sons into a business which requires a seven-years' apprenticeship without pay. On the other hand, the tea trade cannot afford to pay even the smallest wage to a boy who has to have another boy teach him everything. Eighty thousand chests of tea come through the Lane every week on the average. They are worth half a million or more, and the commission at 1½ per cent, works out at £8000 ($40,000). Isn't that a trade which should attract the youngsters?"

QUEEN MARY COLLECTS FANS

Has Valuable Collection Which She Displays Only to Close Friends.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 18. — One of Queen Mary's hobbies is the collecting of fans, which she inherited from her mother, the Duchess of Teck. Princess Mary, her daughter, is also a fan collector but has nothing like the quantity or the valuable specimens which Queen Mary shows to her most intimate friends. There are jewelled fans, painted fans, lace and feathered fans of all shapes and sizes.

One of the most remarkable fans in the collection was made in England some years ago. The sticks are of red tortoise-shell with a crown and the Queen's initials "V. M." on the outer stick. The fan is covered with special feathers from the wings of woodcocks. As only one such feather is found on each wing 3600 woodcocks, shot by the King and his friends, were required to make the fan.

Art Museum Entries Open to Artists Living in or Near St. Louis.

All artists residing in St. Louis or within 10 miles of the city limits, may submit paintings for the twenty-second Annual Exhibition of Paintings by American Artists, the Art museum announces.

Out-of-town painters will compose the jury. Each artist may submit three paintings, preferably work of the last three years, since the exhibtion is to exemplify current tendencies in American art, but only one painting by each artist may be selected. Entry cards obtainable from Director S. L. Sherer of the City Art Museum, should be filled out for each painting and mailed to the director before July 15.

JOPLIN, Mo., June 18.—Ore prices remained unchanged in the Tri-State district in the week just closed, zinc bringing $40 and lead $78 a ton. Zinc sale, at 10,040 tons, although larger than in the last seven weeks, was approximately one-third fewer tons than the smelters are consuming. Sale of lead again was small. Production for the week was approximately 9800 tons, as compared with 9250 tons the previous week. There were 101 mills operating during the week.

REFUGEES IN FLOOD RETURN TO HOMES

Hundreds Begin Trek From Camps to Build and Plant Anew.

By the Associated Press.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 18.—By scores and by hundreds, men, women, and children, forced to flee from the waters of the Mississippi flood, are now setting forth from th refugee camps for the homeward trek--back to homes despoiled by the muddy torrent, to lands left waste, and rotted crops. They go with the spirit of the Southerners of reconstruction days, to build again, to plant anew.

In the camps they have been restless. They have been impatient to go, not because they were not satisfied with the treatment accorded them, but they are a practical people and they know what lies before them.

Boats Are Crowded.

They crowd the boats when the day to return arrives, and they chatter of what they will find at home. The boat takes them up the river, leaves them on the levees near at home. Trucks take them on, leaving them at their doors.

Scenes of desolation and wreckage greet the eyes of the returned exiles. For some there are not the remnants of homes, where currents have carried all before them. Others, more fortunate, enter sagging structures, water soaked, ill smelling, with furniture sodden and warped.

The land, only a few weeks ago blooming with luxuriant crops of corn and cotton, is an unbroken stretch of brown mud, covered with the dank, foul rot of dead vegetation. Here and there the decomposing hulk of what was once a cow, a horse, a pig, a dog, sickens the air. It is a land to flee from as the plague. But to the returned refugees it is home. The Red Cross has given them clothing and ample food, with the promise of more later.

Men Return First.

The men go first into the land where death has had his brief reign and clear the way for the return of the family. Corpses of dead animals are burned or buried deep. Fathers and sons, old men and boys, work side by side to take the mud from the house, to restore the furniture and build fences.

Then while the women and girls enter upon the task of actual housecleaning the farmers plant—it is their first thought to make a crop if possible, at all events to produce food for the family. Some of them also are planting corn. Men toil and worry and women worry and work. But they are not glum. Louisiana has had floods before and many ofthe people have gone through flood reconstruction days.

Hoover's Estimate of Loss.

The New Orleans States today published a statement in which Secretary Hoover says that the economic loss from the Mississippi flood probably will run from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000.

"In human terms this Mississippi river flood of 1927 means 750,000 people flooded. 600,000 driven from their homes or made dependent upon relief," the statement said.

"The economic loss will probably run from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000.

"America will spend more than $30,000,000 in flood relief in one form or another this year, and that is but a small part.

"Every worker, every farmer, every investor in the United States will bear some part of the shock.

"All engineering plans for flood control of the river must be revised against any possible combination of floods from the tributaries.

"The levee system must be revised and strengthened. Above all, we must have some safety devices to relieve the strain on the levee system in periods of super-floods and make them absolutely sure once and for all.

"I am convinced that our engineers can develop plans that will prevent the flood. I believe that we can give security to the people living below the levees.

"We cannot abolish the levee system.

"We can strengthen the levees and supplement them strongly with safety devices of one kind or another."

U. S. NEWSPAPERS' INCOME TO BE $1,000,000,000 IN 1927

W. P. Beazell, New York World, Says Circulation Is Gaining at Record Rate.

By the Associated Press.

WAYNESBORO, Pa., June 18.—The newspapers of the United States, for the first time in their history, are doing $1,000,000,000 business this year, W. P. Beazell, assistant managing editor of the New York World, told members of the Pennsylvania Newspaper Publishers' Association tonight at their annual banquet at Buena Vista.

Income from sales, he said, will be $260,000,000 and from advertising, $750,000,000, despite setbacks reported from most sections of the country. The increase over 1926 will be about $20,000,000.

Daily newspaper circulation is growing at an unprecedented rate, Mr. Beazell said. Last year the numerical increase was 50 per cent greater than the growth in population. One newspaper is printed every day for every two persons more than 10 years of age able to read. Every morning, one newspaper is printed for every other family in the United States; every evening, one newspaper is printed for every family.

When weekly and semi-weekly newspapers and periodicals less directly related to the news are taken into account the whole circulation reaches 225,000,000—nine publications for each of the 25,000,000 families of the land.

"Butch" Bedbug, burglar, starts his night's work

Millions of others are starting, too! Be ready for them!

MAKE no mistake! There's only one way to exterminate bedbugs. That's with a liquid. Don't waste time shooting a spray at them. No spray can possibly reach their young and eggs.

Bedbugs are in the woodwork, along the baseboards—not in the bed clothes, as you may have thought. Don't waste time using a powder. Bedbugs don't eat. They suck. That's why only a liquid can exterminate them.

Peterman's Discovery is the right liquid. It soaks down into their nests. It will exterminate all bedbugs, all their young and eggs in any house in 48 hours.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bedbugs.

FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates cockroaches.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold

PLANS TO CAPITALIZE "LINDBERGH" BALKED

Delaware Secretary of State Refuses to Issue Incorporation Papers.

By the Associated Press.

DOVER, Del., June 18.—The State of Delaware, through the office of the Secretary of State, has refused to allow any company to incorporate with the name of "Lindbergh" after the transatlantic aviator.

For several weeks, it was learned today from Secretary of State Charles H. Grantland, a number of companies have applied for charters with "Lindbergh" as the prominent portion of their title. Grantland refused them letters of incorporation.

Says Name of Lindbergh Was Used Against Will.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., June 18.—Oscar P. Lindberg, Cleveland tool inspector, named as the president of the "Lindberg Aeronautics Corporation," recently incorporated in Ohio, said today that he would seek legal advice on some action to force the company to disband.

He declared he had declined to permit his name to be used when a promoter for the corporation approached him shortly after the transatlantic flight of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh.

At Columbus, Secretary of State Clarence I. Brown said:

"There is no way open at present for the State of Ohio to cancel the charter of the Lindberg Aeronautic Corporation, which is under investigation by the William J. Burns International Detective Agency."

The only provision in Ohio law for the state to act to dissolve a corporation is upon its failure to pay its taxes or by voluntary application for dissolution by the corporation itself, Brown said. He also declared the state was without authority to revoke a charter if all legal requirements with respect to incorporation had been met. This had been done, he said.

DEATH SENTENCE OF SLAYER OF 26 BOLSHEVIKS IS UPHELD

Former Cossack Officer Had Held Office Under Soviet, But Was Found Guilty.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, June 18.—Another victim of the repressive measures adopted by the soviet against counter revolutionaries is reported in the case of Sergius Mameff, a former Cossack officer of the Kolchak forces, active in suppressing the peasants' rebellion in 1919. He had since filled an obscure office in the soviet regime.

Recently Mameff was accused of killing 26 Bolsheviks and was condemned to death by the Krasnoyarsk court. He appealed to the court for amnesty, but this court ruled that in view of the activities of counter revolutionaries the verdict of the lower court must be sustained.

SONG ON LOST FRENCH FLYERS

Almost a Dirge Being Sung in Paris Cabarets and Streets.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—"The Broken Wings" is the first song—almost a funeral dirge—on the missing French aviators, Nungesser and Coli, which is being sung in the cabarets and on the streets.

"And high above in the clouds
Nungesser and Coli
Have proved by their courage
We still have real men," say the verses of Marcel Rosseaux, which are being sung to a sad air by Rene de Buxeuil.

Sentenced in $28,000 Bank Holdup.

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 18.—Chester Barker, 38 years old, was sentenced to from three to seven years in State's prison at Waupun today for his confessed part in the daylight holdup of the Northwestern National Bank two years ago. Barker was arrested at Wauseon, O., two weeks ago. He is the second of seven men who obtained $280,000 in cash and securities in the holdup to be sent to prison. Mathew McNeil is serving a 20-year sentence.

Appeal Acquittal of Corvi.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 18.—The Procurator-General of the Court of Appeals has appealed to the Court of Cassation against the verdict of the lower court which Wednesday acquitted Giovanni Corvi on a charge of murdering the Fascist Deputy, Casalini.

Homestead, Fla., Bank Closes.

By the Associated Press.

HOMESTEAD, Fla., June 18.—The Bank of Homestead, a city and Dade County depository and the only bank between Miami and Key West, failed to open its doors today after withstanding a steady run and heavy withdrawals during the last 10 days.

MUSSOLINI'S SON AS WRITER

Youth Gives Impressions of First Air Flight to Paper.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, June 18.—Vittorio Mussolini, the Duce's son, has taken the first step along the path of journalism, his father's favorite profession. The weekly newspaper, Tricolor, prints the boy's impressions of his first airplane flight, which he recently took with his father's permission. He was not bothered at all.

"Only when we were taking off," he writes. "I was somewhat worried, but I closed my eyes for a minute, and when I opened them we were up high. I had lots of fun later when Maj. de Berbardi took me up for a fine flight. We were all alone, but I was not afraid. I am a real flyer now, and I hope father will let me go up again soon."

Find 600-Pound Petrified Turtle.

By the Associated Press.

ALLIANCE, Neb., June 18.—A petrified turtle, weighing more than 600 pounds, has been unearthed on the farm of Harry Massek, near here. The turtle was discovered by workmen excavating for a cellar.

Attacks on "Money Trust" Followed by Enactment of Currency Reform Legislation—Sacrificed Wealth and Social Position in Boston to Lead Fight on New Haven Railroad Merger.

WASHINGTON, June 18.

THE United States has produced no intellectual phenomenon more astonishing—or more encouraging to believers in democracy—than that reflected in the phrase, "with Holmes and Brandeis dissenting." The two are utterly dissimilar in origin; one is the descendant of Boston Brahminism, the other of a Jewish immigrant. One came to the United States Supreme Court by way of a previous judicial experience, the other entered it hot from his encounters as "the people's attorney" at the bar. Yet Oliver Wendell Holmes and Louis Dembitz Brandeis have achieved a spiritual kinship that marks them off as a separate liberal chamber of the Supreme Court. On the great issues that go down to the fundamental differences in the philosophy of government, these two are nearly always together; often they are together against the rest of the court. The memorable dissents of Holmes and Brandeis in cases involving the rights of the individual—human rights as against property rights—have been to liberals as a cup of water in a desert.

It is fashionable in some quarters to sneer at these men as "radicals." Let the term stand. They are as radical as the Constitution and the Bill of Rights. In the original meaning of the word they are splendidly radical; for the derivation is from the Latin "radix" (root), and a radical is one who thinks through to the roots of things.

Tributes From Col. House and Justice Stone

An attempt has been made in a previous article in the Post-Dispatch to exhibit the personality and philosophy of Justice Holmes; this will deal with his brother Brandeis. To write adequately of either, so many are the facets of their greatness, is a formidable task.

Appreciation of Justice Brandeis has not been lacking. In a remarkable series of tributes published in celebration of his 70th birthday, Nov. 13 last, one of his associates on the Supreme Bench, Justice Harlan F. Stone (a Coolidge appointee whose recent opinions in several important cases have shown a decidedly liberal trend) wrote that Justice Brandeis to an unusual degree had "supplied the intellectual ferment so essential to the process by which, through the competition of ideas and the appraisement of relative values, we seek to translate experience into law."

"He stands with the few great Judges of his country and the world," said Chief Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the New York Court of Appeals, while Col. Edward M. House recorded the conviction that "as citizen, advocate and law-giver, Louis D. Brandeis has made his impress upon these times, and he will leave a noble and enduring record."

Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation, spoke of him as "a pillar of faith for all who still believe with the old-fashioned Americans in fair play, justice and the right of the individual to personal liberty" and expressed the hope that he "may be permitted to shine as long on the Supreme Bench as has that other true patriot, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes."

Linked With Wilson by Thomas W. Gregory

Thomas W. Gregory, former Attorney-General of the United States, contributed this: "A progressive can be fairly defined as a person who, when property rights are arrayed against individual rights, sides with the latter. In most of these conflicts vested interests grapple with the interests of the public. According to the above definition, Woodrow Wilson and Louis Brandeis have been the outstanding leaders of progressive thought and molders of progressive policies in the United States."

From Prof. E. A. Ross of the University of Wisconsin came the following: "I know some very intelligent men; I know some very able men; I know some very social-minded men. But I know of no man who more beautifully combines high intelligence, great ability and a deep concern for social well-being than Justice Brandeis."

To Norman Hapgood, former editor of Collier's, who went with him through the famous Ballinger controversy he is "the most fertile of our political philosophers," and to Senator Robert M. La Follette Jr., he is "Uncle Louis," whose "understanding heart and brilliant mind work in unison, making him the best possible guide, friend and counsellor in all human affairs."

Taft Fought Nomination as "Not a Fit Person"

"As jurist," wrote Nathan Straus, "he graces America by his progressive spirit and his passion for righteousness, and as a Jew he reflects glory upon Israel everywhere, by his vision and devotion to the rehabilitation of the land of Israel. He will be numbered among the very greatest in the annals of our history."

Justice Learned Hand of New York counsels those who would know him to observe Justice Brandeis in the court room, where the light coming in behind the bench falls upon his thick hair "and makes of it a kind of aureole circling the firmly-modeled ascetic face like an emanation." In the face are "fervor and passion and repression."

Such are a few typical expressions in a great outpouring of tributes as the Justice entered his seventy-first year. The occasion was further signalized by the contribution of $50,000 by some of his admirers to the Harvard Law School endowment fund, for the support of research fellowships bearing Brandeis' name.

This is the man, this the "dangerous radical," of whom the present Chief Justice of the United States, joining in a memorial when the fight over the Brandeis confirmation was raging in the Senate, wrote that "he is not a fit person to be a member of the United States Supreme Court!" There is no more ironic circumstance in the history of the court than that which has brought Taft and Brandeis together on the bench. The views of men, even of those who become Justices of the Supreme Court, change. One wonders what the kindly and well-intentioned Chief Justice now thinks of his part in the organized attack of the great financial interests of the country upon President Wilson's nomination of Brandeis.

Worked Way Through Harvard and Was Graduated at 20

The love of freedom is in the Brandeis blood. He was born in Louisville, Ky., in 1856 the son of a cultured and well-to-do Jew who left Bohemia as a result of the revolutionary troubles there in 1848. Both his father and his uncle were ardent Unionists in the Civil War, and one of Louis' early memories is of helping his mother carry food and coffee to the Northern soldiers in the town. He attended the public schools of Louisville. Early in the 70's the family went to Europe, and Louis was placed for two years in a Dresden realschule. His father, who valued learning, suggested that he stay in Europe and pursue an academic career, but Louis refused. He had made up his mind to come back to America and be a lawyer, like his uncle.

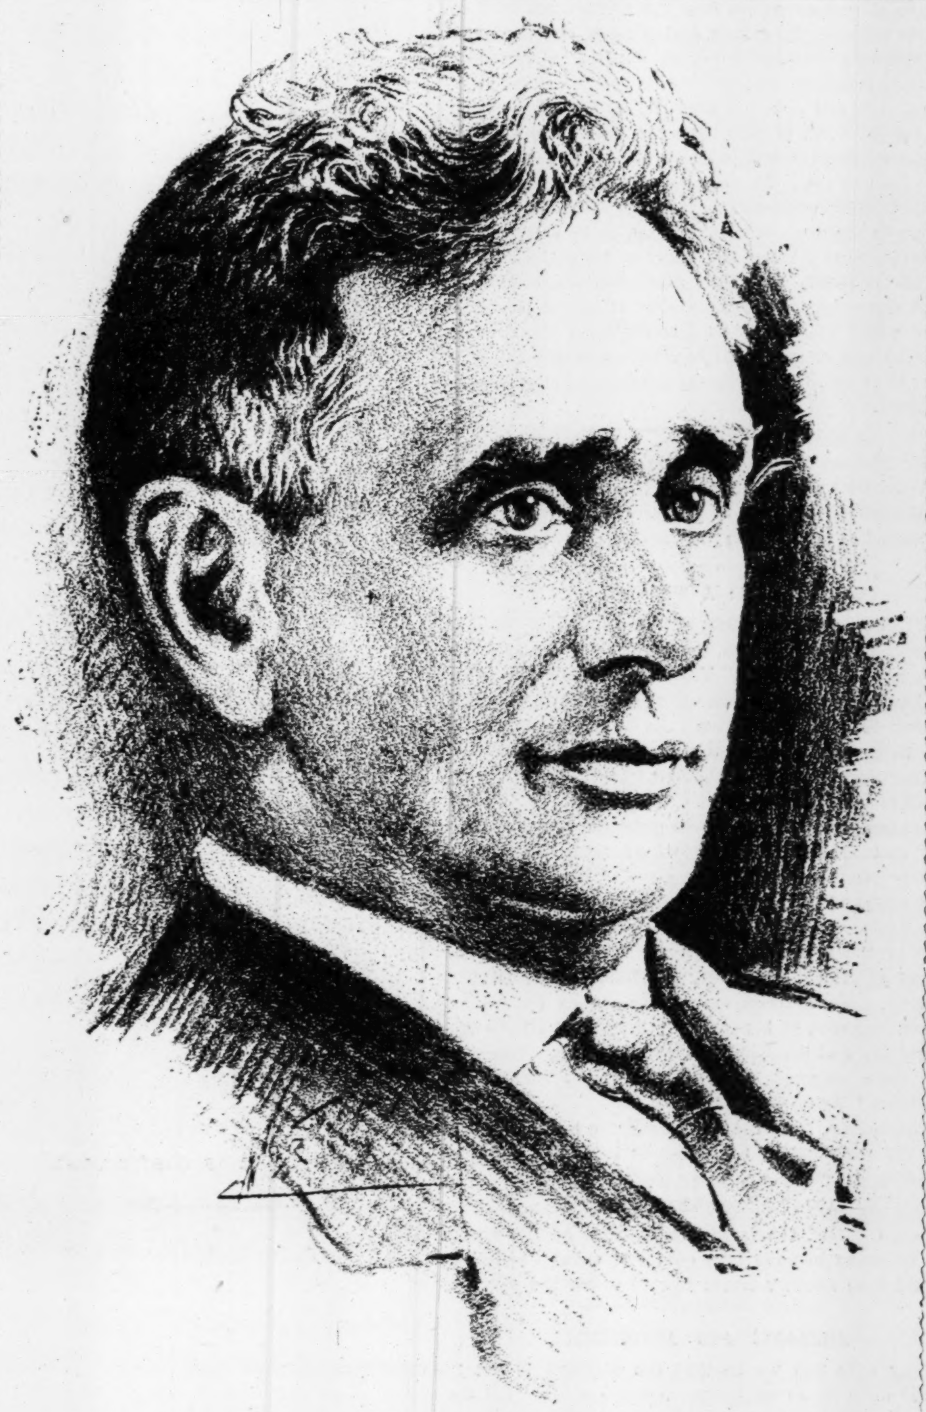
Returning in 1875, he entered the Harvard Law School. Losses suffered by his father in business made it necessary for him to work his own way. His career there was so brilliant that the rules were suspended to let him take his degree at the age of 20. Outside the class room he worked to such good success, as a tutor, that he was able to leave school with $1000 in his pocket. He put a strain on his eyes, however, from which they have never fully recovered.

"Those years" he has said, "were among the happiest of my life. I worked! For me the world's center was Cambridge."

Started to Practice in 1878 in St. Louis—Stayed a Year

Brandeis began his practice in St. Louis in 1878. He was attracted there partly by the fact that his sister, Fannie Brandeis, now dead, had married Charles Nagel. But St. Louis held him only for a year. Hearing the call of his old associations in Boston, he went back there and established himself in the firm of Warren & Brandeis. Eight years later, at the age of 30, he was a leader of the Boston bar, with a highly profitable corporation practice and an assured social position. The road to quick and easy riches lay straight ahead.

Justice Louis D. Brandeis



He chose another way, and in holding to this decision he was aided by his wife (Alice Goldmark), to whom he was married in 1891. She agreed with him upon a simple mode of living, so that time and money might be left free for public service. He began to take cases for the public without fee. As a more conventional philanthropist might increase his cash gifts to society in proportion to the rise in his income so Brandeis increased his gifts of time. Beginning in a small way, he gradually devoted more and more time to public causes, till in 1916, the year of his appointment to the Supreme Bench, he was giving better than a half. It is of record in the hearings on his nomination that on one occasion, when he declined lucrative private employment in a matter which he felt was one of public concern, he personally paid into his firm $25,000, in order that his partners might not suffer from his benefactions.

Homestead Battle Aroused Interest in Labor Problems

Through a long series of fights in the public interest Brandeis became a much loved and a much hated man. His corporation clients fell away. Back Bay society dropped him by degrees, making him finally, when he dared to attack that sacred cow of New England, the New Haven Railroad, a complete outcast. But where one client was lost another came to his door. The accumulation of great wealth never seemed to him a desirable goal; this attitude, perhaps, may be traced to the training he received in his father's house, where no child was allowed to speak of money. Nor did he or his wife care for social prestige. Thus there was nothing within the gift of his one-time associates that he really craved. He had something that they could neither give nor take away; something that appealed to him, and still appeals, as the most priceless possession in the world—freedom to be his own man.

The battle of Homestead, Pa., in 1892, where striking steel workers were shot down by hired gunmen, was the spark that set aflame his interest in labor problems.

"It took the shock of that battle," he once remarked, "where organized capital hired a private army to shoot at organized labor for resisting an arbitrary cut in wages, to turn my mind definitely toward a searching study of the relations of labor and industry."

In 1897 Brandeis did the unheard-of thing of appearing at a tariff hearing in Washington in the interest of the consumer. "I desire," he said, "to speak in behalf of those who form a far larger part of the people of this country than any who have found representation here." The committee, according to newspaper accounts of that date, showed signs of restlessness. Brandeis was reluctantly allowed to proceed, but was "interrupted by laughter and jeers."

Admitted Firm Was Wrong, and Settled a Strike

The candid honesty of the man shines through many recorded episodes of his career as a lawyer. On one occasion a client of his firm, a shoe manufacturer, told him of a labor difficulty in one of his plants. "Your superintendent," said Brandeis, "did exactly the wrong thing; it is like courting a strike." The strike came. Brandeis, appealed to, brought about a conference with the union leader. After hearing the latter's statement of the case, he said: "My client is entirely in the wrong. What are you going to do to help us out?" The union and the employer got together, and the strike was settled to the satisfaction of both sides.

Brandeis' first big fight as "the people's lawyer" was over the control of the Boston subway system. In 1896, to relieve surface congestion in the narrow Boston streets the city had built the Tremont Street subway. The West End Co., which controlled most of the surface lines, sought a long-term lease of the subway. As counsel for a small group of citizens who believed that proper safeguards should be thrown about the granting of all franchises, Brandeis forced a public hearing on the West End's proposal. The fight was carried int othe Legislature. When the lease finally was granted, it was for 20, not 50, years, and the city was guaranteed a rental of 4 7-8 per cent of the cost of construction. The victory was with the people. Brandeis declined an offered fee for his services.

"There is no fee," he said. "This is part of a plan of mine."

A fight over the same issue broke out again in 1900, when the Boston Elevated Co., which had been acquired by New York financiers, sought the right to build another subway and own it in perpetuity. The Public Franchise League, with Brandeis as counsel, contended for construction by the city, with a lease to the company on the same terms as the old one. An aroused public sentiment led to the passage, three years later, of a bill providing for the building of subways by the city, to be leased for a term of not more than 25 years, at a rental of 4½ per cent of the cost. The public had won again and again Brandeis refused compensation for his work.

Gave Half of His Time As Attorney to Service Of Public Without Pay

After a third similar victory several years later, Brandeis was able to write: "Boston has established the policy of retaining control of its transportation system. The city will own all the subways, and through this ownership and the right to revoke surface locations, will control the entire traction system, with power to compel corporations to pay what may seem from time to time adequate compensation for the use of the streets."

One of the leading spirits in the Public Franchise League was Edward A. Filene, the progressive Boston merchant who has led the way in which Brandeis calls "professionalized business." It is interesting to note also that its secretary during some of its important contests was Joseph B. Eastman, at that time an ardent young man just out of Amherst, and now the Interstate Commerce Commission's foremost advocate of the prudent-investment theory of public utility valuation. A strong and enduring attachment grew up between Brandeis and Eastman.

Opposed Merger of New Haven and the Boston and Maine

Of this phase of Brandeis' career, former Gov. David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, now Senator, wrote when the nomination of Brandeis for the Supreme bench was pending in the Senate: "He has been, as a private citizen a tireless and successful leader against powerful opposition in support of the principle that the value of the subway franchises should be kept for the public, after giving to the operating company a reasonable return for services rendered. He declined to accept any compensation for his long continued and very valuable constructive work during all these years in this cause."

It is possible within the limits of this sketch merely to touch some of the high spots of Brandeis' subsequent public struggles. He put through a plan whereby the dividends of the gas company in Boston were made dependent on the price charged the consumers; for every 5-cent reduction in the price per 1000 feet the company was allowed to increase its dividends 1 per cent. This incentive to efficient operation resulted, according to the letter of Walsh quoted above, in a lower price to the public and a correspondingly larger return to the stockholders in the company.

In a fight which attracted the attention of the country and made his name anathema in most of financial and social Boston, Brandeis vigorously and over a long period attacked the merger of the Boston & Maine with the New Haven Railroad. A feature of the contest was his series of public debates with the New Haven vice-president. He produced a wealth of figures to prove that the New Haven, through wildcat financing and mismanagement, was headed for the rocks. A great many people, including some highly respectable leaders of finance, declared that his charges were inexcusable. Brandeis referred them to "the relentless rules of humble arithmetic." Six years later his prophecies were fulfilled to the letter.

The investigation of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in 1905, in which Brandeis was the unpaid counsel for the protective committee of stockholders, led him to make a study of the insurance business. Concluding that some plan should be devised by which the wage-earners of the country might get cheaper insurance, he drew up and caused to be introduced in the Massachusetts Legislature a bill empowering savings banks to establish insurance departments. For six months, Brandeis spoke from two to six nights a week in a campaign to overcome the bitter opposition of the old industrial companies. Finally, in 1907, his bill, the first of the kind in the United States, was passed, and the next year the system began operation.

"To my personal knowledge," wrote David I. Walsh, "Mr. Brandeis has given annually thousands of dollars to further the work of bringing to the working people of our State this opportunity for less costly insurance."

Introduced "Inductive Reasoning" Theory

The name of Brandeis is gratefully associated in the minds of social workers with the successful effort to restrict the working hours of women in industry. For nine years, from 1907 to 1916, he gave his services to the National Consumers' League in a series of legal battles before State tribunals and the United States Supreme Court. The first case in this field came up from Oregon which had passed a law limiting women's work in factories and laundries to 10 hours a day. Brandeis went before the United States with an array of evidence setting out the human facts in the case, and won a unanimous decision upholding the constitutionality of the law. In subsequent proceedings he successfully defended the validity of similar laws in other States.

His briefs in these cases stand as the classic exposition of the right of the States, under the police power, to protect women in industry. Brandeis, in his labor cases, followed the revolutionary method of relying not on deductions from legal precedents, but on inductive reasoning, from a mass of facts. Both the method and the result were a shock to

From the Writings of Brandeis

EVERY legitimate occupation, be it profession or business or trade, furnishes abundant opportunities for usefulness, if pursued in what Matthew Arnold called "the grand manner." It is, as a rule, far more important how men pursue their occupation than what the occupation is which they select.

THE great achievement of the English-speaking people is the attainment of liberty through law.

ABLE lawyers have, to a large extent, allowed themselves to become adjuncts of great corporations and have neglected the obligation to use their powers for the protection of the people. We hear much of the "corporation lawyer," and far too little of the "people's lawyer." The great opportunity of the American Bar is and will be to stand again as it did in the past, ready to protect also the interests of the people.

HUMAN nature, like the inanimate, seeks the path of least resistance. To think hard and persistently is painful.

THE American standard of living demands not only a high minimum wage, but a high minimum of leisure, because we must meet also needs other than material ones. The welfare of our country demands that leisure be provided for. This is not a plea for indolence. Leisure does not imply idleness. The provision for leisure does not contemplate working less hard. It means ability to work not less, but more—ability to work at something besides bread-winning—ability to work harder while working at bread-winning, and ability to work more years at bread-winning.

OUR great beneficent experiment in democracy will fail unless the people, our rulers, are developed in character and intelligence.

* * *

WE have passed to a subtler civilization; from oppression by force we have come to oppression in other ways. And the law must still protect a man from the things that rob him of his freedom, whether the oppressing force be physical or of a subtler kind.

* * *

THERE is no subject so complex that the people cannot be interested in it and made to see the truth about it if pains enough be taken; and I believe that a common agreement of public sentiment should influence the court's decision on many a question.

* * *

IN the past the courts have reached their decisions largely deductively from preconceived notions and precedents. The method I have tried to employ in arguing cases before them has been inductive reasoning from the facts.

* * *

PROPERTY is only a means. It has been a frequent error of our courts that they have made the means an end.

* * *

WHEN property is used to interfere with that fundamental freedom of life for which property is only a means, then property must be controlled. This applies to the regulation of trusts and railroads, public utilities and all the big industries that control the necessities of life. Laws regulating them, far from being infringements on liberty, are in reality protections against infringements on liberty.

* * *

NINE-TENTHS of the serious controversies which arise in life result from misunderstanding, result from one man not knowing the facts which to the other man seem important, or otherwise failing to appreciate his point of view. A properly conducted conference involves a frank disclosure of such facts—patient, careful argument, willingness to listen and to consider.

* * *

IN the field of modern business, so rich is the opportunity for the exercise of man's finest and most varied mental faculties and moral qualities, mere money-making cannot be regarded as the legitimate end. Neither can mere growth in bulk or power be admitted as a worthy ambition. Nor can a man nobly mindful of his serious responsibilities to society, view business as a game; since with the conduct of business human happiness or misery is inextricably interwoven.

Not Asking for Increased Rates.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch

IN A recent editorial yesterday you stated that the St. Louis County Water Co, is now applying to the Public Service Commission of this State for an increase of rates. In this statement you are in error. The officials of the water company have stated not only to the members of the Municipal League of St. Louis (composed of the officials of the towns in St. Louis County which the water company serves) that no increase of rates will be requested, but also made the same statement to the commission at the recent hearing. The statement was made to the commission that the purpose of the company in asking a valuation was to have a basis for a further bond issue to finance the constant demand for extensions on the company. An idea of this demand may be gained from the testimony that each year the company is serving an additional number of customers equivalent to a town the size of Webster Groves, this company since Jan. 1, 1926 (the date as of which the property is being valued) having spent, in capital additions, the sum of about $840,000.

Your answer to this may be that the water company may sell out its properties and let its successors apply for the increase. Our reply to this would be that the company, as was testified to before this hearing, has refused an offer of $6,200,000 for the property, this being approximately the same figure at which the property is valued at reproduction new less depreciation by probably the most prominent firm of hydraulic engineers in this country, choosing rather to take its chances upon the expected development of St. Louis County.

Furthermore, this company is one of the few, if not the only company of any importance in the State, that has not asked for an increase of its rates. If it did not ask for an increase of rates during the mounting prices and lessened net returns of war times and the years immediately following, it is not likely to ask for an increase of rates at the present time.

You furthermore state that the company is asking a return on $2,700,000 more than the original investment. The testimony of the auditor of the commission was that there were no records to show the cost of construction prior to April 1, 1904. The testimony of Mr. John H. Bothwell, former president of the company, was that the construction company which had contracted to put in the original property running from the company's present intake at Hine to Kirkwood and Webster Groves, a distance of some 19 miles, had gone bankrupt; that there were no records to show its original cost and that the report upon which the auditors of the commission had estimated the original cost was incomplete in many respects.

The company did submit to the commission estimates of its engineers as to the cost of reproduction of the property new, less depreciation. This estimate was also made by the engineers of the commission. The Supreme Court of this State and the Supreme Court of the United States have laid down the rule that it is not original cost, but fair present value, upon which the company is entitled to return, and that the cost of reproduction of the property less depreciation must be given fair consideration in estimating the present value, this, however, not being the sole basis to be taken into consideration.

We have no doubt that if the early deficits in the many lean years of the company were considered, they would aggregate far more in dollars than is asked for the going value of the property, a term equivalent to good will in other properties, it also having been held that going value is a real and not a supposititious value.

Lindbergh's Courageous Father.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

THERE is no doubt that our great world air hero, Col. Charles Lindbergh, inherited much of his courage from his courageous father, the late Congressman Lindbergh of Minnesota. Congressman Lindbergh was an upstanding Progressive in the House. In 1923, the elder Lindbergh was a Farmer-Labor candidate for the Minnesota governorship. Literature circulated in his campaign said he favored:

A cash bonus for war veterans, "funds to be raised by a tax on the millions of war profiteers and others."

"Mr. Lindbergh," the circular said, "will uphold the constitutional rights of farmers and workers to organize. He is opposed to the use of injunctions in labor disputes."

Congressman Lindbergh never weakened under the pressure of greed, reaction and political emolument as a reward for disloyalty to the people.

Of course, we all are proud of our "Lindy!" But in the din of excitement let the plain people not forget his equally great father.

MR. DAWES ON THE PRIMARY.

Vice President Dawes discusses the primary system in the June number of the North American Review. He presents a grave bill against the system, but it is an indictment returned by the facts.

The primary was designed to eliminate corruption from politics or at least reduce it. It has failed to do either.

It was expected to abolish political rascals and vest party control in the rank and file of the party. As for political rascals, they are bound to be present under any form of government, Mr. Dawes says, and as regards party control, the primary has taken it out of the hands of the majority and vested it in a minority. A statistical observation on nominations and elections under the system sustains that point.

The average citizen's interest in public affairs, as expressed by his exercise of the franchise, has faded dangerously under the primary. Only 52 per cent of the qualified voters took part in the presidential election in 1924. The proportion voting in state and municipal elections is much smaller. What has happened, especially in municipal elections, is that "the general and impartial vote is decreasing, the controlled vote is increasing." By "controlled vote" Mr. Dawes means the people on the administration payroll and those having business relations with the city hall. This vote, small as compared with the whole, is by its compactness generally able to win over a scattered field. The consequence is that an administration by force of patronage is ordinarily able to continue itself in power. This situation is further secured by the fact that the opposition party is unable, as a rule, to choose candidates of such outstanding quality as to command the support of the discriminating voters in the administration party. Both parties are similarly affected as regards the personnel of candidates, by the primary, which has ushered in a golden age for the good talker, good mixer, demagogue and professional office holder.

So much for the primary as election machinery. Its effect upon legislative bodies, and, therefore, upon the conduct of public affairs, is even more disturbing. It is destroying party integrity and is creating the bloc system, which has seriously impaired parliamentary efficiency in a number of European countries.

Finally, the primary is the denial of the representative form of government, which our Constitution provides and which distinguishes the United States from so many historical essays in popular government.

Our departure from the representative system by the adoption of the primary is described "as an instance of that proneness to error in applying remedies which characterize a thoroughly indignant people." But bad as conditions were in the flagrant instances of old days, we have to charge to the primary the Michigan chapter under Newberry, the Smith-Insull partnership in Illinois and the Niagara-like orgy of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Dawes thinks we ought to face the realities. He would not abolish the primary. He would so modify it as to retain its safeguards and at the same time restore the representative character of party management and party government.

Can it be done? He admits it will be difficult. But it would be less difficult to compass this change, we believe, if thoughtful citizens of all parties would read Mr. Dawes' searching article.

A JUDGE ON YOUTH.

Saying that contemporary youth is rapidly going to the moral bow-wows has been easy and fashionable ever since it was done by King Hammurabi of Babylon, some 4100 years ago. What is neither so easy nor so fashionable is to say the contrary, and especially to say it as poignantly as it was said by Judge Learned Hand of the United States Circuit Court, in his address to the graduating class of Bryn Mawr.

> Our dangers are not from the outrageous, but from the conforming; not from those who upset our moral complacence or shock us with unaccustomed conduct, but from those, the mass of us, who take their virtues and their tastes, like their shirts and their furniture, from the limited patterns which the market offers.

Such an indorsement, coming from a member of the Federal bench, of the spirit of youth—which, as Judge Hand describes it, is ageless, because it is the spirit of rebellion and experimentation—should be more than just an antidote to the gabble of the defamers of youth. It should also serve to encourage those who are fighting against the attempt of obscurantists and petty tyrants to force the American people to take their tastes and opinions, like their clothing and their furniture, "from the limited patterns which the market offers."

MR. WELLS ON DEMOCRACY.

The refreshing feature of an attack by H. G. Wells upon some part of our contemporary civilization is that he always adds an appealing substitute.

This is what lends interest to his recent assault upon democracy, which has been bludgeoned by philosophers from Plato to Nietzsche, by political writers and historians in all periods, and by such contemporary critics as Hans Delbruck in Germany, Emile Faguet in France, and H. L. Mencken in the United States.

Mr. Wells surpasses all his predecessors in this department by outlining a system of government which he believes would prove vastly superior to the democratic one. He would have an oligarchy of public-spirited business executives assume control of each country.

The apparent virtues of this scheme are probably not deceptive. It is conceivable that an oligarchy of healthy, intelligent and unselfish leaders, trained in modern business administration, might direct most countries more efficiently than they are now being conducted, and that under such leaders the natural rights of men might be more scrupulously safeguarded than is now the case.

The cake of soap which is likely to bring disaster to Mr. Wells' scheme is the notorious reluctance of business men to enter politics. On the whole, business men in all countries have so conducted themselves as to justify the indictment which Frank Kent recently delivered against them, in which they were branded as boobs in politics. They are always complaining because government is not better conducted, and never doing anything to make it so.

If he intends to help bring about the realization of h's plan of government, Mr. Wells will find his hands full. It will be a bigger job than writing a great outline of history, or even than seeing the war through with Mr. Brittling.

THE OTHER DRY LEAGUE.

The Indianapolis W. C. T. U. has petitioned the Prosecutor of Marion County to prosecute the Governor and Attorney-General of Indiana because, on the advice of doctors, these officials violated the State bone-dry act by securing whisky for members of their families who were threatened with death.

While this action is unlikely to tell us anything new about conditions in Indiana in the dry millennium, which already are well known, it should remind us of the fact that the Antisaloon League is not the only dry organization which pursues indefensible and often antisocial policies.

The public, we dare say, is cognizant of this fact. It has, within recent years, observed the W. C. T. U. in the act of indorsing many of the outrageous policies of the league. The public has seen this organization of women influencing legislators and criticising the courts for not imposing barbaric punishment upon violators of the dry laws. Now the public observes this body demanding the prosecution of two public officials for taking a step upon which, in the opinion of physicians, depended the lives of members of their families.

Yet it is fairly safe to predict that this new action by the W. C. T. U. will, no more than have its past performances, cause it to be denounced as the Antisaloon League would be, were it to act in a similar manner. Though women are beginning to conduct themselves in politics much as do men, there seems to be a notion that women are immune from the sort of severe criticism to which men may be subjected. This was evidenced by the charge of unchivalric conduct which was hurled at Senator Reed when, some months ago, he ventured to criticise mildly the conduct of the W. C. T. U. in the notorious Pennsylvania primary.

RUSSIA: A WARNING.

When one of their people is assassinated, as was the case in Poland last week, the soviets execute 10 members of the bourgeoisie. This was the rule instituted by Lenine, and the soviets are still following it. From Odessa to Archangel, from the Ural Mountains to the Baltic, the firing squads are busy.

The Czars gave Russia the soviets. Was there ever another such warning to men everywhere? The czars oppressed the Russian people until the name of Russia was synonymous everywhere with oppression. Thirty years ago one of the popular travel lecturers and writers in the United States was George Kennan. His subject was the incredible cruelties of Russia. He told of the terror in which the Russian lived—the terror of prison, the knout, the firing squad, exile in Siberia. His descriptions of life among the exiles, whom he found in his travels toiling their lives away in misery and despair, affected people very much as we were affected in 1898 by the atrocities of "Butcher" Weyler.

The soviets, their counter terror, the terrible cheka, are the reaction. It ought not to be hard for a horrified world to see a shining moral in that.

AIRPLANES AND AUTOMOBILES.

How sure can we be that the airplane is not to burst upon us as an irruption and suddenly fill the air everywhere with flyers as calmly going about their sport and their business as we are now doing in automobiles?

At the World's Fair in St. Louis, which was held in 1904, there was a small exhibit of automobiles in the Transportation Building. There were a few automobiles upon the streets. There was not the least notion anywhere that motoring would suddenly become the chief sport of the country and that automobile making would become our leading industry. The average visitor to the fair looked curiously at the automobiles, domestic and foreign, exhibited in the Transportation Building. There was no excitement about them Nobody foresaw the sudden upspringing of the Fords and Durants. Nobody danced around any of the machines as people do at the automobile show, exclaiming: "Mother, don't you think we ought to have one like that?"

Airplanes are being made in a hundred factories over the United States. The feats of the transatlantic flyers have given a great impetus to the manufacture of planes. The Fords are pushing into the field. Is it impossible that what happened with the automobile is about to happen with the plane? Are we all going to fly, forgetting the danger, just as we put aside at last the perils of automobiling and made it safe even for women and children?

Private planes are more numerous in this country than anywhere else. The Europeans are far ahead of us in passenger air service; but more business men go about the country in planes with us, and more big corporations like Standard Oil find that they need planes for getting about. It is not a matter in which one need be the seventh son of a prophet to foresee that something is about to happen. If flying as a commonplace needed but a spark to set it off, Lindbergh has furnished it. He has made of every boy a potential flyer, and the fiery resolution of all youth is no less than that of Darius Green, who said:

Be the bluebird and phebe
Smarter 'n we be?
Does the little chatterin',
Sassy wren,
No bigger'n my thumb,
Know more'n men?
Just show me that,
Or prove the bat
Has got more brains
Than's in my hat,
An' I'll back down,
But not till then.

Rogers Hornsby, who for six years reigned at the head of the batting list in his league, is now batting only .365 and has six or eight men ahead of him. Maybe Mr. Breadon, who is less sentimental than most of us, is by that sign a better baseball owner than most of us would make.

THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS.

—By C. K. Gleeson.

THE LYRIC DEED

By John G. Neihardt, Epic Poet of the Post-Dispatch.

We sighed and said, The world's high purpose falters;
Here in the West the human hope is sold;
Behold, our cities are but monstrous altars
That reek in worship to the Beast of Gold!

Now no rapt silence hears the bard intoning;
Our lurid stacks paint out the ancient awe,
And lock-step millions to the motor's moaning
Are herded into Moloch's yawning maw.

With men we stoke our diabolic fires;
Of smithied hearts the soaring steel is made
To dwarf and darken all our godward spires
With drunken towers of Trade.

We said it, blinded with the sweat of duty,
And now, behold! emerging from the dark,
Winged with the old divinity of beauty,
Our living dream mounts morning like a lark!

Of common earth men wrought it, and of wonder;
With lightning have men bitted it and shod;
The throat of it is clothed with singing thunder—
And Lindbergh rides with God!

We have not known, but surely now we know it;
Not thus achieve venality and greed;
The dreaming doer is the master poet—
And lo, the perfect lyric in a deed!

The sunset and the world's new morning hear it,
Ecstatic in the rhythmic motor's roar,
Not seas shall sunder now the human spirit,
For space shall be no more!

IL DUCE HAS POLICE RECORD.

From Liberty.

BENITO MUSSOLINI, dictator of Italy, is one of the new heads of governments, outside of Russia, who has a police record. For Mussolini was an aggressive radical before the war and for his revolutionary activities served several jail sentences and paid many fines.

The official record of Mussolini's infractions of the Italian law, secretly copied by a well-known writer whose identity, for obvious reasons, is withheld, shows that the Italian dictator's misdemeanors ranged from "making a public speech without due notice" to "threats with arms in hand."

On Oct. 16, 1911, for instance, he was arrested on the occasion of a radical demonstration against the Italian expedition to Tripoli and accused of the following crimes: "1. Resistance to the public authorities and acts of violence against public officials. 2. Violent interference with the freedom of men called under arms. 3. The closing by violent means of industrial businesses and factories . . . 4. The stoppage by violent means of the tramways of the Romagna . . . 5. Damaging the telephone lines. 6. Damaging the state telegraph lines. . . 7. Forcing by violent means the stopping of a locomotive. 8. Placing a telegraph pole across a railway line, with danger to an express train."

His editorship of the radical paper, "Avanti," brought him into conflict with the authorities many times, during one of which Mussolini expressed the hope for "better days for the liberty of the press."

WALTER HAGEN HAS "IT."

From The New Yorker.

EVEN when he is playing badly Hagen's magnetism keeps the gallery watching him. Al Watrous tells a story of how, in a tournament at the Olympia Fields Club in Chicago he saw John Farrell go by on an adjacent fairway, followed only by his caddy.

"How y' doing, Johnny?" called Watrous.

"Wonderful," replied Farrell, who had been playing the best golf of his life and was leading the tournament by a big margin. "I'm breaking the course record."

"Where's your gallery?"

"Over behind the clubhouse, watching Hagen play mumblety-peg."

CONGRESSIONAL PARTY TOURS PHILIPPINES

Natives Resent Unjust Criticisms by Americans—Dislike Charity Classification.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch and the Chicago Daily News. (Copyright, 1927.)

MANILA, P. I., May 7.—Two cargoes of United States Congressmen arrived in Manila on two army transports, the Thomas and the Somme. The Congressmen are observing "in order to be personally informed," they say, regarding the Philippine problem. About all there is to this problem is the relationship politically of Filipinos and the Philippines to the United States.

The United States fears to take the Filipinos on as citizens and won't turn them loose to make a Japanese or Chinese holiday. In law, so far as it has been defined, they are American nationals, a term the courts have found outside the Constitution. The status is not quite satisfying, so there is a perpetual demand for "complete, immediate and absolute independence."

Democrats, native to a large section prejudiced against color, say, "Yes, sure, independence — you ought to have it." Republicans, native to another section whose manufactures feed upon raw products, say, "Why, men, you're independent now! You have all the benefits of American government and are not taxed for it. Besides, Japan would gobble you up! See all the things—schools, courts, armies, navies, protection, security—we give you!"

Resent Charity Classification.

But cultured and educated people don't like to be like tramps feeding sumptuously at another people's back door. The problem resolves itself into personal relationship and argument doesn't solve it. Solution isn't a bit easy. Most of the Congressman are making a fine impression here upon their own people as well as Filipinos. They have been guilty of few blunders. Universally they speak highly of Gen. Leonard Wood, Senator Burton K. Wheeler of Montana telling Filipino reporters that nearly all Americans regard Gen. Wood as a man of high talents. Of course, the Republicans' praise is unmeasured.

Unjust Criticisms Few.

As long as the Congressmen keep away from personalities and comparisons they fare well. But W. W. Chalmers of Ohio told Manila Rotarians, an international group, that "the home with the disciplinary father and the sympathetic self-sacrificing mother doesn't exist in Philippines. You do not have it here." He said, too, that it would take herculean effort on the part of Rotarians to change this unhappy condition affecting growing-up generations. The observation is notoriously in error, family fidelity being proverbial in the Philippines. Nowhere are parents more self-sacrificing and nowhere are children more obedient.

John Q. Tilson's statements were generally pleasing, but included a criticism of the wayside houses of the peasants on the road from Manila to Baguio, saying they attested a want of appreciation of fine surroundings—something precisely to this effect. On the contrary, they attest the best the peasants, with an unusual appreciation of beauty and esthetic values, are able to do under the hard circumstances of their lives.

JUDGE DAVIS DROPS POLICY OF LENIENCY IN DRY CASES

Sends Three Liquor Sellers to Jail for 60 Days Each and Warns Future Offenders.

Federal Judge Davis, before whom most bootleggers have preferred to appear when entering pleas of guilty to first offenses against the liquor laws because he had a policy of imposing only fines, whether the offense was sale or possession, yesterday announced a radical change in policy.

With the declaration that "from now on" he would deal with liquor law violators more severely, he sentenced Joseph Perrino, proprietor of a barroom at 3699 Olive street to 60 days in jail on his plea of guilty to selling liquor. Joseph Marrioni, 5759 Manchester avenue, and Bert Bianca, 1400 Morgan street, followed with pleas to similar offenses and each received the same punishment. The maximum punishment for sale of liquors under the Volstead act is six months in jail. The three defendants were first offenders.

After imposing sentences Judge Davis said "hereafter wherever possible I will impose jail sentences on this class of offender."

The Philosophy of Justice Brandeis

One of the most memorable of Brandeis' achievements was his settlement of the New York Garment Workers' strike in 1910. This involved some 70,000 workers and a business of $180,000,000 a year. After two fruitless attempts at adjustment, Brandeis was called in by both sides. He donated his services. The outcome was an agreement on a plan of his invention with provision for a board of arbitration to handle future differences. Brandeis was made chairman of this board and served on it for four years.

As counsel for Louis R. Glavis in 1910, Brandeis was a leading figure in the famous congressional investigation of Secretary of the Interior Ballinger. His devastating examination of Ballinger and others who sought to defend the acts of that official against the Glavis charges is a vivid memory of those who attended the hearings. It was largely as a result of the public sentiment created by Brandeis through the press that Ballinger resigned.

"I worked with him through the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy," said Norman Hapgood, at that time the editor of Collier's, which sponsored the Glavis charges, "and I never saw a grasp of detail more brilliantly combined with high constructive ethical and political thinking."

Soon after this, Brandeis took the case of Eastern shippers against an application before the Interstate Commerce Commission for increased railroad freight rates. Brandeis argued that if the railroads needed greater income they should get it through increasing their managerial efficiency. He declared that the railroads could save a million dollars a day by applying the principles of scientific management. To permit the desired increase, he said, would result merely in putting a premium on uneconomical management. The commission declined to raise the rates. Brandeis' argument aroused national interest in the question of scientific management.

"Regulated Monopoly" vs. "Regulated Competition."

Brandeis had a large part in the first campaign of Woodrow Wilson for the presidency. It was from him that Wilson got his cue for the Democratic position on the trusts. Roosevelt was for "regulated monopoly;" Wilson came out for "regulated competition." In a signed statement in Collier's a few weeks before the election Roosevelt charged that the public mind had been poisoned against his monopoly ideas by three men: Woodrow Wilson, Louis D. Brandeis and Norman Hapgood. Hapgood has testified that he did little except put Brandeis' views into journalistic form, and that Wilson was well content to have the leading work on that subject done by Brandeis.

These views are summed up in a volume, entitled "Other People's Money," comprising a series of articles by Brandeis that ran in Harper's Weekly in 1913 and 1914. The articles are a terrific indictment of the "money trust." They are credited with having had a share in the passage of the currency reform legislation of the Wilson administration.

"On nothing has he ever worked harder," writes Hapgood, "than on his diagnosis of the money trust, and when his life comes to be written (I hope many years hence) this will be ranked with his railroad work for its effect in accelerating industrial changes. . . He was the first person who set forth effectively the doctrine that there is a limit to the size of greatest efficiency, and the successful demonstration of that truth is a profound contribution to the subject of trusts."

Discussed Bankers' Failures in "Other People's Money."

"Other People's Money" reveals Brandeis as a writer of great force and clarity. It bristles with such hard-hitting expressions as these:

"The Astor wealth is static. The wealth of the Morgan associates is dynamic. The power and the growth of power of our financial oligarchs comes from wielding the savings and quick capital of others."

"The practiec of interlocking directorates is the root of many evils. It offends laws human and divine."

"J. P. Morgan & Co. declare . . . that 'practically all the railroad and industrial development of this country has taken place initially through the medium of the great banking houses.' That statement is entirely unfounded in fact. On the contrary, every such contribution to our comfort and prosperity was 'initiated' without their aid. The 'great banking houses' came into relation with these enterprises, either after success had been attained, or upon 'reorganization' after the possibility of successes had been demonstrated, but the funds of the hardy pioneers, who had risked their all, were exhausted.'

"There is not one moral, but many, to be drawn from the Decline of the New Haven and the Fall of Mellen. That history offers texts for many sermons. It illustrates the evils of monopoly, the curse of bigness, the futility of lying, and the pitfalls of law-breaking. But perhaps the most impressive lesson that it should teach to investors is the failure of banker-management."

Slated by Wilson for Attorney-General.

President Wilson fully intended that Brandeis should be his Attorney-General, but the pressure of Boston financial interests, exerted through men high in the Wilson campaign, caused the appointment to be withheld. The victory of the interests was elusive; on Jan. 28, 1916, the President nominated Brandeis to be a member of the United States Supreme Court, to succeed the late Justice Lamar. Then began a savage fight on Brandeis that continued until his confirmation by the Senate five months later, by a vote of 47 to 22, with 27 not voting.

Both the Missouri Senators, Reed and Stone, voted for confirmation. Borah did not vote on the question in the Senate, but he signed the minority report from the Judiciary Committee against Brandeis. He has lived to regret that opposition. Among the other Senators opposing the nomination were Fall, Harding, Lodge and Sutherland, who now sits with Brandeis on the Supreme bench.

The opposition to Brandeis was due much more to his economic opinions and his willingness to fight for them than to the fact that he was a Jew—the first Jew, incidentally, to become a member of the Supreme Court. He was assailed as a "dangerous radical" and a man lacking in "judicial temperament." The powerful world of finance was against him almost to a man. The Boston bar was represented as strongly opposed to the appointment; it developed, however, as the long hearings before the Judiciary Committee proceeded, that he had stanch friends as well as antagonists among his colleagues. President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard signed a petition against him, but Emeritus President Charles W. Eliot, paying tribute to his character "in which gentleness, courage and joy in combat were intimately blended," wrote that the rejection of his nomination "would be a grave misfortune for the whole legal profession, the Court, all American business, and the country."

"A Great Lawyer and a Great Citizen," Said Walsh.

Former Governor Walsh, after reviewing his career of public service, summed up: "He is a great lawyer and a great citizen. Is not this a combination for a great Judge?"

President Wilson, in writing to the Judiciary Committee, quoted the opinion of the late Chief Justice Fuller that Brandeis was the ablest man who ever appeared before the Supreme Court, a man "absolutely fearless in the discharge of his duties."

"I nominated Mr. Brandeis for the Supreme Court," wrote the President, "because it was, and is, my deliberate judgment that, of all the men now at the bar whom it has been my privilege to observe, test and know, he is exceptionally qualified. I cannot speak too highly of his impartial, impersonal, orderly and constructive mind, his rare analytical powers, his deep human sympathy, his profound acquaintance with the historical roots of our institutions and insight into their spirit, or of the many evidences he has given of being imbued to the very heart with our American ideals of justice and equality of opportunity; of his knowledge of modern economic conditions and of the way they bear upon the masses of the people, or of his genius in getting persons to unite in common and harmonious action and look with frank and kindly eyes into each other's minds, who had before been heated antagonists. This friend of justice and of men will ornament the high court of which we are all so justly proud."

"Charges" And More "Charges" Aired Before Committee.

Various "charges" against Brandeis were laid before the committee. One of these most emphasized was that he had been "unethical" in the conduct of certain cases. In this connection it was urged that he was guilty of impropriety in taking cases against the United Shoe Machinery Co., for which he had previously acted as attorney. It was developed at the hearings that four years elapsed between the severance of his connection with the shoe company, because of his disapproval of some of its practices, and his work against it. The majority of the committee exonerated Brandeis on this count, and Senator Walsh of Montana added the trenchant comment:

"It is not an uncommon view on the part of those who manage great industries and command many men that they may insure the support of lawyers on public questions by putting them on the payroll or paying them from time to time for legal services. In the case of Brandeis the assumption seems not to have been well founded. In that he did something to dispel that notion, he deserves well of his profession."

Another of the criticisms was that Brandeis erred professionally in not telling the Ballinger investigating committee that he was being paid by Colliers for acting as Glavis' counsel. This charge was too thin even for some of those who oppose Brandies on other scores.

Still another charge centered about the conduct of Brandeis as a special attorney employed by the Interstate Commerce Commission in 1913 to advise it regarding a plea of the railroads for a 5 per cent freight rate increase. In closing his case Brandeis conceded that railroad revenues on the whole were insufficient, and suggested that they be raised by economies in management. His critics maintained that even though his studies had convinced him that the railroads needed more money, he should not have made the admission. Senator Walsh demolished their argument in two sentences: "Mr. Brandeis' critics are hard to please. In the Ballinger case it is said he should have been more frank with the court; in this case, that he should have been less so."

The precise and coldly logical Walsh, after tearing down the various items in the case against Brandeis, permitted himself this impatient outburst:

"The real crime of which this man is guilty is that he has exposed the iniquities of men in high places in our financial system. He has not stood in awe of the majesty of wealth. He has, indeed, often represented litigants, corporate and individual, whose commercial rating was high, but his clients have not been exclusively of that class. He seems to have been sought after in causes directed against the most shining marks in it. He has been an iconoclast. He has written about and expressed views on 'social justice,' to which vague term are referred movements and measures to obtain greater security, greater comfort and better health for the industrial workers. They all contemplate that a man's a man and not a machine . . . .

"The man who never represents the public or the impecunious citizen in any great forensic contest, but always the cause of corporate wealth, never has these troubles. It is always the other fellow whose below par."

Upheld the Right of Labor to Strike.

The dissents of Justice Brandeis, with those of his fellow progressive, Justice Holmes, make a shining chapter in the history of liberalism.

Brandeis is always the realist; he believes that the law must take account of the changing facts of life. "The judgment," he said in one case, "should be based upon the consideration of all the relevant facts, actual or possiblie." This was the method which he urged upon the court in defending before it the constitutionality of the women's labor laws. We find him using the same method in a minority opinion a year after he had gone upon the bench. A majority of the court declared unconstitutional a Washington State law prohibiting employment agencies from charging fees to applicants for work. Brandeis in his dissent told vividly how the unemployed were often fleeced by agencies. He was joined in his opinion by Justices Holmes and Clarke (the latter since has resigned).

His views on the labor problem are well known. In a famous dissenting opinion in the Hitchman Coal and Coke Co. case, which came up from the turbulent West Virginia coal fields, he wrote what has been called a charter of labor's rights—a dissent in which he vigorously upheld the right of labor to strike in order to secure a wage agreement. Again he was supported by Holmes and Clarke.

Holmes and Brandeis dissented in the case of the Milwaukee Social Democratic Publishing Co. against Burleson, where the question was raised whether the Postmaster General had the power to refuse second-class rates to a newspaper the second-class entry of which he had revoked on the ground that it was unmailable.

Comment on Action of Postmaster-General Burleson.

"If, under the Constitution," wrote Brandeis, "administrative officers may, as a mere incident to the peacetime administration of their departments, be vested with the power to issue orders such as this, there is little substance in our Bill of Rights, and in every extension of governmental functions lurks a new danger to civil liberty."

In the case of Burdeau vs. McDowell, Brandeis condemned the acceptance of stolen documents by government officials for the purpose of using them in legal proceedings. He said:

"At the foundation of our civil liberty lies the principle which denies to government officials an exceptional position before the law and which subjects them to the same rules of conduct that are commands to the citizen. And in the development of our liberty, insistence upon procedural regularity has been a large factor. Respect for law has not been advanced by resort, in its enforcement, to means which shock the common man's sense of decency and fair play."

Again with Holmes (and joined also on this occasion by the conservative McReynolds) Brandeis dissented from the recent decision in the Myers case, in which the court gave the President the power to remove without the consent of the Senate officials whom he can appoint only with its consent. In another recent case, that involving the validity of the California criminal syndicalism law, he championed anew, and in unforgettable language, the right of free speech.

Brandeis in 1923, in the Southwestern Bell case, gave clear voice to the prudent-investment theory of public-utility valuation, and he remains its most conspicuous and effective exponent.

Through his expressions from the bench runs his passion for justice to the common man. He believes profoundly that the Constitution was set up to protect human rights as well as property rights. He abhors special privilege. He is alert against the encroachments of organized wealth on the guaranteed liberties of the people. He would permit free speech, free assemblage, and a free press within the widest possible limits; the remedy for error, he has said, is not repression of speech, but more speech. He stands against the assumption of arbitrary power by officials. Such is the radicalism of Brandeis.

Gave Dignity to the Zionist Movement.

With all the fervor of his nature, Brandeis late in life threw himself into the Zionist movement for the restoration of Palestine as the Jewish national home. He became the leader of the movement in the United States and gave it new dignity and prestige. His associates in this work, which bore fruit in the Balfour Declaration, have paid warm tribute to the character of his services. He gave generously both of his time and money. His active leadership in Zionism has ended, but he is still regarded as one of its great inspirational forces.

Achieves Goal of Spiritual and Mental Freedom.

Justice Brandeis has been selected by readers of the Jewish Tribune as one of the 12 outstanding Jews of America. The opinion of Rabbi Stephen S. Wise that he is the "greatest of living Jews" is widely shared.

Observe the bust of Lincoln on your way to the Supreme Court chamber; then look at Brandeis. The remarkable facial resemblance will be at once apparent. The gray-blue eyes of the justice are deep-set, the cheekbones prominent. The mouth is broad and expressive. A heavy crop of hair, once black but now thickly sprinkled with gray, crowns a high forehead. As the face has taken on new and deeper lines, it has become more and more like the face of Lincoln.

The Justice and Mrs. Brandeis live simply in an apartment in Northwest Washington. They have two daughters. Susan, the elder, who is now Mrs. Jacob H. Gilbert of New York, practices law under her maiden name; her husband also is a lawyer. Elizabeth is the wife of Paul Raushenbush of Madison, Wis. Both are teaching economics at the University of Wisconsin.

Off the bench Justice Brandeis does most of his work from 5 to 8, before breakfast. He has found that his best form of mental relaxation is to read "far away in time and place" — in ancient history. He loves books, pictures, music, good conversation. He is fond of quoting Heine. A friend once likened his dining table to a "continuous university."

But such personal bits fail to give a conception of the man's glowing individuality. His face radiates intelligence and warm human sympathy. One feels in his presence that here is indeed, as Wilson said, a friend of justice and of men. A friend once said of him: "I never meet him without feeling some sort of religious thrill."

Above all things else he values freedom. He believes that what the world most needs today is not physical courage—for this it has in large abundance—but moral courage. He believes, as one can discern from his writings, that we have paid for our great material prosperity by falling into a condition of comfortable servitude.

"I have only one life," he once said, "and it's short enough. Why waste it on things that I don't want most? And I don't want property or money most. I want to be free."

To be free, spiritually and mentally free—that to Brandeis is the aim and the end of life. He has achieved his goal.

Revive Greek Church in U. S.

By the Associated Press.

ATHENS, June 18.—Measures for reorganization of the Greek Church in America have been decided on by the Minister of Education. The Greek Church in America is described as in a state of disorganization, and the Ministry announces it will be revived under the Church of Greece, which will send clergymen "to replace irregularly appointed Bishops."

PANELIZED TIMBER

$10 will buy enough for the average bathroom

IS there a woman who hasn't wished a thousand times that she had immaculate white tile walls in her kitchen and bathroom? And now there is scarcely a woman who cannot have this wish come true. For now a $10 bill will buy enough Cornell Tile Board for practically any kitchen, bathroom or laundry. It costs only a few cents a square foot.

Cornell Tile Board is panelized timber with deep, clean cut tile patterns impressed into it. These big, convenient panels of tile can be applied over old walls or direct to new partitions. It is easy to fit and apply around openings or fixtures. The only tools needed are a hammer and a saw.

Cornell Tile Board is made entirely of hardy northern timber. It is tough and rigid. It will not crack or break. When enameled it is easily kept spotless and lustrous. Wherever clean, sanitary walls are desirable, Cornell Tile Board offers you a most economical way to have them.

Owners of lunchrooms, meat markets, restaurants, etc.—as well as home owners — welcome the economy of Cornell Tile Board. Any carpenter or lumberman will gladly give you estimates for tiling your walls this inexpensive way. Or write to us for free samples.

ST. LOUIS BOY SCOUTS AT CAMP IRONDALE

150 Arrive on Special Train for Three Weeks of Work and Play.

Camp Irondale, summer Mecca for the 6000 Boy Scouts in St. Louis and St. Louis County, threw open its gates yesterday to 150 boys, arriving on a special train for three weeks of camping, hiking, scout work, and games, to officially open the thirteenth annual camp of the St. Louis Boy Scout council. This three-week section, longer by a week than any of the other four to be held this year, is the first regular section for St. Louis scouts, although on the camp program it is designated the Second Section.

The First Section, which started June 4, and concluded yesterday, was known as the Railroad Camp, and was for scouts living in towns along the Missouri Pacific and M. R. & B. T. Railroads. Troops in these towns are under general supervision of the St. Louis Council, through a railroad Scout executive maintained by the first-mentioned line.

Program Is Innovation.

The three-weeks' section is an innovation, having been formed for the first time this year in answer to numerous requests that at least one longer period than two weeks be provided. The extension will enable this section to include the annual Fourth of July Sham Battle, wherein the entire camp is divided into two warring halves for 24 hours.

Another innovation this year is the Tepee, or All-Summer Camp, which will open July 1. This camp, in the charge of Activities Director L. L. Hotchkiss, is limited to 40 boys, who will pass the entire summer on hikes, auto trips and at Irondale. Approximately 1000 miles will be traveled throughout the southeastern part of the State during the camp, mostly by bus, one of which the local council has just purchased. The bus, carrying 36 boys and equipment, will be used on all distance trips away from Irondale, horses or hiking being employed on the one-day trips.

While Irondale will remain the headquarters of the Tepee campers, most of the summer will be spent on trips, one, a two weeks' camp along the St. Francis River in the new Sam A. Baker State Park. On this camp stress will be laid on water activities, including fishing, swimming and boating, under the direction of Arthur Werder, holder of several swimming and diving records. Leadership also will be featured, each of the campers being given a chance to handle the entire camp, and receiving thorough instruction in this subject.

Two Weeks' Bus Trip.

Another feature of the Tepee will be a two weeks' bus trip through the Ozarks, where the scouts will visit the places of interest along the way, including State parks, game preserves and fish hatcheries. Shorter trips will be taken to the industrial region to the north; to the lead mines at Bonne Terre, the iron mines at Ironton, and the glass factories at Crystal City. The final trip will be a boat hike down the Big River.

Besides these special trips each member of the Tepee Camp will be given instruction in horsemanship, the boys using the Ranger horses while on the reservation. The Tepee Camp also will establish its own council fire, and be maintained as an idividual camp, separate from both the Main and the Ranger camps. There are still eight more reservations open for this group, Director Hotchkiss announced Friday.

Sodding Lawn Their "Good Turn"

MEMBERS of Boy Scout Troop 88 who performed a "good turn" for the Salem Evangelical Church, where their headquarters are located, last week, by turning over and sodding 40 square yards of the church lawn at Margaretta and Shreve avenues. The scouts also removed earth from around the edges of the sidewalks and curbs, and filled in with loads of small gravel.

Boy Scout Notes

South District.

Troop 155 held a Flag day service at the McCausland Avenue Presbyterian Church last Sunday evening. The troop marched into the church to the tune of "Onward Christian Soldiers," after which the congregation joined in singing "America." Scout William Tuobs read the Scripture lesson. Scout Hugh Johnson read from former President Harding's Flag day address. Scout Preston Williams gave the history of the flag, and the Rev. J. M. Thompson preached a sermon on "Following the Flag," followed by the congregation singing the "The Star-Spangled Banner." Senior Patrol Leader Robert Higgs led in the pledge of allegiance, after which the troop bugler, Dick Briell, blew "To the Colors."

Troop 141 finished the inter-patrol contest as follows: Raccoon patrol first, Wild Cat patrol second, Night Hawks third. The patrols are passing tests at the present time. This troop had a week-end hike May 28, 29 and 30, and is planning a week-end hike over the Fourth of July. Several scouts acted as escorts for the Sigel School at the picnic. The troop in general is doing much work, and hopes to earn the coup stick soon.

Scout Eugene Miller has won a trip to Camp Irondale, offered by Troop 143, for the best scouting work done this spring. Scout Miller joined the troop Jan. 24, completed his second class requirements March 18, became first class May 9, and now has an application for Star Scout rank on file at local headquarters. This is one of the most rapid advancements on record in St. Louis. The Parents' Club of the troop is going to send the scouts on a camping trip July 2, 3 and 4 on the Big River. As its community good turn in the achievement contest, the troop is placing street signs in the county, from Highland avenue to Jefferson Barracks. The Bear patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest. The troop is on a hike today.

Eighteen members of Troop 155, with the scoutmaster, went on an overnight hike to the troop's new camp last Saturday and Sunday.

West District.

A number of West District troops have concluded their regular troop meetings for the summer, but some hikes and week-end camps have been planned to take place of the regular meetings. Among the troops that have reported their plans for the summer are Troops 2, 5, 54 and 98.

Troop 6, of the Second Presbyterian Church, held its most important hike of the season last Saturday when 14 Scouts and Scoutmaster Forsythe hiked to their camp on Clayton road. The morning was spent in map-making and playing games. After lunch they had a treasure hunt, which was won by the Mohawk Patrol. Four scouts passed first-class cooking, two passed second-class cooking, and three passed the fire-building tests. About 4 o'clock in the afternoon, Assistant Scoutmaster Lynes arrived, and shortly afterward the Rev. U. L. Euwer visited and inspected the camp. Mr. Euwer, who is chairman of the Troop Committee, spoke to the troop and encouraged them to continue their good work in scouting. He gave them an "A" rating on the inspection. After supper a game of "capture-the-flag" was played, and a discussion was held around the council fire. Assistant Scoutmaster Lyens, who has been away all winter attending Missouri University, outlined the summer plans for the troop. Camp was broken at 9 o'clock.

Troop 46, of the Immanuel Baptist Church, followed its custom for 11 successive years by hiking to Jefferson Barracks, May 30. They left troop headquarters at 8:30 and arrived at the woods below the Barracks at 10 o'clock. Scoutmaster Hall was unable to accompany the troop on the hike, but drove down later and joined the troop in time to participate in the activities in the afternoon. This, the first time Scoutmaster Hall has been unable to make the hike with the boys, was caused by his recent illness. One of the features of the hike the scouts enjoyed was an opportunity to parade with the regulars and the veterans from the drill grounds to the National Cemetery.

Troop 94 of St. Barbara's Catholic School held its first tenderfoot investiture ceremony June 9. The following boys were awarded their tenderfoot pins: A. Hilke, H. Hundelt, C. Goede, V. Arnold, V. Soppitt, R. Kelsy, E. Becker, G. Vogt, G. Hucke, G. Deters, T. Eckert, A. Haberstock, H. Burx, T. O'Connor and J. Muchling. The thrift and outdoor members of the troop committee presented the pins to the scouts and also gave talks to the boys on scouting.

Troop 23 of the Gibson Heights Presbyterian Church will hold a picnic and hike on one of the picnic grounds of Forest Park next Saturday. At the last meeting of the troop the scouts held their best meeting in the church. Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Olsanetsky and Patrol Leader Duddy laid a trail for a novel hike. After the novelty hike a game of "capture-the-flag" was played. Scoutmaster Usher has promised to buy an American flag for the troop as soon as an active membership of 25 scouts has been obtained. Only a few more boys are needed to earn this award.

A new game, the "compass game," was introduced at the last meeting of Troop 59. It was instructive and met with the approval of all present. Scout Earnest Stille was awarded his second class pin.

Two cups, for the best individual and patrol records of the year in Troop 54 were awarded at a troop meeting at the Temple Israel a week ago Thursday, as a climax to the troop's activities for the season. The scouts will not meet again until September. Both cups were presented to Patrol Leader Hyman Waltrich, the Dick Richards cup for individual achievement to him personally, and the Steinberg Memorial Patrol advancement cup to him as leader of the winning patrol—the Beavers. The other members of the Beaver patrol are Paul Jackson, assistant patrol leader, Billy Anspacker, Edward Sterneck, Nathan Sherman, Lewis Cohen and Albert Steinbaum. A. W. Baum's Flying Eagle Patrol came second in the cup contest.

North District.

Gorman Bartay, new patrol leader of the Flying Eagle patrol of Troop 72, was officially admitted into the officers' club of the troop and taught the secret handclasp, sign and password Wednesday evening as a reward for bringing his patrol up to full membership strength. He accomplished this by bringing back several old members who had dropped out. Most of the meeting was spent passing tests. Each patrol put on a play.

The troop committee presented Troop 3 an American flag to be raised on the grounds of the Grace Hill Community Center. The raising and lowering the flag each day has been given to Scout Gilbert Austin, who has attended to this honor faithfully. A new member, Mr. Anderson, has been added to the troop committee. The troop is on a hike to Falling Springs today.

The scouts of Troop 206 have been asked to act as ushers at the graduation exercises of the Beaumont High School tomorrow evening. Seven scouts from the troop, accompanied by the scoutmaster, took a hike last Sunday, and were caught in a rain-and-windstorm. In the evening the hikers were joined by two more boys from the troop, and one of the troop committeemen. Nineteen members were present at the last troop meeting.

Suburban District.

Eleven scouts of Webster Groves 2 spent last Saturday and Sunday in a lean-to camp, made of materials gathered by the boys in the woods south of Affton. Despite the hand-made shelters, a heavy wind and rain coming up about midnight failed to dampen either the spirits or the bedding of the campers, who made use of their bedding ponchos for additional protection. The scouts who attended the hike were Harry Holekamp, Frank Orchard, A. Halikan, H. T. Jackson, D. Jones, R. R. Hillman, W. Knoght, W. B. Medley and W. Stoecker.

SCOUTS TAKE IMPORTANT PART IN LINDBERGH GREETING

St. Louis scouts played an important part in the reception given Col. Lindbergh yesterday morning. Beginning at Kingshighway and Lindell and extending down both sides of Lindell boulevard to Grand avenue, scouts formed a guard line and assisted the police in keeping the crowd on the streets.

A special guard of honor, consisting of two groups of 120 scouts each, met the parade at Spring and Lindell and escorted it to a point directly in front of the reviewing stand, where a short ceremony was held.

During this ceremony Col. Lindbergh was presented with an honorary membership in Troop 2 of the Pilgrim Congregational Church. This honor was conferred upon him by Eagle Scout Murray Cabell. Patrol Leader Winfield Homer of the Flying Eagle Patrol presented Col. Lindbergh with a patrol medallion of that patrol. Eagle Scout Joseph Ehrhardt presented the famous flyer with a Scout knife, on which was the inscription, "To Scout Lindy from the Scouts of St. Louis." Scout George Langenberg presented Mrs. Lindbergh with a bouquet of roses from the Scouts of St. Louis.

Ten Eagle Scouts served as ushers and messengers at the reviewing stand, while 150 picked scouts served as ushers in the bleachers, and 40 scouts served as messengers in the five Red Cross booths.

HORSE SHOW OPENS AT BARRACKS FRIDAY

200 Entries to Compete in Civilian and Military Contests.

The sixth annual Military and Civilian Horse Show will open at Jefferson Barracks next Friday afternoon and will continue through Sunday afternoon. More than 75 horses have been entered, bringing total entries in the various events to about 200.

Events scheduled include demonstrations by army officers and enlisted men in running, jumping, polo strokes, weaving contests for polo ponies, charging, and machine gun squad drilling. There will be prizes in runs for three and five gaited horses. There also is to be a Shetland pony competition.

Herbert Wolff of Kansas City has entered several horses, five are entered from the Midland stables of Pueblo, Colo.; 40 have been entered by St. Louisans and 30 are booked by the army and army officers.

Formerly the annual show, under auspices of the St. Louis Riding and Driving Club and Jefferson Barracks, has limited its entries to St. Louis and vicinity. Profits derived will go to the Jefferson Barracks athletic fund.

BERLIN COVERS LARGEST AREA

Only Two Other Cities Exceed It in Population, Figures Show.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—Berlin covers more ground than any other city in the world and its population is exceeded only by that of New York and London. According to the somewhat heterogeneous statistics published by the Berlin Statistical Bureau, the city has 6000 streets with 445 bridges and 90,000 buildings with 1,500,000 apartments, besides 51,870 acres of forests.

The population numbers 38,000 infants under 1 year old. There are 54 per cent more women than men. Of the city inhabitants, 3,000,000 are Protestants, 400,000 Catholics and 172,000 Jews. Approximately 2,200,000 persons have employment of some kind or another and every year more than 32,000 marriages are contracted.

GENEVA INTO ITS OWN AS 'WORLD CAPITAL'

League Activities Draw Persons From All Nations to Swiss City.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, June 18.—This city is sticking out its chest since it has come to be blazoned forth as the "World Capital." And it is trying to justify the name.

Of course Geneva, like many other cities, thinks it always has been the most important in the world and really didn't need the League of Nations and the 50 odd other international organizations which have their headquarters here to prove its greatness. Its light has shone since the prehistoric days when its people, fearing wild beasts, lived in huts on wooden pillars in the middle of Lake Leman.

Twenty thousand French residents fled from Geneva after the war, when French exchange crashed downward and they found their income far too tiny to stand the high cost of living. And the French peasants from Savoie Province ceased to come into the lovely lake city to shop and to consult Geneva's skilled corps of doctors and surgeons. Result—financial distress for Geneva, a general deadening of the city's activities, and an absence of persons in the streets, which gave the town an abandoned, silent and mournful aspect.

League Renews Activity.

But the League and other international activities have brought men and women back from all quarters of the earth. Things are looking upfor Geneva. The civic association which was created to develop the general interests of the city is sitting nightly and things are happening.

The international automobile salon just held was a success. With some 20 American cars shown people came here from all parts of Switzerland and many districts in France. This was followed by a great musical festival which brought to the Geneva Opera House some of the most famous operatic troupes of Europe as well as celebrated orchestras. Later will come an international dog show and a horse show. The flower festivals in summer are being made bigger and better every year and draw thousands of people from outside.

There are, as a matter of fact, two Genevas. One is the city of the foreigners whose interests center around the League of Nations and other international organisms. The other is the Geneva of the Genevese. And it is almost a case of "never the twain shall meet."

There are exceptions, of course, but the rule is strong that the foreign residents go their way and the Genevese theirs, socially speaking. The foreigner goes in for golf and tennis, dinners and dancing, but the Genevese are keen particularly on two things, music and public lectures.

A patriotic Geneevese will walk five miles to listen to a good orchestra or a smart choral society. He will go without his dinner to hear a good lecture. Every night there are lectures in Geneva's halls on subjects of religion, psychology, philosophy, history and the arts and sciences generally.

Gather From All Nations.

There is a saying that if you sit long enough before the Grand Cafe on the boulevards at Paris you will see everybody in the world, for everybody will one day or another walk in front of you. Well, if you live long enough in Geneva it will be the same story. People come here from all lands to see the League, from Tibet to Timbuktu, and from Canada to Capetown.

Kings and Princes, statesmen and demagagues, wise men and cranks—all flow steadily to Geneva to see the palace of the League of Nations, which is not a palace at all, but a former hotel, practically adopted for the business-like daily work of the League, its commissions and its conferences.

Geneva is the great meeting place of the representatives of governments and peoples. It is the international forum where men have freedom of speech and find an international atmosphere which is unfettered by national boundaries and a burning national spirit. Forty thousand Americans visited Geneva last year. More are expected this year.

Geneva, "world capital," seems to have broken definitely into the world news. A fair way of judging this is to note that the number of newspaper men permanently assigned to follow League doings is increasing steadily. Since Germany joined the League, the German correspondents far outnumber their foreign colleagues. They are on the job all the time, disciplined, faithful to their task and efficient. The American newspaper correspondents are second in number, although their country is not a member of the League.

SOCIETY ELECTS LINDBERGH

St. Louis Frenchmen Vote Flyer Honorary Member.

Col. Lindbergh was voted an honorary member of the French Society of St. Louis at a special meeting Friday.

Prof. Gabriel Ferrand, president of the society, forwarded to him an invitation to attend its celebration of Bastile day, July 14. The society chose this means of commemorating the fact that the first decoration conferred on the flyer was the Cross of the Legion of Honor.

3 INJURED WHEN CAR HITS MOTHER AND BOY

Motorman Goes to Aid of Victims and Is Run Down by Automobile.

Mrs. Violt Zengel, 20 years old, suffered internal injuries and her 2-year-old son, Frank, suffered a skull fracture at 10:30 a. m. yesterday when they were struck in front of their home, 2309A South Eighteenth street, by a Cherokee street car. The accident occurred when the child toddled into the street and his mother rushed out in an effort to drag him from the path of the street car.

After carrying the child to the sidewalk the motorman, Oscar Dustman of 4610 Heidelberg avenue, started to return to his car and was struck by an automobile driven by Benjamin Becherer of 1827 Lafayette avenue, suffering a fractured leg.

Becherer was arrested.

LUDENDORFF HEADS 'WILD MEN'

One of Four Reichstag Members Who Belongs to No Party.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—The German Reichstag has four "wild men." None other than Gen. Erich Ludendorff heads them.

The term "wild man" in German parliamentary parlance signifies a member of the Reichstag who belongs to no faction, or party. "Wild men" are not elected as such, however, but become "wild" only after disagreements with their parties. Ludendorff, for instance, was elected as a member of the "Voelkische" or Fascisti party, but after these noise-makers of the extreme right split, the general resigned. He was seconded by Paul Seiffert, who also left the party. The other two "wild men" are Hermann Lange - Hegermann, elected on the Centrist ticket, and Dr. Arthur Rosenberg, who was so disgusted with Communist policy in China that he got out of the party in a huff and has since become the special butt of communist vituperation.

Man's Legs Crushed Under Train.

Thrown beneath the wheels of a freight train he was attempting to board in the Terminal yards at North Market street, at 8 a. m. yesterday, Herman Lorentz, of 1712 North Fourteenth street, was seriously injured. Both his legs were crushed.

Your Summer Vacation Problems Solved!

All Expense—Personally Conducted Tours and Cruises

There are many attractive features about an all-expense escorted tour. It enables you to know at the outset the cost of your trip and relieves you of the details and uncertainties, which otherwise would mar a perfect journey.

Each party is in charge of a competent escort, who looks after the transfer of baggage, attends to the business details and sees that the patrons receive satisfactory service. There are no hotels or train reservations to worry about. Our arrangements for sightseeing trips in high-class motor cars are ideal. You see everything that is worth while and no time is wasted on unimportant places.

For those who like to be free to find their own way "around town," time is arranged at the principal cities. With all these advantages your expenses are considerably less than it would cost to make the same trip independently. Our escorted tours have proven their advantage to thousands of pleased patrons.

The OZARKS

"The Land of a Million Smiles"

A VACATION in a region of lazy, friendly mountains where tumbling, clear streams and crystal lakes offer every type of healthful as well as joyous sport; air, pure and medicinal springs; cool nights that refresh and re-create! Now isn't that the type of vacation you both need and enjoy?

Right close at hand the Ozarks offer you such a period of recreation and rest. There's plenty of opportunity for swimming, fishing, boating, golf, tennis, horse-back riding, exploring, hiking and motoring over beautiful scenic highways. And the cost of such a wonderful vacation in the Ozarks is surprisingly low. Again, remember the saving in transportation, for this "Land of a Million Smiles" is just an easy day's drive or a short night's ride for the Middle West.

Write today for the beautiful new 100-page book which describes and pictures in detail nearly one hundred resorts and resort towns of the Ozarks. It's FREE! Address—

End of "Gold Rush" Railroad.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—A final chapter in the history of one phase of mining boom was written today in an application to the Interstate Commerce Commission for permission to abandon Bullfrog Goldfield Railroad, in Nevada. The line was completed in 1906 when hopes for productivity of gold mines were held, the application said, but it has failed to earn expenses.

An Opportunity

A large manufacturer of rubber goods, motor car accessories, radios, etc., with established jobber and dealer business in St. Louis has an opening for a man to manage our St. Louis branch.

The right man can make a net profit of from $300 to $1200 per month. We require a man who is financially able to purchase outright his initial opening stock, which investment is absolutely secured.

This will merit your strictest investigation, and it is a most unusual and rare opportunity for a hustler.

COURT UPHOLDS WIFE-BEATING

Paris Judge Approves Whipping "If She Needs It."

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—A husband's right to beat his wife "if she needs it" is upheld by Paris courts. Husbands in France still are legally heads of families, supreme in authority, but in practice they frequently are bad seconds in family rows that get into court.

Judge Pontremoli is trying to restore the old order of things. His decision justifying a husband charged with striking his wife set forth that such brutality is not reprehensible when it is excited "by the irritation caused by a wife's bad conduct."

WOMAN SUES 'MYSTIC' IN MYSTERY OIL DEAL

Clairvoyant Delmar Failed to Produce Lease, Charges Katie Bahr.

Victor Delmar, a clairvoyant operating as "Delmar the Mystic" at 6215 Easton avenue, yesterday was sued for $600 by Miss Katie Bahr of Ste. Genevieve, Mo., formerly employed as a domestic in St. Louis County.

Miss Bahr went to Delmar July 10, 1925, to have her fortune told, and, she alleges, he induced her to invest her savings, $600, in a lease on 60 acres of oil land in Drew County, Arkansas. She says she never received the lease, and when she visited Delmar's place of business to demand it, he told her to "get out and stay out."

Delmar, replying to the suit, said he had acted as an agent for another man in the transaction, and Miss Bahr never received the lease because she had agreed to pay $750 and had paid only $600. He denied ordering her out of his office.

The Treasury Department is investigating Delmar's affairs to determine why he never has filed an income tax return. The investigation was begun after Delmar had testified in a suit against Charles W. Shaver, an oil lease broker, that he had sold $17,230 worth of leases for Shaver. He was awarded judgment for $6390 against Shaver for unpaid commissions.

MAN, SHOT BY WOMAN, DIES

Tried to Force Way Into Home, Says Mrs. Martin Hart.

Charles Schulte, 58 years old, of 117 Teddy avenue, St. Louis County, died at city hospital early yesterday of a bullet wound suffered last Sunday evening, when he was shot in the back by Mrs. Martin Hart of 1522 Seventh boulevard.

Mrs. Hart at the time said she had shot Schulte when he tried to force his way into her home to see her sister, Miss Carrie Cook. Schulte told police he had an appointment on that evening with Miss Cook. Mrs. Hart furnished bond to appear at the Coroner's inquest.

NEW RULES FOR AUTOS IN PARIS

PARIS, June 18.—Automobile drivers here are now required to stop behind street cars, as has long been the custom in America. In France it has been a matter of judgment with drivers as to whether they should stop or not. Usually they kept going slowly, crowding past people boarding or getting off street cars.

On the high roads, also, the Government has changed the rule that gave drivers on National roads the right of way. The blanket rule that the car coming on the right has the right of way now is the rule of the road. This last regulation is much criticised as certain to slow down traffic on the main arteries and it is predicted it will be little observed.

Coach Recalls Old English Days.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 18.—An old time stage coach, the "Old Berkeley," which sets out from Piccadilly on a daily trip to Box Hill, a Surrey beauty spot, is a source of great interest to overseas visitors to London, who see in it a picture of England as it was before the days of railways. The coach is operated by two London horse-lovers as a hobby. Passengers [illegible] and pay for seats, but if the coach were filled every day the sum received would not pay for the horses' forage and shoeing.

Matches Shipped in Coffins.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 15.—A striking example of economy was disclosed at London docks when a cargo of Swedish coffins was unloaded. Each coffin was packed with Swedish matches. These coffins, which cost little more to make than the ordinary packing cases for matches, were afterward bought by British undertakers who provide cheap funerals.

LABADIE DETOUR ON NO. 66 AGAIN IN USE

Pavers Laying Last Gap in This Highway Between Gray Summit and St. Clair.

Heavy rain the past week in some parts of Missouri retarded highway activities, but in the main some progress was made and gravel and earth roads are in better condition now than at any time this spring. Divisional highway reports show that every main Federal and State highway in Missouri is open to through traffic.

Conditions in the southeast part of the State have been bettered considerably with the receding of flood waters.

Labaddie Detour Resumed.

The Labaddie detour at Gray Summit on U. S. 66—the St. Louis-Springfield-Joplin route, via Rolla—was resumed this week. The pavers are now laying concrete through Gray Summit, closing the last gap in this highway between Gray Summit and St. Clair. With this stretch completed, U. S. 66 will be a continuous ribbon of concrete from St. Louis to a point six miles beyond Bourbon, which is 100 miles south of St. Louis, except for the short section over Tucker's Hill into Gray Summit.

The Labaddie detour is 9.2 miles long and very narrow. It is passable except in extremely wet weather.

The probability is that this detour will be used until about July 4, after which the new concrete between Gray Summit and St. Clair may be thrown open to traffic, according to George Ridgway, assistant divisional highway engineer at Webster Groves.

Division 10 Clear of Water.

Reports from S. H. Clelland, divisional highway engineer at Sikeston, are that the Mississippi River continues to fall and that the crest of high water in the St. Francis River has passed, leaving Highway

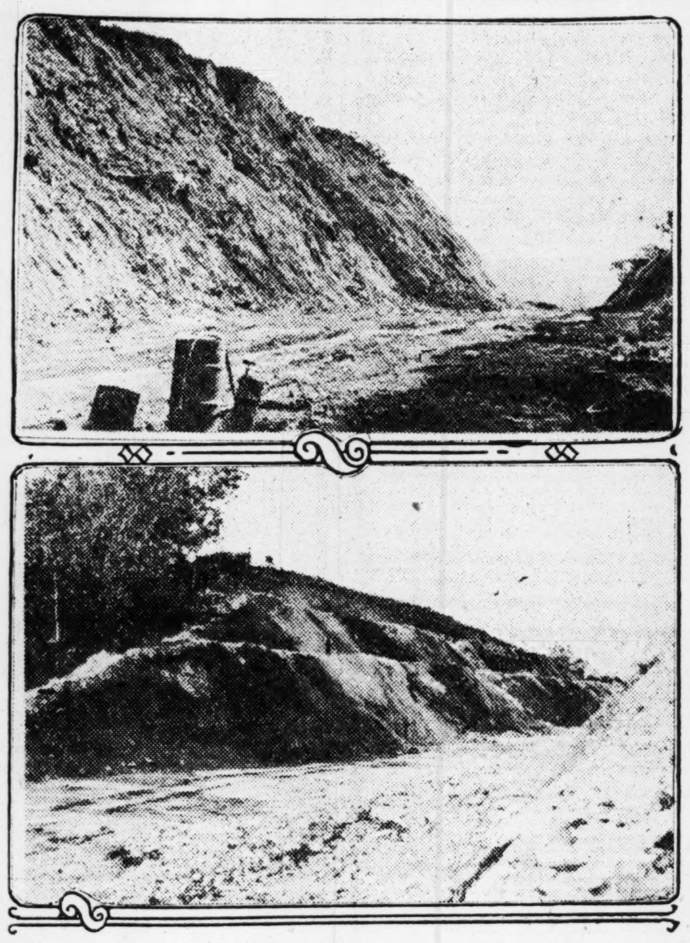
Tucker Hill Road Cut Said To Be Deepest in This Country



One of the deepest cuts ever made in highway work in this country is the one nearing completion through the top of Tucker Hill, near Gray's Summit on Federal route No. 66. The depth and size of this cut are well shown in the above pictures, the tiny figure of a man on one of the benches in the cut, as depicted in lower photograph, indicating the huge proportions of the excavation.

The cut is 60 feet deep, 700 feet long, and will be 260 feet wide at the top. A total of 90,000 cubic yards of rock has been removed from the cut, most of it being used to make fills in the mile-long cut and approaches.

Most of the excavation for the cut was through rock which disintegrates when exposed to the air, making a serious problem by continually sliding. For this reason, it has been necessary to cut

FISHING IS GOOD IN MISSOURI THIS YEAR

Current, Gasconade, Big Piney and Joachim Are Favorite Haunts.

Fishing as a week-end pastime has so grown in the esteem of motorists during the past few years that there are virtually no lakes and streams immediately adjacent to St. Louis which, over the week-end, can be fished without running into the usual pleasure-bent parties who pretend to fish yet who, by their capers, spoil the fishing of others.

Last year most of the fishing haunts near St. Louis were virtually fished out. But this year the unusual rainy season and the subsequent rise of major rivers have filled even the smallest creeks with water and a bounteous supply of varieties of fish.

Best Streams in Ozarks.

The best of Missouri fishing streams are in the Ozarks. Of these the writer believes, the Current River affords the greatest opportunities for the city angler bent upon catching the gamey varieties.

Van Buren, in Carter County, is perhaps the logical point for vactionists to establish headquarters while fishing on the Current River. Van Buren is on an excellent highway leading from St. Louis. The route is over U. S. 61 south through Flat River to Fredericktown, thence via U. S. 67 to Poplar Bluff, and west on U. S. 60 to Van Buren.

The Current River at this point is a swift, clean and cold stream, receiving most of its water from the Big Springs overflow several miles away in Big Springs State Park. It is filled with a myriad fish that rise to any sort of bait. Bass are plenteous, as are jack salmon (Northern pike), goggle eye, and the several varieties of bream. And the fishing, by the way, is not congested.

There are other Ozark streams

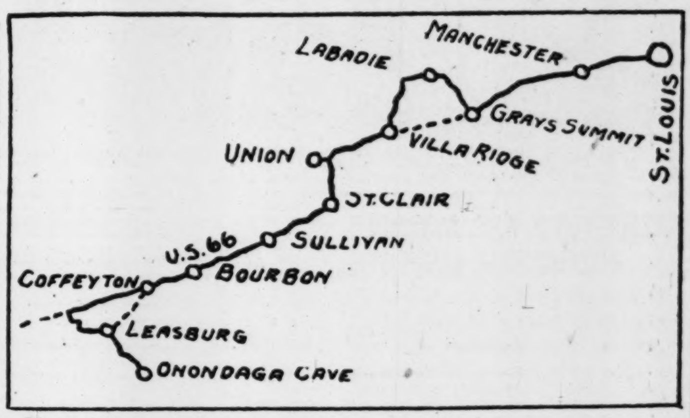
U. S. 66 Best Route to Onondaga Cave

Concrete, Gravel and Semi-Gravel Roads Lead to This Resort at Leasburg—Ideal Week-End Trip.



Map of the route from St. Louis to Onondaga Cave, showing the Labadie detour and the best route from U. S. 66 to Leasburg.

Ninety-three miles southwest of St. Louis in the heart of Crawford County, is Onondaga Cave which in the past few years has become a week-end objective of many tourists from Missouri and surrounding states. Of easy access from St. Louis—by way of U. S. 66—the cave and the natural Ozarks reservation surrounding it provide recreation both profitable and pleasant.

Seven miles of vaulted chambers with natural formations of onyx and basaltic and mineralized rock; great crystal canopies which glisten mystically in the pale light carried into the cave; rocks which produce sweet music, petrified skeletons of men of antediluvial times; tumbling waterfalls, and a 2000 feet underground waterway, a part of Missouri's archeologically famous "Lost River" are among the most interesting sights in the cave.

Labadie Detour Used.

U. S. No. 66 has been closed at Gray's Summit. The highway is being concreted through this point and westward. But this will not deter motorists. The Labadie detour, used last year when paving activities between St. Clair and Gray's Summit closed the main highway, has been resumed. Virtually all of it has been graveled and motorists should not, as last year, have any difficulty in traveling it in any weather.

The Labadie detour runs west from U. S. 66, beginning at the foot of Tucker's Hill, at the east city limits of Gray's Summit. From this point it runs five miles due west to Labadie, then three miles south to State Highway 47, and east on 47 for two miles where it merges again with U. S. 60.

The detour, while rather narrow and very hilly, has been graveled most of its distance and is in good condition.

From State 47, the route continues over the old gravel route of U. S. 66 through Union to St. Clair, where the concrete of new U. S. 66 is again followed.

Avoid Coffeyton Road.

At about mile 90 from St. Louis—two miles below Bourbon—a large sign on the left side of the road advises the jumping-off point to Leasburg, which is five miles from Onondaga Cave. It is best to ignore this marker and continue on U. S. 66 to a point seven miles further southwest, for the marker directs one over the Coffeyton road to Leasburg, and it is virtually a bottomless sea of mud and not recommended for travel.

Five miles beyond this point, however, the motorist can take the old State road, marked Highway 14, which runs into Leasburg via Hofflin. The distance from the main highway to Leasburg is only three miles, and about two and a half miles of the distance is gravel and the balance earth.

At Leasburg the motorist crosses the railway tracks and takes the first road to the right after the railway station is passed, to Onondaga Cave. This road is typically an Ozark trail, winding, narrow and criss-crossed by gurgling, gravel-bedded little creeks. But it is an all-weather trail, at that, and affords a wonderful view of the

21 COMPANIES PUT OUT 236,000 CARS IN MARCH

Same Companies Registered 232,439 Units in Same Period in 1926.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 18.—The lull in automotive operations continues. Most of the companies report that their dealer organizations are in excellent shape, so far as low stocks of new cars on hand are concerned, but one or two are known to have stocked their dealers pretty well and there is some strenuous selling.

Employment generally continues well below the figures for May, and very considerably below the 1926 figures at this time.

Little Business Increase.

In the Detroit territory there are 21 automotive companies operating—complete figures for March, the latest available in their entirety, show that 1927 for them was very little better than was March a year ago. The 21 companies registered a total of 236,060 passenger cars in the month, compared with 232,439 in 1926—an increase of only a little more than one and a half per cent. The comparatively small increase is no surprise, in view of the small out-

MOBILE BAY SPANNED BY TEN MILE BRIDGE

Structure Opens All-Weather Route From New Orleans to Florida.

Extensive construction work on the Old Spanish Trail in virtually every section of the southern part of the United States through which it traverses will, before the end of 1927, result in this highway being an all-weather traffic lane from east to west across the southern extremity of the country.

In the gulf coast states extensive construction the early part of this year has resulted in the elimination of a majority of ferries which, because of the expense involved in crossing them by auto have been a bugaboo for many years.

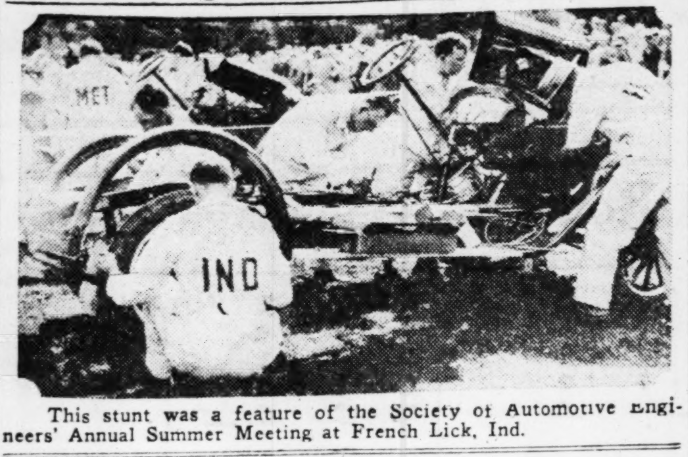
$2,500,000 Cochrane Bridge.

The largest of these, across Mobile Bay from Daphne to Mobile, a distance of 10½ miles, was eliminated last week with the opening of the new $2,500,000 Cochrane bridge, thus opening for tourists a new all-weather route to Florida and gulf port cities, via New Orleans. Now virtually the only long ferry to remain in service on the O. S. T. between New Orleans and Florida is that one at Floridatown, about 10 miles northeast of Pensacola. This ferry, according to authentic reports, is to be eliminated by the construction of a bridge in the near future.

The short gap of Mobile Bay, the Pascagoula River, and the Perdido River, on the Florida-Alabama line, are to be bridged early this summer, and a two-mile bridge across Bay St. Louis, Miss., will be completed this fall. The bay at Biloxi has already been bridged with a one-mile bridge.

West of New Orleans considerable construction work is being carried on so that within the year the Old Spanish Trail from this point clear through Texas, New Mexico and Arizona to California will be an all-weather route.

Assembling Chevrolet In Record Time



This stunt was a feature of the Society of Automotive Engineers' Annual Summer Meeting at French Lick, Ind.

WASHINGTON S. A. E. ASSEMBLE CHEVROLET IN 6 MINUTES

Eight members of the Washington section, Society of Automotive Engineers, demonstrated the advantages of standard automotive parts recently by assembling a half-ton Chevrolet chassis in six and one-half minutes, in competition with six other teams similarly engaged. The stunt was a feature of the Society's annual summer meeting at French Lick, Ind.

While the assembled delegates derived much amusement from watching the seven teams vie for a record in a line of work with which they were unfamiliar, except in theory, the performance also carried its lesson to many of the watchers. But for the perfectly-fitting parts, the assembly might have required hours instead of minutes.

The elapsed time was short, since none of the assemblers were connected with Chevrolet nor familiar with its mechanical details. Three of the winning team were engineers of the United States Bureau of Standards.

The slowest team required only a few minutes longer than the fastest, and its hurry added amusement to the contest. As a test of each team's work, each car had to be run five times around a loop in the nearby driveway before the results were certified.

The seven trucks were shipped to French Lick from the Chevrolet factory at Flint, Mich. Such parts as the distributer assembly, the wiring system, gasoline tank, carburetor, a front and rear wheel, and various other units, together with a miscellany of bolts, nuts and screws, were then removed and tossed into boxes in the pits adjacent to the assembly space. Equipped only with two sets of tools such as are furnished with each Chevrolet truck, each team had then to select the parts and put them in their proper place.

GRAHAMS TO CONTINUE PRESENT PAIGE LINE

Brothers Assume Active Control of Paige With Joseph B. Graham as President.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, June 18.—The first announcement to the public since they acquired the controlling ownership of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. was made this week by the three Graham brothers, Joseph B., Robert C. and Ray A.

"More than a year ago we sold our entire holdings in Dodge Brothers, Inc., and Graham Brothers, Inc., and severed our active and financial connections with both organizations," says the statement. "On June 10 we acquired ownership control of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co., assumed full responsibility for management and invested over $4,000,000 in the company, thus providing substantial additional working capital.

"The Paige-Detroit plant is modern, well located, well equipped and with the addition of the Wayne body plant which we have just purchased provides manufacturing facilities of high order.

"Twelve months investigation among users of Paige cars gave us satisfactory reports as to the worthiness of this product. Our policy will be to continue the production of Paige six and eight-cylinder models in their several price fields.

"We shall endeavor to support the merchandising organization now existing and progressively advance its interests."

The newly created Paige board of directors announced election of the following officers: President, Joseph B. Graham; vice president, Robert C. Graham; secretary-treasurer, Ray A. Graham; assistant secretary, Sherwin A. Hill; assistant treasurer, O. W. Birnie.

The board of directors, as now constituted, includes: Joseph B. Graham, Robert C. Graham, Ray A. Graham, Z. F. Graham, John D. Biggers, E. D. Stair, Gilbert W. Lee, Sherwin A. Hill and W. A. Wheeler.

The time allowed for common stockholders to give waivers having expired, the plan which was unanimously approved at a recent stockholders' meeting was made effective by action of the directors. This action approves the plan whereby the Grahams purchase approximately $4,000,000 of 7 per cent convertible second preferred stock, thus providing the company with substantial additional working capital.

In addition, the Grahams have purchased all of the Jewett stock, and the three Jewetts, Harry M., Frederick L. and Edward H., retire from the Paige company, with which they have been associated since 1909.

Harry M. Jewett, one of the Paige founders, was second president of the company, having served in that capacity from 1910 until late in 1926, when he became chairman of the board of directors.

LABADIE DETOUR ON U. S. HIGHWAY NO. 66 AGAIN IN USE

Division No. 10 virtually clear of water for the first time in weeks.

State Highway No. 25—the Festus-Crystal City-Arkansas border route via Jackson and Kennett—is in good condition again, except the 30-mile stretch between Jackson and Arbor, which is graded earth and slippery when wet.

Other highways in this division are in fair to good condition. U. S. 67—the Fredericktown-Poplar Bluff-Arkansas border route via Corning—is again open to traffic, the St. Francis River flood waters north of Poplar Bluff having receded considerably.

There is a detour from Silva on the highway 10 miles north of Poplar Bluff, west to Patterson and thence southeast to Greenville, occasioned by construction work on the highway between Silva and Greenville. The detour is graveled and travelable without hazard.

U. S. 60 Open Again.

U. S. 60—the Cairo-Bird's Point-Sikeston-Springfield route, via Poplar Bluff—is again open to through traffic. The Cairo-Bird's Point ferry is operating on regular schedule.

In division No. 6, comprising the 11 counties adjacent to St. Louis, highway conditions are about normal.

The new paving at Mineola on U. S. 40—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Columbia—was opened to traffic June 15 and the detour at this point has been eliminated.

No. 21 through Washington County is passable beyond Potosi, but there are several bad mud holes and the route is not recommended for travel.

State 56 from St. Peters, on U. S. 40—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Columbia—to Old Monroe, on U. S. 66 north—the St. Louis-Keokuk route, via Hannibal—is still impassable.

NEW EAST SIDE REO DEALER

The Tri-City Reo Co. has been appointed Reo Flying Cloud and Wolverine dealer in Granite City, according to St. Louis-Reo Co., Inc., Reo distributor. The company recently was organized as a partnership by Clyde Richards and R. E. Robertson, the latter formerly being Mayor of Granie City.

The company's headquarters is located on D street.

WILLYS-OVERLAND OUTPUT IN MAY WAS 27,569 CARS

Willys - Overland production reached 27,569 cars in May, and established the highest May production mark in the history of the company, says a factory statement.

"For the first five months of 1927, Willys-Overland's production of 108,788 cars set a record over all other years for the same period. Compared to the production of 84,760 cars in the same months of 1926, the current year to date shows an increase of 28 per cent.

"Motor car registrations for the first quarter and also from 47 States for April, compared with the same period of last year, show an increase of 18 per cent for Willys-Overland, while the industry as a whole lost eight per cent. April registrations gave Willys-Overland 18 per cent gain over April, 1926, whereas the industry as a whole shows a 16 per cent loss.

"Willys-Overland gain was heaviest in the Eastern section, 12 States showing a net gain of 36.2 per cent and a loss of 7.7 per cent for the industry as a whole. Notable among these increases were New York and Bronx counties, where Willys-Overland sales for the first four months show a gain of 49 per cent over the same period of last year, compared with the industry's loss of 17 per cent."

PACKARD KEEPS A CHECK ON ALL CAR ACCESSORIES

Because attachment of accessories selected casually and at random oftentimes affects the appearance, dependability and service of a car, the Packard Motor Car Co. maintains an accessory department for its distributing organization. Accessories of every type for Packard cars are passed upon by engineers of the company.

Nearly all accessory items are designed and made exclusively for Packard. As a result they enhance rather than detract from the beauty of lines of the car, distributers assert. Specially designed trunks are among the important features of the accessory lists.

Standard equipment of the cars leave as special accessories nothing actually needed and the accessory department provides only such articles as serve special purposes. Not many years ago bumpers were considered accessories for motor cars. Packard now makes them an integral part of the car itself, with brackets forged into the steel of the frame. The stop and backing lights are other items which formerly were considered accessories by the motor car industry and which now are built-in parts of Packard cars.

car owners
say Buick will be their next car

A general and impartial survey of automobile owners, recently conducted by a great organization, shows that 344,679 owners of other cars intend to change to Buick next time they buy a car.

These owners have compared their cars with Buick—in performance, in economy, in comfort, luxury and dependability. And they have decided that Buick offers greater value.

They have driven Buicks, and know how flexible Buick is in traffic, how easy it is to park, how effortlessly it takes the hills and how it responds instantly to the slightest pressure on the throttle. They marvel at the efficiency of Buick's powerful six-cylinder Valve-in-Head engine, which is vibrationless beyond belief at any speed.

And in all probability, a majority of those who intend to buy Buicks have been influenced in still another way—by the actual experience of their friends who are Buick owners.

Examine a Buick at your earliest opportunity. Find out why so many owners of other cars are changing to Buick every day.

Buick offers 18 models from which you may select—priced $1359 to $2209 delivered in St. Louis completely equipped.

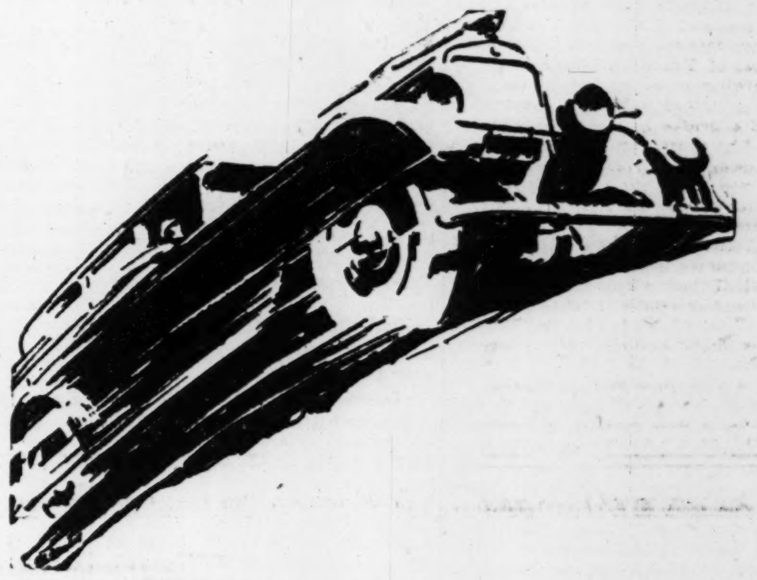
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT, BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

Announcing

STEINGER-TUTHILL INC.

as Gardner Distributors



We have purchased the Gardner franchise for metropolitan St. Louis and have obtained from The Gardner Motor Company, Inc., the distributorship for Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois.

We have provided an entire building at Twenty-eighth and Locust in which to exhibit this distinctively different motor car for your leisurely inspection.

We have assembled a splendid crew of skilled Gardner mechanics and placed at their disposal every modern facility that will help us give you prompt, efficient service at moderate cost.

Naturally, we are mighty proud to be able to make this announcement.

For the Gardner Eight-in-line—a built-in-St. Louis product—has won the esteem of experienced car owners the country over. It is the product of a factory that has been building well for over fifty years, and which operates under the direct supervision of its owners.

And its sales are constantly increasing! Not only in distant fields, but right here at home. Gardner's 1926 sales in St. Louis were 54% heavier than those of 1925. And during the first five months of the current year, a further sales increase of 63.8% was registered by Gardner in this territory.

Today you see Gardner Eights-in-line in front of St. Louis' finest homes and most exclusive clubs. You see them easily threading their way in and out of crowded downtown traffic. You see them slipping quietly and swiftly past you on hills and highways wherever you go.

And now you are cordially invited to visit our modernly equipped and conveniently located headquarters and see the ten distinctively individual custom-designed Gardner Eights-in-line now on display . . . to learn for yourself why this distinctively different motor car keeps steadily rising higher and higher in public esteem.

STEINGER-TUTHILL NEW GARDNER DISTRIBUTOR

Firm to Maintain Headquarters in 2-Story Building at 28th and Locust Streets.

Steinger-Tuthill, Inc., has been appointed Gardner distributer for the St. Louis metropolitan district, it is announced by the Gardner Motor Car Co.

Joseph Steinger, prominent in St. Louis automotive circles for 10 years, is president of the firm, and George Tuthill, who formerly was associated with Steinger in real estate, finance and automobile business, is secretary and treasurer.

The firm occupies the two-story building on the northeast corner of Twenty-eighth and Locust streets, which has a 55-foot frontage on Locust street and a depth of 150 feet. The aggregate floor space occupied is 17,000 square feet.

Formal Opening Today.

The firm's formal opening is being held today. In addition to the regular models of the Gardner 80 and 90 lines, 20 special custom built Gardner 8-cylinder cars are on display.

The display room of the new company has a floor space 50x50 feet facing on Locust street. It has a capacity of eight cars.

A parts and accessory department with a $25,000 stock is to be maintained. The executive offices are between the display room and the parts department.

The second floor will be used as a service station. An elevator lifts the cars from the first floor to the service department, which is well lighted by roof skylights and has been fully equipped to handle emergency and all other repair work.

All Gardner Models Shown.

The company is showing the following models in both the 80 and 90 Gardner lines of eight-cylinder cars: sedan, victoria coupe, victoria brougham, roadster with rumble seat, and several de luxe and custom-built jobs. The Gardner lines ranges in price from $1595 to $2495 and, according to the factory, produces the lowest priced eight-cylinder car on the market.

Steinger and Tuthill for years were South Side automobile dealers. Steinger, it will be recalled, was one of the founders of the South Side Nash Co.

Detroit Fights State Gas Tax.

Michigan's 3-cent gasoline tax, passed by the last Legislature, has started some strong feeling in Detroit, where the Council and the Detroit Automobile Club are circulating petitions for a referendum. The required number of signatures to these petitions, it is believed, can be easily secured, but the Attorney-General of the State has handed out a decision that the measure cannot be submitted to referendum on the ground that, under the Constitution of Michigan, measures making appropriations for State use are not subject to such action. The Council and the club say, however, that the fight will be pushed and taken into the courts if necessary to secure a mandamus calling upon the Attorney-General to permit the submission of the measure to popular vote.

MILLER USED PENNZOIL ON TRANSCONTINENTAL RUN

When L. B. Miller drove his Chrysler 80 into Lost Angeles on June 7, he chalked up the third transcontinental record made in less than a year with a Pennzoil-lubricated motor, and the third world's record for Pennzoil in less than a single week, says a factory statement.

"Simultaneously with Miller's spectacular dash, Clarence D. Chamberlin was staking his life on a Pennzoil-lubricated plane in his flight across the Atlantic from New York to Germany.

"This oil has been used by innumerable record-breaking drivers and aviators. Acosta and Chamberlin a few weeks ago, broke the world's endurance record by staying 51 hours in the air with a Pennzoil-lubricated motor. Lieuts. Kelly and MacReady set the previous sustained flight record with the same oil in their crankcase.

U. S. HIGHWAY 66 BEST ROUTE TO ONONDAGA CAVE

bucolic country surrounding the cave resort.

Beautiful Scenery at Resort.

The resort at Onondaga Cave is on the side of a mountainlike hill. In the woods on the adjacent hillsides are cottages used as lodgings by tourists. To the south, across a maze of fields, hills and vales, the bluffs of the Meramec River break through the blue haze. And further to the southeast the dark ridges so plainly seen, flow the Huzzah and Courtois Creeks, well known to fishermen.

From the main headquarters building of the resort a winding trail leads downward, across a quaint bridge over a clear pool of water to the cave, the stellar attraction there. This, the guide tells one, is the overflow of "Lost River." Beyond this pool is the black gap in the cliff through which "Lost River" finds an egress to the outer world. Immediately adjacent to it is the wooden door which gives entrance to the cave itself.

The interior of the cave is damp and chilly. Jumpers and jackets are necessary and are provided by the guide.

Lost River Canyon Thrills.

Possibly the greatest thrill experienced in the cave is the quarter-mile journey through the pitchy dark canyon of Lost River, the waters of which, the guide tells one, vary from a few feet to many feet in depth.

Leaving the river, one enters a great lobby some hundreds of feet in width and breadth. Then there is a climb of 75 feet up stairs built in tiers from one elevation to the other.

Passing under a narrow arch where for 50 feet or so a stooping posture must be assumed, one arrives in Music Hall, a spacious amphitheater roofed with a canopy dripping continuously with water. In this room the guide uses a steel rod to play a scale of chimes on odd-shaped stalagmite formations, or nearby, tap another set of stalagmite formations to reproduce the tolling of a bell.

One passes on to "Lily Room" to find the crystal likenesses of lilies which seem to float on the top of a lagoon of water; to see slender trunks of stalagmite bordering the water's edge like young trees; the "Ball Room," 300 feet long, 100 feet wide and 40 feet high, with a floor of almost unbroken onyx; "Cathedral Hall," where on a maze of onyx hills sit miniature cathedrals and castles; the "Frost Room," where nature has cunningly covered everything in sight with a crystal frosting.

A Natural Bridge.

Natural Bridge, a span of basaltic formation extending from one end of a great chamber to the other, has been formed by the continuous rush of Lost River. "The Twin Stalagmites" are said by geologists to be thousands of years old. It has been estimated that each cubic inch of these twin formations was completed only after 800 years.

The "Lion's Head" and the "Dog's Head" are other unusual stalagmite formations curiously carved by Nature to represent the heads of the animals after which they are named.

STEARNS-KNIGHT PRICES INCREASE $100 TO $400

The F. B. Stearns Co., Cleveland, O., has announced an increase in prices on Stearns-Knight cars ranging from $100 to $400 on practically all models.

Effective this month, the new schedule for the two lines of Stearns-Knight cars place the six-cylinder models from $100 to $200 higher, with the eight-in-line series listing at $100 to $400 higher.

CHEVROLET OUTPUT MAY REACH MILLION

Production in First Five Months This Year Was 494,953 Units.

DETROIT, June 18.—Indications that Chevrolet production will reach, if not pass, the million mark this year were seen here today, following the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor Co. that production in the first five months totaled 494,953 units. This is a 60 per cent increase over the corresponding period of last year, according to a factory statement.

"Since January," the statement says, "Chevrolet has set new production records each month. A new all-time monthly mark was set in May with an output of 115,623 units as compared with 74,617 units in May, 1926.

"In an effort to keep pace with the demand, Chevrolet factories are now averaging more than 5000 units a day, working on the heaviest schedule ever undertaken by a manufacturer of gear shift cars.

"Chevrolet's production achievements so far this year make certain that a new mark for the production of gear-shift cars will be set this year. The present record, now held by Chevrolet, stands at 728,697 units. This was established in 1926 and was a 40 per cent increase over the previous high mark, also set by Chevrolet.

"Production of 1,000,000 Chevrolets this year would shatter the present record again by 40 per cent. The June schedule calls for the building of 112,965 units, which should bring the total for the first six months to 607,918.

"Remarkable gains made by Chevrolet since January, 1927, is seen in monthly production figures for the year so far, as follows: January, 73,676; February, 85,817; March, 107,900; April, 111,937, and May, 115,628."

FISHING IS GOOD IN ALL MISSOURI STREAMS THIS YEAR

which will probably produce as large catches as the Current River but they are more frequented. Near Houston—on U. S. 63, about 40 miles south of Rolla—splendid fishing may be had on the Big Piney River, with bait and fly. From Hooker, on U. S. 66, about 16 miles southwest of Rolla—a trip may be made down the Big Piney to Waynesville on the Roubideaux, a stream famous for bass and crappie.

Gasconade Good Stream.

Northwest of Waynesville, just out of Swedeborg, are Schlicht Mill and Cave Lodge, both presenting alluring possibilities to anglers. Splendid results also may be obtained by fishing the Gasconade near Hazelgreen—on U. S. 66, 15 miles southwest of Waynesville. Out of Stoutland and Richland, the latter of which is due north of Hazelgreen on a county road, the West Glaize Creek may be reached, and a visit to this particular stream should result in a loaded creel.

The Niangua River, flowing out of the Osage River at Linn Creek—on U. S. 54 about 25 miles south of Jefferson City—has many scenic and angling attractions for the true lovers of both. Ha Ha Tonka, Corkery's Hill, Blue Springs, San Springs and Bennett's Hill, are some of the best known fishing haunts on this river. The roads leading to these places are all in good condition and accommodations are at least as good as the average. Between Bennett's Mill and Buffalo—on U. S. 54, 15 miles south of Linn Creek—good angling may be had on Greas Creek.

North and east of Linn Creek—on the route back to St. Louis—there is good angling out of Bagnell, Tuscumbia and Henley. Farther north, on the Osage, and a few miles east of Jefferson City is Osage City, out of which a number of excellent fishing holes are accessible.

Between Argyle and Freesburg—on U. S. 63—flows Marais Creek, which is known to many a bait caster as a fine bass stream.

Some Go to the Bourbeuse.

Bourbeuse River—a name which brings the thrill of pleasant memories to those who have fished the stream—strikes the Meramec River near Moselle and may be reached out of Union, St. Clair and St. James on U. S. 66, from St. Louis.

A bass stream closer to St. Louis is the Joachim at Hematite, a week-end rendezvous for the fly fishing fraternity. Some whip this stream from Victoria to Hematite, but it is best to confine ones activities to the meandering channel between Hematite and Silica.

Hematite is six miles west of Festus-Crystal City and is reached over a good gravel road from this point. U. S. 61 is taken to Festus-Crystal City from St. Louis. The distance is 38 miles.

CHANDLER SALES INCREASE

Motor Registration News, West Coast trade publication, credits Chandler with the largest percentage of increase during April of the first 20 cars on the list.

Chandler sales showed a gain of 151 per cent in California during April, which was directly attributed to the appeal of the new 1927 line, Ralph B. Nettleton, Chandler Western sales manager, declared recently.

FORGET GAS TAX, CHECK OTHER COSTS, SAYS AKERS

Falcon Sales Manager Shows How Operating Expense Can Be Cut.

"Gasoline taxes as they are levied in many States and as proposed in some others need not cause motorists great concern as being an unjust burden, says F. H. Akers, sales manager of Falcon Motors Corp.

"Rather," says Akers, "there are other factors in the operation and maintenance which would receive the attention of the owner and which will result in a far greater saving to him than the amount he pays annually in a two or three-cent gasoline tax.

"The annual cost of keeping the ordinary motor free from carbon and the valves in proper seating condition is greater than the average amount paid in gasoline tax.

"It is fair to assume with the average six-cylinder car that the carbon should be removed and the valves ground at least every 8000 miles. One of the leading national flat rate manuals shows an average cost of $12.50 for 16 leading six-cylinder cars for this work. On an average basis per mile using these figures the cost is one and a half mills.

"The average of all the gasoline taxes as they are being levied at present is two and three-eighths cents per gallon for the United States. Surely we are safe in saying that 18 miles per gallon is a fair average mileage for the present day automobile. This then gives us an average gasoline tax cost per mile of one and three-tenths mills. Yet few motorists consider this 'carbon-valve tax' at the time they purchase a car."

PIERCE CLOSE COUPLED MODELS IN GREAT DEMAND

The steady increase in city traffic has developed a new body design for motor cars—a close-coupled five-passenger body which can be maneuvered through dense traffic with ease and yet which is roomy enough for long runs across country without fatiguing driver and passengers, says the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co.

"The ease of handling of this close-coupled type of car is remarkable," the factory says. "Women prefer it for its ability to maneuver through dense traffic and the facility with which it can be parked. Its short turning radius enables one to turn around in a narrow street without backing.

"Among the most distinguished designs of this type are three which have been developed by the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car Co. One is a two-door type which has the close-coupled smartness of the coupe with ample roominess for five. Doors are wide and spacious so that passengers may enter the rear without disturbing those in front. It carries a price of $2995 at Buffalo.

"The second body style is the four-door type, which is a new and distinctive interpretation of the conventional five-passenger sedan. Factory price is $3250.

"The third car is the new club sedan, Pierce-Arrow's latest offering. Many style elements have been combined into this car which make it unusually smart and attractive looking. A built-in trunk at the rear, which may be painted the same color as the exterior, adds a unique individual touch.

"All three cars are offered on the standard Series 80 chassis and powered with a six-cylinder Pierce-Arrow engine capable of developing 70-horse power. Bodies are custom-built in the Pierce-Arrow body factory of selected northern white ash and paneled with hand-hammered aluminum. In order to give the widest latitude to individual expression all Series 80 cars are offered in virtually an unlimited range of color combinations.

INVAR STRUT PISTON IS NEW CHRYSLER FEATURE

One of the most important developments in the automobile engine was recently announced by the engineering department of the Chrysler corporation in their perfected Invar strut pistons, says the factory.

This piston is said to be the only type of piston which combines the advantages of aluminum—(light weight and high heat conductivity, with lighter reciprocating parts and consequently less wear and vibration)—with the valuable property of cast iron—(practically no expansion under heat).

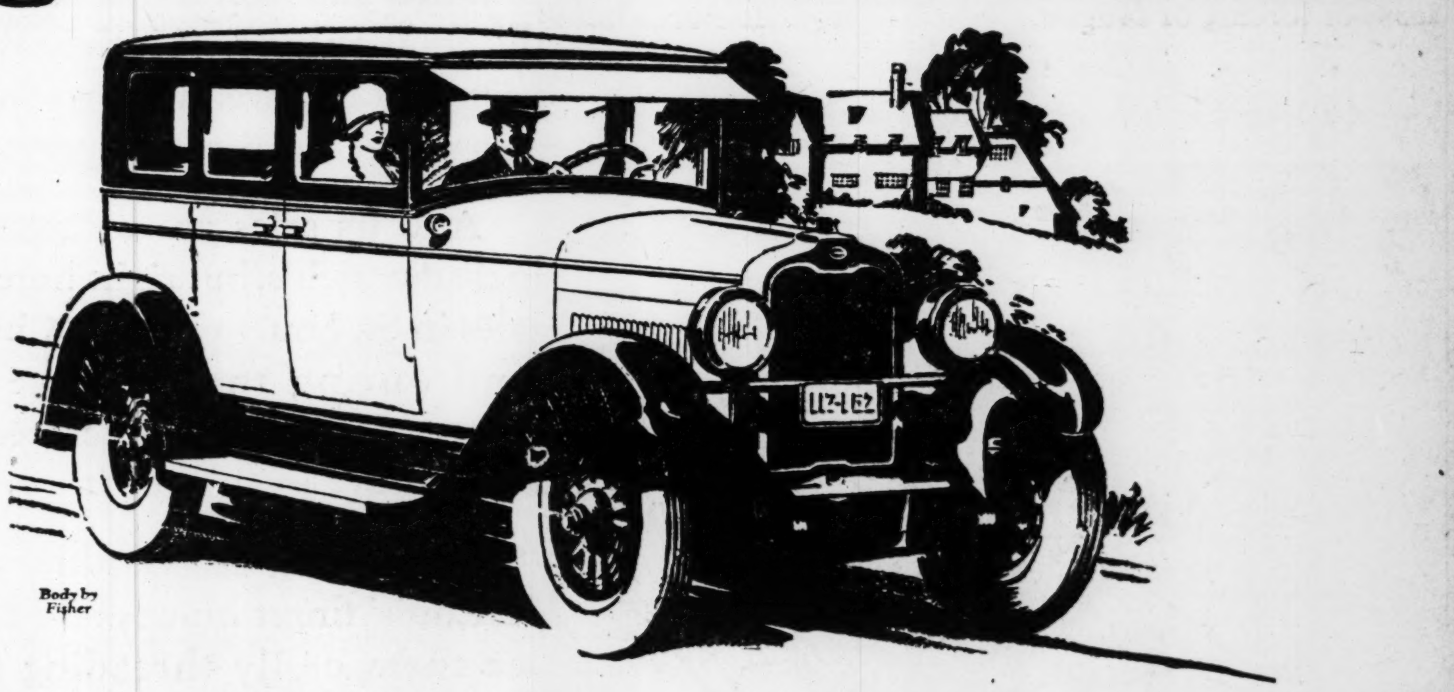
"unflagging performance and uncommon long life—these Oakland qualities do not change with the changing trends of motordom."



You may be intrigued by the arresting beauty of Oakland-Fisher bodies or stirred by the car's spirit and dash when you drive. But once you become an Oakland owner, you will discover an even deeper source of satisfaction—unflagging performance and uncommon long life.

These are Oakland qualities that do not change with the changing trends of motordom—

—for they result from the super-precision construction that is now the sternest Oakland tradition.

Particularly are these qualities emphasized in the 4-Door Sedan—because there they are combined with comfort, luxury and smoothness at the extremely low price of $1195. While other manufacturers in Oakland's price class offer coupes, roadsters and touring cars at this figure, none other offers a 4-Door Sedan.

CHEVROLET

for Economical Transportation

Hour after Hour over any Road -and always in Comfort!

Scientifically balanced—swung low to the road—and with the body resting on chrome vanadium steel springs that are 88% as long as the wheelbase—the Most Beautiful Chevrolet provides the most astonishing riding and driving comfort ever offered in a low-priced car.

Here is truly a type of performance you never thought possible except in much more expensive automobiles. At every speed up to wide open throttle, Chevrolet holds the road with a surety that is a revelation—while rough stretches are negotiated in perfect comfort. You can drive at good speed for hour after hour, mile after mile, without the slightest sense of forcing or fatigue.

This exceptional riding and driving comfort has been engineered into Chevrolet cars as a result of the most gruelling road tests ever conducted in connection with the development of an automobile. Fleets of Chevrolets are constantly under test at the General Motors Proving Ground—driven day and night over every conceivable type of road, from concrete straightaways to deep-rutted clay lanes. Performance results are measured and recorded with scientific accuracy by delicately exact electrical and mechanical devices—invented and built by General Motors engineers. Every unit of the car has been tested and improved until it contributes its full share of comfort.

Another vital factor in the riding comfort of Chevrolet cars is the high quality contruction of the Fisher bodies. Built of wood and steel, the same combination of materials used in the most expensive custom-built construction, Chevrolet enclosed bodies are exceptionally quiet—with a resiliency that absorbs road shocks. Roomy and deeply-cushioned seats, set at the most comfortable angle, further enhance the riding ease.

We have a demonstrating car waiting for you. Drive it over the roughest road you know. You'll find a type of performance that will delight and amaze you—riding comfort that you never thought possible in a low-priced automobile

OLDFIELD IS GUEST OF HUDSON DISTRIBUTOR

Is on Cross-Country Drive in 1000-Mile Non-Stop Hudson.

Barney Oldfield, veteran ace of the roaring road, stopped off in St. Louis Tuesday for a short visit with R. C. Frampton, president of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson-Essex distributer. He is en route to New York from Beverly Hills, Cal., and is driving cross-country in the Hudson super-six coach in which on May 21 at the Culver City speedway he drove 1000 miles at an average of 76.4 miles per hour. Mrs. Oldfield and their 12-year-old daughter accompanied him.

In New York Oldfield will appear at the Colonial Theater in connection with the premiere of "The First Auto," a Warner Brothers film in which he is starred.

From St. Louis, Oldfield and his party drove directly to the Hudson Motor Car Co. factory at Detroit where executives of the company will make a personal inspection of the 1000 mile continuous-run Hudson he is driving.

In an interview here with Oldfield, it was brought out that the Hudson coach used in the run was a stock car in every respect, save for a special 2.44 spider gearing in the rear end. The standard stock Hudson has a 4 5-11 spider gearing.

Oldfield admitted that the special gear ratio gave him a speed of five to nine miles faster than standard gearing would have given.

"The big thing, however, was that the car performed at such high speed with no apparent laboring nor effort," Oldfield pointed out. "The motor ran as smoothly as a top all the way through, and the speed was steady and consistent, lap after lap."

TUCKER HILL ROAD CUT IS SAID TO BE DEEPEST IN U. S.

a series of steps, or benches, in the sides of the cut, greatly extending its width across the top. These benches have been completed on one side, as may be seen in the lower picture.

Fills have been another problem for the contractors. One of these is 76 feet deep. Expectation of the contractors, Dukelow & Alger, is that by July 10 the cut and fills will be ready for grading, though some benching on the sides of the cut may remain to be done.

The State highway engineers expect to gravel the Tucker Hill stretch so that it may be used by motorists this fall and winter. It will be months before the fills will have settled sufficiently to justify laying pavement.

The contractors, who have done a deal of highway and general rock work in the Colorado Rockies, say that the Tucker Hill cut is the deepest ever made anywhere for a highway.

BLUE WATER HIGHWAY OF MICHIGAN POPULAR

Runs Out of Detroit and Follows Lake Huron to Georgian Bay.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., June 18.—"The Blue Water Highway" is a road out of Detroit which is fast becoming popular with tourists. It is named for the deep blue color of Lake Huron and follows the Huron shore on the Canadian side to the Georgian Bay region.

Two interesting routes lead to "The Blue Water Highway," which actually begins at Sarnia, Ont. The American route runs from Detroit, by the way of Mt. Clemens, known for its mineral baths, to Port Huron, where a ferry takes the automobile across the river to Sarnia, at the junction of Lake Huron and Ste. Claire River.

In the other route, the motorist crosses the river at Detroit to Windsor, and turning north follows the Detroit River, which is the international boundary line, to Lake Ste. Claire, along the shore of the lake to the Ste. Claire River and then up to Sarnia.

From Sarnia "The Blue Water Highway" hugs the Lake Huron shore to Bayfield, Goderich, Kincardine and Southampton. Here the highway turns eastward, crossing Bruce Peninsula to Owen Sound and thence proceeds along the shore of Georgian Bay, across country and along the east shore of Lake Simcoe to Orillia.

"The Blue Water Highway" also serves as a route to the Muskoka Lake region.

OLD ST. LOUIS-ARKANSAS TRAIL RECORDS UNEARTHED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., June 18.—Records of the Old Wire Road, famous St. Louis-Arkansas Post

This road was constructed theo-frontier trail, have been ferreted out of various official records by County Judge J. L. Baker and Congressman John N. Tillman, both of Fayetteville.

retically as a military highway in 1925 by the Quartermaster Department of the United States Army. Recently compiled information shows, however, that the highway was built in part by civilians under contrct and in part by troops. It was one of the most famous highways in the pioneer Southwest and Arkansas' first trans-state pike.

According to a letter received by Judge Baker from Major General Robert C. Davis, records on file in the Quartermaster General's office show that contract stipulations required that the road be 20 feet wide throughout its course, the contention being that the standard 12-foot county road would eventually prove insufficient to accommodate increasing traffic. From St. Louis the route led through Liberty and Jackson, Fayetteville, Fort Smith, and Little Rock.

Field notes of Lieut. R. D. C. Collins, dated at Little Rock, December 10, 1835, and a plat of the road drawn by the same officer, have been discovered at the National Capitol by Congressman Tillman.

ALL CHANDLER CRANKSHAFTS ARE MADE VIBRATIONLESS

The crankshafts in all the Chandler models, sixes and eights, are of extremely heavy construction, which eliminates any whip when the motor is turning over with many revolutions per minute, and in this way vibration is eliminated before it even gets started.

But to further do away with any tendency toward the least bit of vibration, the Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation has balanced the crank-shafts both dynamically and statically, wthich means that they carry a flywheel not only on the rear of the shaft, but also on the frant and also heavy balances on each of the throws of the crankshaft.

FROM the high Sierras comes a story of a lone wolverine who forced a large brown bear and a black bear to give up a carcass upon which they were feeding.

"He shall take who has the power And he shall keep who can"

DEEP in the woods where even the outposts of civilization are few and far between, life depends upon food, and upon the ability to find it and fight for it.

There the wolverine is supreme. Small though he is, there is none among all the forest animals, great or small, who does not fear him. For the wolverine is strong, the wolverine is fearless, and the wolverine is untiring.

Now Reo presents the Wolverine of the roads. It has those hardy qualities for which the wolverine of the woods has always been known. Brawny it is for long years of life. Powerful enough to vanquish the toughest hills. And with an agility born of zooming acceleration (the pistons are of light, lively aluminum alloy), of velvety deceleration (the brakes are Flying Cloud type, 4-wheel, hydraulic, internal-expanding), of easy handling (the steering gear is of the Feather-touch cam and lever type).

The Wolverine is built for those who would master the densest city traffic or the roughest country going. Try one out in either place—you'll find it's the kind of car you'll like to own.

The WOLVERINE

All America Applauds the Triumphs of Chrysler in Speed in Stamina

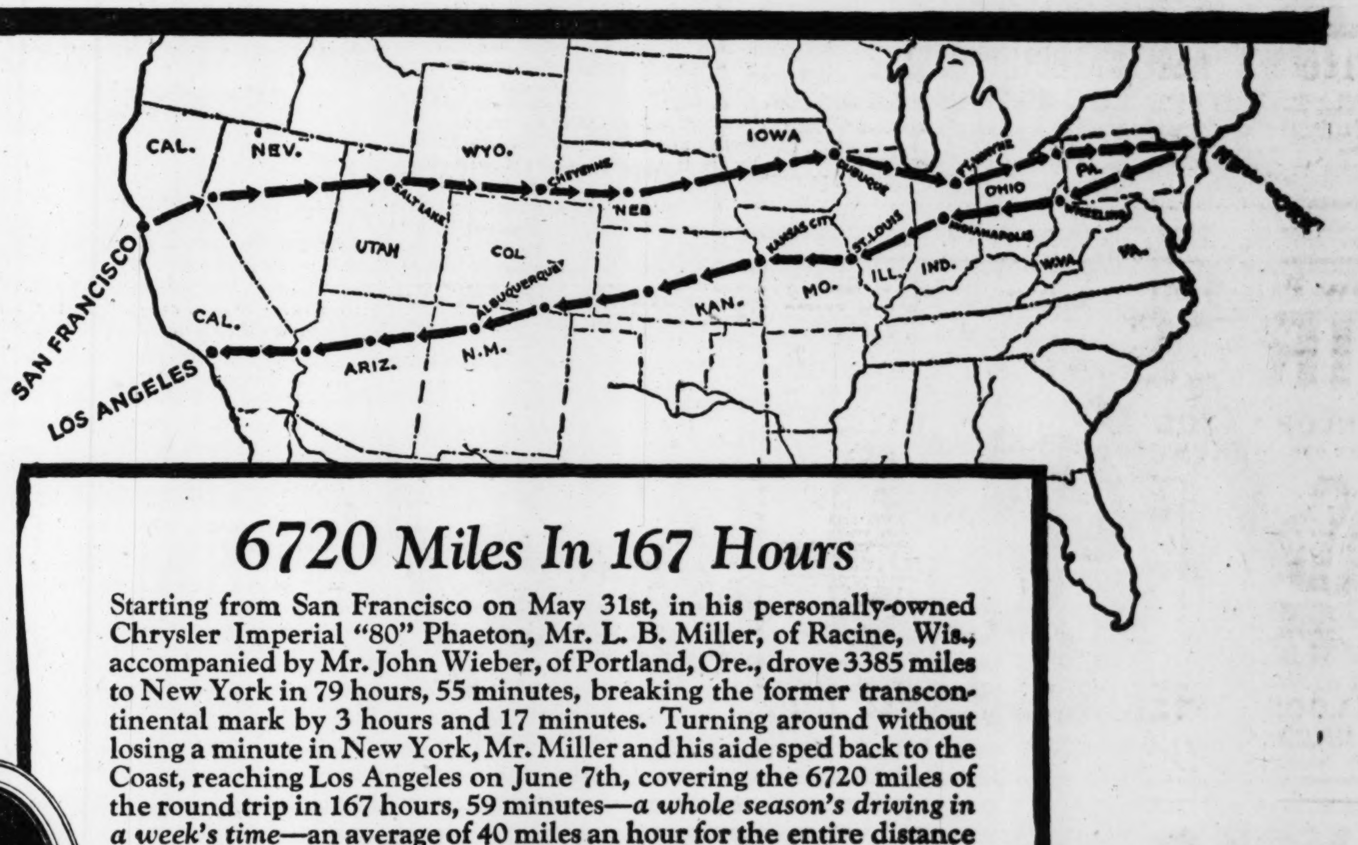
Setting new world's records for speed and stamina among stock cars throughout the world, Chrysler in the last four weeks has thrilled all America with further new proofs of performance leadership.



89.091 Miles In One Hour

Driving a stock Chrysler Imperial "80" Sport Roadster of 288.6 cu. in. piston displacement, at the Atlantic City track on May 14th, Ralph DePalma (under A. A. A. supervision) covered 89.091 miles in one hour —the American record for cars of less than 300 cu. in. piston displacement and within seven-tenths of a mile of the free-for-all stock car record, established by a car in the 450 cu. in. class. The first five miles of this record were run at a speed of 88.757 miles per hour, the first ten miles at 88.666, and the 50-mile mark was reached at a speed of 89.153—all new American records for these distances for a car of this classification.

6720 Miles In 167 Hours

Starting from San Francisco on May 31st, in his personally-owned Chrysler Imperial "80" Phaeton, Mr. L. B. Miller, of Racine, Wis., accompanied by Mr. John Wieber, of Portland, Ore., drove 3385 miles to New York in 79 hours, 55 minutes, breaking the former transcontinental mark by 3 hours and 17 minutes. Turning around without losing a minute in New York, Mr. Miller and his aide sped back to the Coast, reaching Los Angeles on June 7th, covering the 6720 miles of the round trip in 167 hours, 59 minutes—a whole season's driving in a week's time—an average of 40 miles an hour for the entire distance —an achievement without precedent.

Motorists are attaching deep significance to these feats of Chrysler, recognizing that a Chrysler must be of supreme quality to withstand the tremendous stress and strain involved.

Few owners may wish to cover 89 miles in an hour or to travel across the continent and back in 7 days —but all, to a man, appreciate the extra stamina, the extra dependability, the extra responsiveness under normal running conditions that the unique Chrysler Standardized Quality makes possible in every Chrysler—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

You owe it to yourself to become acquainted with these Chrysler advantages. And the only way to know them is to experience them by a real driving test.

Come in. Let us give you a thorough demonstration of the unapproachable advantages which maintain the four great Chryslers, "50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80", unique and singular in their four great markets—you to select the route and do the driving, if you wish.

THREE NEW LATERAL ROADS FOR ARKANSAS

Will Connect Southern Highways With Now Isolated Ozark Region.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

VAN BUREN, Ark., June 18.—Three Crawford County road projects, two of which will connect southern highways with scenic drives through the Ozark mountains, have been approved by County Judge George Stockard, and work is expected to be completed this year.

The Evansville highway, shortening the route from Joplin and Kansas City to Fort Smith by 32 miles, will be opened by Dec. 1, and the road to the National Forest in east Crawford County will be constructed as a connecting link with the Little Rock-Eureka Springs, Ark., route.

The third project calls for 16 miles of highway from Van Buren to Harroldton to connect with the Winslow, and Fayetteville highway.

Residents of the county have donated $5000, the county will furnish $[illegible]0,000, the state will furnish $20,000 and the Federal Government give $20,000 to construct the three links.

CHRYSLER BUYERS REPEAT

An exceptional, and what members of the firm believe to be an unparalleled record in automobile merchandising has been reported to the Chrysler Corporation by one of its distributors at Grand Junction, Colo.

According to the members of this firm, their sales in the three years since they started have grown from 79 cars in the first year to a total of 415 for the whole period of their history. This part of the company's career is not particularly remarkable, but the distributor goes on to declare that of the entire 415 buyers of Chryslers only one has ever traded in his car for another make of automobile, and on this they claim a record.

The one exception, they explain with regret, wanted a second Chrysler but his mind was set on having a certain body type and when he found he could not get it in a Chrysler as soon as he needed it he reluctantly decided to buy another make of car.

WHAT'S NEWEST IN CARS

Reo Wolverine Shown in New Colors

A Reo Wolverine brougham in a new color design is being displayed this week by St. Louis Reo Co., Inc., Reo distributer. The brougham has a body in sea green and black running gear. The top is black, brightened by green window reveals.

The body beading is black and has a gold centerline. The horizontal hood louvres also are striped in green.

Natural wooden wheels are standard.

The car is priced at $1195 list.

New Colors for Auburn 8-885 Roadster

An Auburn 8-88 sport roadster with rumble seat is being shown in a new color scheme this week by St. Louis-Auburn Co. The roadster has a black body and running gear, set off by vivid red beading and red wire wheels. The beading is carried double around the sides and follows the taper of the deck. A black center line runs through the red of the beading.

Upholstery is Spanish grain leather in red to match the beading and wheels color. The top is gray mohair.

The car is priced at $2495, which includes oversized tires, six wheels, the two spare wheels being carried in fender wells on each side of the car, and bumpers and bumperettes.

Two-Tone Color Job on Hudson Coach

A new color design on the Hudson super-six coach is being displayed by Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., Hudson-Essex distributer.

The new design is a two-tone job, the body being done in old ivory, and the running gear is black.

Wooden wheels are standard and are in pea green, the spokes being striped with red.

The window reveals also are of pea green.

The body beading is black, with a green center line.

Tube bumpers, touring truck, nickel radiator shell and headlights are standard.

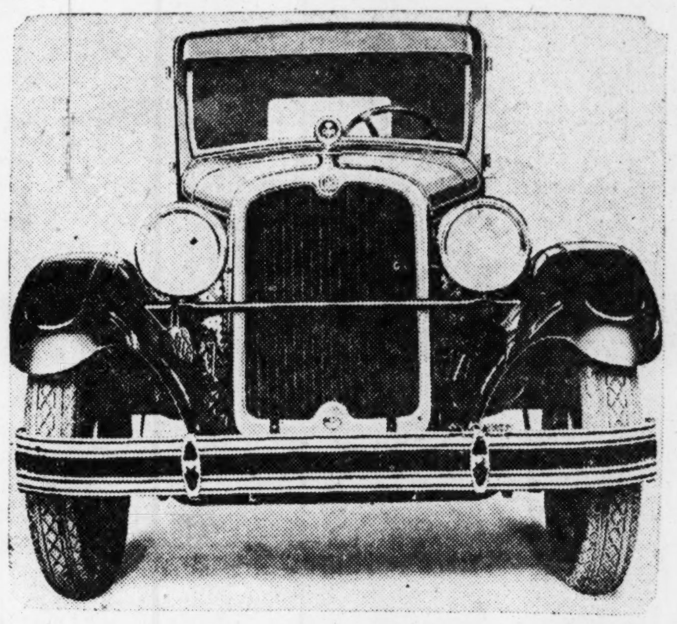
New Cadillac Town Cars Displayed

A new line of Cadillac town cars with custom-built bodies by Fisher, Fleetwood and Brunn are on display by Oliver-Cadillac, Cadillac-La Salle distributer. Typical of these town cars is the five-passenger Cadillac town cabriolet with body by Brunn.

In this car the leather rear quarters are collapsible and the car is truly an open and closed model in one. When lowered, the rear quarter folds back so that harmony of line and balance are still preserved and an open-air car with luxurious closed-car comfort is provided. The rear quarters can be quickly and easily erected and are secured in position by three inside clasps.

A smart touch is given to the car by wire wheels carried in sunken fender wells on both sides.

Front View of New Dodge



This car has an extremely low and compact appearance, yet the interior is notably comfortable and roomy.

Big Umbrella New Paris Auto Accessory

A big umbrella with a bamboo holder attachable to the inside of the automobile as an accessory, is the new idea of a Paris manufacturer.

With the umbrella always ready in her limousine Mme. Shopper is relieved of the anxiety of wondering whether the shop doorman will be ready with his umbrella when it is pouring.

New Dodge Motor Powerful and Economical

"One of the outstanding reasons for the exceptional life and unusually infrequent need of adjustment of Dodge Brothers cars is the fact that the engine makes several hundred fewer revolutions in driving the car a mile than are required of the engines in most cars in the same and even much higher price class. In designing the new motor Dodge Brothers engineers have provided both more power and greater economy without increasing engine speed or size," says a Dodge factory statement.

"The gain has been accomplished largely by making important improvements in the carburetor, the intake manifold and passages and the cylinder head. The problem of securing the best results from the gasoline of today and the gasoline which will be sold next year and in the years to come is quite different from that which has confronted the engineers in past years.

"A surprise in increased power and acceleration and in added smoothness of performance awaits anyone who has not driven a Dodge Brothers motor car equipped with the new motor."

New Nash Coupe Is Popular Model

One of the most popular models in the Nash light six line is the new two-passenger coupe.

Included among its many attractive features is a luggage compartment of unusual size and handiness.

Though the car is nominally a two-passenger model, its single broad seat will seat three persons of ordinary size, and there is plenty of leg room and head room.

New Dodge Has Standard Gear Shift

A standard gear shift and a new transmission with stronger gears, stiffer shafts and larger bearings are new features of the new Dodge models on display by Tate Motor Car Co., Dodge distributors.

The new spliced shaft also is considerably shorter than the old, has six splines instead of four and is now 1¾ inches in diameter. The forward end is supported by a roller pilot bearing instead of a plain bushing formerly used.

The diameter of the countershaft also has been increased and its length shortened considerably.

New Motorbus Route in Canada.

Long distance motorbus travel on a regular time-table has been inaugurated in Western Canada by the establishment of service between Calgary and Edmonton, a distance of over 200 miles. The huge sums spent annually on roads in Canada are popularizing motorbus travel to such an extent that the railways are regarding them as serious competitors.

WILLYS-OVERLAND PROFITS $4,000,000 IN SECOND QUARTER

Company Has $15,000,000 Cash on Hand, Says John Willys.

John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, Inc., sailed this week on the Leviathan to attend the International Chamber of Commerce meeting at Stockholm, where he will address the Highway Transport session as chairman of the Foreign Trade division of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

"May was the biggest month in the history of Willys-Overland," Willys said before his departure. "Shipments for the month were 26,948 cars, with a value of approximately $23,000,000. Exact figures of retail sales for this month are not yet aavilable but it is safe to estimate that they undoubtedly exceed the shipments.

"Based on results to date, Willys-Overland profits in the second quarter, after all charges except Federal taxes, should be in the neighborhood of $4,000,000. Earnings for the first half year after all charges except Federal taxes, may be safely estimated at over $6,000,000.

"We should enter the second half year with over $15,000,000 cash, placing us in the strongest treasury position that I can recall.

"With 115,000 Whippets in actual use by the end of this month, completing the first year for this model, and with the buying trend still so strongly toward small cars, I have no misgivings for the third quarter.

PUNCTURE VINE ROADSIDE PEST

A roadside weed known as the puncture vine, which penetrates the outside of automobile tires, is one of the pests with which the motorist in California has to contend. Each burr of this peculiar weed bears two sharp, pointed spines, and the burr is balanced so that one of the two spines always points upward when the burr is lying on the ground.

PERFECT CAMPING OUTFIT LOST ART, SAYS EXPERT

Gives Details for Pack and Supplies for One Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, June 18.—Making up a perfect camping outfit is fast becoming a lost art in America, according to Karl Kilby of the recreation department of the Coleman Lamp Co. of Wichita, Kan., in an address here before a meeting of sportsmen.

"The light way is the right way to go camping," declared Mr. Kilby. "Burdensome and unwieldy outfits denote the tenderfoot. The simple, light pack denotes the seasoned outdoorsman, whether he travels on foot, by motor or on horseback. Between June 1 and Oct. 1 something like 18,000,000 persons in the United States will go motor camping. Sixteen millions of them will not enjoy themselves because they have taken either too many things with them or too few."

Kilby gave the following prescription for solid auto camping comfort. It includes provisions for one week for one person, exclusive of fish and meat:

Shelter: Light tent; shelter cloth, 9 by 12 feet; sleeping bag, two blankets and pillow.

Cooking equipment: Safety gasoline pressure stove that folds into a small suitcase-like package; light cooking and serving sets.

Personal items: Compass; suitable clothing; match box, pocket knife and watch.

Miscellaneous items: Small ax, sheath knife, flashlight, field glass, pistol and cartridges, fishing tackle, first aid kit containing simple medicines in tablet form.

Provisions: Flour, 7 pounds; pork, 5 pounds; tea, 1-5-pound; beans, 2 pounds; sugar, 1½ pounds; rice, 1½ pounds; oatmeal, 1 pound; lard, baking powder, matches, soap, pepper, salt, tobacco.

COMFORT STATIONS IN STATE UNDER SURVEY

Places Approved by Health Department Marked With Official "Safety Sign."

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Motorists traveling through Missouri receive health protection through activities of the State Board of Health and the State Highway Department in surveying and marking pure water supplies and approved comfort and rest stations on the important routes.

The campaign for safety of the traveling public has been carried on by the Health Department during the last seven months and during that period, the entire 2750 miles of national highways in Missouri have been surveyed, according to Scott Johnson, chief of the division of sanitary engineering for the State Board of Health. Inspection of 425 comfort stations have been made, and 279 of them have been reinspected one or more times.

Improvements Noted.

Complete improvements, including a safe water supply, and necessary sanitary equipment, have been obtained at 53 of these comfort stations along the transcontinental routes. These places have been approved for the highway sign, which consists of a large "safe water" sign, surmounted by a green, shamrock-shaped "comfort station" official sign.

Many comfort stations, according to Johnson, have made improvements, but could not be approved for the official highway marker because of failure to meet certain requirements.

The survey of the water supply on which approval by the Board of Health is based includes the location as regards possible source of pollution; the construction of well or cistern, including type and condition of walls or casing, design and condition of pump, surface protection and other features which influence the safety of a water supply; and a bacteriological examination of the water.

"Pure Water" Signs.

Standard "pure water" signs will also be used at city limits to inform the tourist with regard to the safety of the city water supply. The majority of the city supplies are safe and those which need improvement will be given aid in bringing their supply to standard, it was explained.

The health board's program also calls for a survey of city tourist camps and recommendations for change necessary to meet the qualifications for an approved rest station sign.

Auto Distance Record Set.

A new world's record for distance covered by an automobile in one hour was made recently by the French racing driver, Marchand. Driving over the Montehery speedway he covered 206 kilometers 55 meters (about 130 miles) in 6 minutes. The previous record listed as 203 kilometers 725 meter

COMFORT STATIONS IN STATE UNDER SURVEY

Places Approved by Health Department Marked With Official "Safety Sign."

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Motorists traveling through Missouri receive health protection through activities of the State Board of Health and the State Highway Department in surveying and marking pure water supplies and approved comfort and rest stations on the important routes.

The campaign for safety of the traveling public has been carried on by the Health Department during the last seven months and during that period, the entire 2750 miles of national highways in Missouri have been surveyed, according to Scott Johnson, chief of the division of sanitary engineering for the State Board of Health. Inspection of 425 comfort stations have been made, and 279 of them have been reinspected one or more times.

Improvements Noted.

Complete improvements, including a safe water supply, and necessary sanitary equipment, have been obtained at 53 of these comfort stations along the transcontinental routes. These places have been approved for the highway sign, which consists of a large "safe water" sign, surmounted by a green, shamrock-shaped "comfort station" official sign.

Many comfort stations, according to Johnson, have made improvements, but could not be approved for the official highway marker because of failure to meet certain requirements.

The survey of the water supply on which approval by the Board of Health is based includes the location as regards possible source of pollution; the construction of well or cistern, including type and condition of walls or casing, design and condition of pump, surface protection and other features which influence the safety of a water supply; and a bacteriological examination of the water.

"Pure Water" Signs.

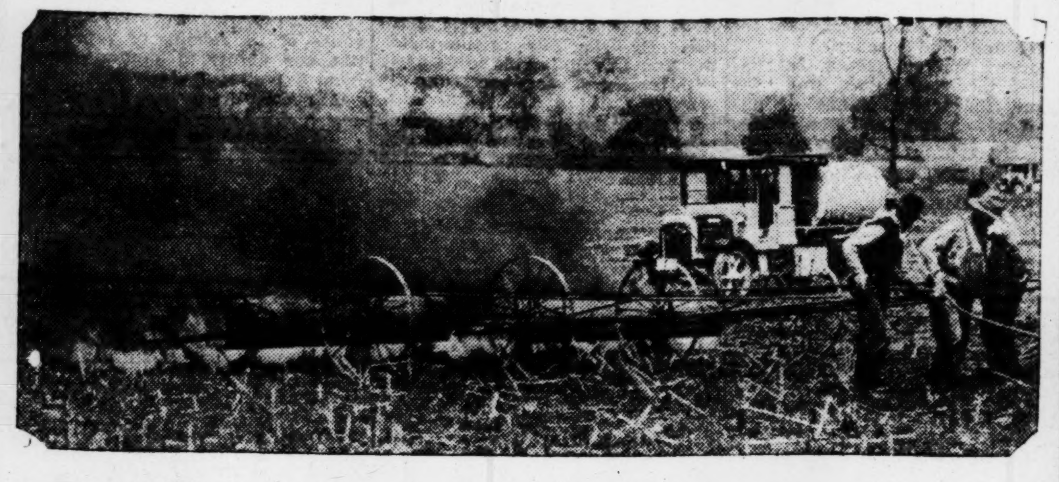
Standard "pure water" signs will also be used at city limits to inform the tourist with regard to the safety of the city water supply. The majority of the city supplies are safe and those which need improvement will be given aid in bringing their supply to standard, it was explained.

The health board's program also calls for a survey of city tourist camps and recommendations for change necessary to meet the qualifications for an approved rest station sign.

Auto Distance Record Set.

A new world's record for distance covered by an automobile in one hour was made recently by the French racing driver, Marchand. Driving over the Montehery speedway he covered 206 kilometers 558 meters (about 130 miles) in 60 minutes. The previous record is listed as 203 kilometers 725 meters.

Fighting the European Corn Borer With Fire



Tongues of fire from 30 nozzles are making short work of European corn borers in a field near Dexter, Mich. The truck pumps oil through hundreds of feet of hose to the burning carriages. It is one of 64 heavy duty Federals bought for the work by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

STUDEBAKER FACTORY TELLS HOW EXPORTS ARE CRATED

The art of packing a car more than 12 feet long and nearly six feet high in a box that looks half its size is developed to a high degree in the export shipping department of the Studebaker Corporation, says a factory statement.

"First," the factory says, "a crew of men start at the front and rear with specialized tools that loosen the top, if the car is a phaeton or roadster, remove hub caps, headlights, bumpers, tail light, tire carrier and spare rim. These go into their special places in a parts truck that follows the car down the line. Meanwhile the motor and all nickel parts are being sprayed with a greasy preparation which prevents rust.

While a crane holds the car in mid-air, wheels and wheel bearings are removed and the gasoline tank and gas line blown clean with compressed air. Spare tire carrier, floor boards, small parts box, bumpers and tools are meanwhile being securely bolted to the bottom of the shipping crate. Then the crane lowers the car on the crate bottom, the axles fitting in special blocks to which they are locked with heavy bolts.

The four wheels have by this time been bolted to the sides of the crate. The sides are fastened on, then braced across the center, the brace serving as a shelf for the folding top. The windshield goes into the back seat, securely held by this same center brace. Front and back ends close the crate and the top is fastened on while a painter gets busy wtih his stencils.

The crate is then bound with heavy wire and covered with a heavy waterproof paper that affords additional protection while in transit to the seaboard on flat cars.

License Symbol Idea.

The idea of placing the State's symbol upon automobile license plates originated in New Hampshire. The Granite States tags carry the "Old Man of the Mountains."

ACCESSORIES VITAL NEEDS NOT LUXURIES, SAYS OLDS

The trend of automobile buyers to desire a fully equipped car is becoming more pronounced. What were only a few years ago regarded as luxurious accessories today are recognized by engineers as vital needs, and rightly so, due to changed traffic and road conditions, says the Oldsmobile factory.

"This recognition has been demonstrated by Oldsmobile when, in a recent announcement of lower prices, it also announced that hereafter all Oldsmobiles would be equipped with front and rear bumpers, rear vision mirrors and automatic windshield cleaners. These are considered by Oldsmobile engineers to be vital necessities under present driving conditions.

"When the first Oldsmobiles were built, nearly 30 years ago, the only extra equipment was a whip socket on the dash, and that was there because the maker of the dashboards had always included a whip socket on his buggy dashes, and "danged if he would make them any different."

"During the intervening years many improvements have been made, and usually these came out first as accessories and later adopted as standard equipment. With the introduction of this equipment as standard on Oldsmobile it is now possible to purchase at a price under $900 a six-cylinder closed car with needed accessories included in the purchase price.

The Oldsmobile price reductions, announced at the same time as was the fully equipped car, average approximately $100 on all body types.

Prison License Factory.

The State prison at Auburn, N. Y., has become a large automobile license plate factory. A gang of 115 convicts under the eyes of two guards, are working six and one-half hours a day, turning out 15,000 pairs of plates daily. It is expected that night shifts may be employed to make 2,500,000 pairs, the largest single order in the history of the State.

LOW PRICE OF NEW DODGE 6 SURPRISES PEOPLE, TATE SAYS

Hundreds of motorists have inspected the new Dodge Brothers six-cylinder four-door sedan during the two weeks it has been on display here, according to Frank R. Tate, president of the Tate Motor Car Co., Dodge distributor.

"Particular comment has been occasioned by the $1595 price," Tate says, "because it is considerably lower than the price at which Dodge Brothers, Inc., originally announced it would be sold. The original price was set before the new six cylinder line was actually in production. Dealers' demands since then have so far exceeded the number of cars it was planned to build that the lower price, based on larger volume, was possible at the outset. Consequently the $1595 price was immediately announced.

"The new six cylinder line is built in an entirely new plant which is the last word in automobile factory construction. It is entirely separate from all other establishments of Dodge Brothers business. The building alone cost approximately $2,750,000 and equipment installed thus far represents an additional expenditure of $1,750,000. It is over 1900 feet long and adds more than 480,000 square feet of floor space to Dodge Brothers manufacturing facilities.

"The total area of Dodge Brothers factories is now 6,088,000 square feet—approximately 140 acres. Including the new plant and under normal operating conditions employment in Dodge Brothers factories will total about 25,000 persons."

BUILDS NOVEL RECEIVER

A combination crystal and tube radio receiver, which also can be used as a transmitter, has been built by George Foster, 1536 Hogan street. It is in the form of a small wooden house. It has a special vibrator, which strengthens the radio impulse from the crystal detector and is said to make it possible to get as much volume from two tubes as from six tubes in other receivers. As a tube set, it needs no antenna. It has a special ground to reduce noise and a fan-shaped rheo-inductor with a vibratory coil for use in selecting wave lengths. A copper tube, filled with chemicals, serves as a speaker.

RADIO SET ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Arrangements have been made by Dan Hyland, St. Louis manager for the Stewart-Warner Corporation, to install a Stewart-Warner matched unit radio set on a Chicago & Alton special train leaving St. Louis at 2 this afternoon, carrying the St. Louis delegation of 200 master plumbers to Minneapolis, Minn., to attend a convention of the National Association of Master Plumbers of the United States. It is planned to keep in touch with the broadcast of the Lindbergh ceremonies in Forest Park. The party will be in charge of Dan McNamara, general agent, passenger department, Chicago & Alton Railroad.

Knight Again WIL Announcer.

William ("Billy") Knight, who was known as "The Little Ole Professor," who for a time was announcer for WIL, St. Louis, is again in charge of that station.

Radio programs are carried to listeners by electrical waves traveling at the rate of 186,000 miles a second.

BROADCASTING TO ST. LOUIS PUBLIC SCHOOLS PROPOSED

The name, "Spirit of St. Louis," has been chosen for WSBF, which the newly organized Mississippi Valley Broadcasting Co. has been licensed to operate in St. Louis on a wave length of 441 meters.

A proposition to place receiving sets in the public schools and broadcast programs for the pupils has been made to the Board of Education by Michael Bass, president of the Public School Patrons' Alliance and president of the new broadcasting company.

Gene Jordan, who has been announcer for WIL and KFVE, is to be in charge of the WSBF studios and announcing.

RESORT and TRAVEL INFORMATION

The Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau, last season, served more than 25,000 people with helpful information and assistance. This season the Bureau is equipped with even better facilities, and invites the public to take full advantage of the convenience it offers through assisting in the selection of hotels, resorts, railroads, steamships or automobile routes.

Aside from a nominal charge of 10c—12c by mail—for state road maps showing up-to-date highways, or atlases of the Eastern or the Western half of the United States—50c each or by mail 66c each, the service of the Bureau is without cost to those who desire information.

AC OPERATED SETS SEEN AT RADIO SHOW

But Receivers Using Batteries or Eliminators Are Still in Vast Majority.

Definite improvement in virtually every thing pertaining to radio reception was noticeable throughout the radio trades show at Chicago which ended Thursday.

Receivers using the new A. C. tubes and thus dispensing with batteries were numerous and interesting in design and performance. But fully 70 per cent of the receivers shown and planned use the tubes operated by batteries or by A and B eliminators. Provision was made in virtually every receiver exhibited for use of the 112 or 171 types of power tubes, and the trend in eliminators was toward sufficient power output to operate these tubes at full or nearly full capacity, which is 135 volts in the case of the 112 tube and 180 volts for the 171 type. Several wholly new loud speakers, and definite improvement in those already established in public favor, were noteworthy. Several manufacturers showed power speakers, some having eliminators in the speakers.

On every side it was apparent that ease of tuning, better quality of reproduction, and freedom from bother in caring for a receiver, are definite aims of most of the manufacturers.

Total shielding was found in many receivers, and the proportion of single dial sets was materially increased over last year. Two console models were shown for one table type receiver.

Some of the New Things.

Several manufacturers showed combination phonograph and radio receivers built in consoles. An electric pick-up for the record vibrations is used with the audio frequency system of the receiver.

One of the electric receivers contained a motor-generator set suspended on springs and housed in the base of a console. The tubes of this set are wired in series, the motor-generator furnishing all A, B and C current.

Another electric receiver, of unusual volume, uses the "heater type" A. C. tube for the detector and the two-volt, one ampere A. C. tube in all the other sockets except the last audio stage where a 171 type is supplied with raw A. C. on the filament.

Gas filled, full wave, rectifying tubes are used in nearly all of the B and C units. This type of tube with an output of 400 mills, is also found in A, B and C units where it is desired to wire the filaments of the tubes in the receiver in series.

Larger and more artistic cone speakers were very much in evidence.

Review of the New Line.

Double shielding in a seven-tube set, which is an addition to the regular line, a new cone speaker, and an eliminator of distinctive design, are the new features of the Atwater Kent line. Exceptional selectivity and tone quality are claimed for the shielded receiver, while the new speaker was a center of attention at the show.

Receivers of the Radio Corporation of America show little change, but several additions. Superheterodynes of the 8-tube type continue as R. C. A. leaders, together with the 104 power speaker and A. B and C power supply unit.

The super and 104 power unit are shown combined in one cabinet in the new Radiola 32.

Radiola 30-A, a newcomer, combines the standard super chassis with a new speaker, the 100-A and socket power. The 32 and 30-A are available for direct or alternating current socket power operation.

The outstanding new model of the R. C. A., however, is the 17, a completely alternating current operated 6-tube set, with simplicity of operation and maintenance.

The Radiola 20 model is continued.

Ingeniously devised tube isolating circuits and a special coil are two of the new features in the Synchrophase Seven, made by A. H. Grebe & Co., Inc. It is of the single dial type.

The Grebe Co. has added its own "motor boat" proof socket power unit and a 20-inch cone speaker.

A 6-tube shielded set, and completely shielded 7tube an-d 8-tube model operating with loop, feature the new line of Fada receivers. In addition to the improved 22-inch cone, Fada exhibited a new 17-inch cone, as well as a Fada-Philco power package.

New models of the Steinite electrically operated 6-tube receiver were exhibited. This Steinite set is a pioneer, and has been proved by time. There are also battery operated Steinite models.

An excellent example of the totally shielded receivers are the Federal Orthonosic models, in which shielding has been ingeniously employed to insure fine tone quality as well as selectivity and DX ability.

Excellently designed-shielding has always been a major factor in the performance of Stromberg-Carlson receivers. It accounts to a large degree for the tone quality and selectivity of these receivers, as demonstrated at the show.

Two totally shielded receivers are features of the new Stewart-Warner line, which includes a number of other console and table models. The "matched unit" idea is again the inspiring motive in design of Stewart-Warner sets.

More Interesting Sets.

All-American showed three AC socket power operated receivers, a seven-tube set and two six-tube sets, in addition to six-tube and five-tube battery operated sets. Rigid steel chassis are features of these receivers.

There are two outstanding additions to the Kolster line. One is a six-tube console receiver with a built-in power cone that also supplies "B" power to the set. Either an "A" battery can be used, or the "A" power unit made by Kolster. The other addition is a console power cone requiring no batteries.

A new console cone speaker to be operated by a power amplifier, which also is supplied, and an AC operated receiver are additions to the Freshman line of six-tube and five-tube sets. The AC operated receiver is to use AC tubes and has a built-in speaker.

One typical receiver equipped with the new UY-227 alternating current tubes was displayed by the Zenith Radio Corporation.

It was announced that a new six-tube Crosley receiver, to be introduced within a month, will use new AC tubes perfected by the Radio Corporation of America. The Crosley "Bandbox," a six-tube set for battery or lamp socket operation, and three improved Musicones, were shown at a convention at the Crosley factory in Cincinnati.

A 7-tube set and two 6-tube sets, all wired for battery or lamp socket operation, were features of the Bosch line exhibited. Bosch A and B units also were shown, together with a 3-unit device for providing electrical reproduction of phonograph records through a radio receiver and loud speaker.

Among the completely AC operated receivers shown was the Argus, for which claims of unusual power and tone were made. This set comes in attractive console and table models.

More of the New Things.

The new metal, Kuprox, with which the Kodel Corp. is building a line of battery chargers of various types, attracted much attention. By using discs of this metal, the Kodel Corp. is able to do away with tubes and other rectifying devices.

Another device that was much commented on was the Phasatrol, an Electrad device for neutralizing radio receivers in an easy and simple manner.

Balsa wood, which is lighter than cork, is used in a loud speaker which created much inteerst because of its fidelity of reproduction and ability to handle volum- from a powerful receiver.

Another interesting line of re-

WAVE LENGTH CHANGE WORKS IMPROVEMENT

Radio Reception Generally Appears to Be Better—Heterodyning by No Means Ended.

Reception of stations never heard before, good but spotty DX, some bad "smears," the first reception of WEAF direct for many set owners in a year, on the whole considerable improvement, seems to be the verdict of St. Louis radio fans on the new wave length allotment that went into effect Wednesday.

There is still a bad situation on and around 400 meters and KFI, Los Angeles, seems as difficult to get as before, while there are still a number of heterodyning whistles.

Early reports to Washington are that the June 15 broadcasting allocations have brought perceptible relief of interference.

Generally, it is said, the frequency shifts, the wider separations between frequencies and the many cuts in power, have improved not only local reception, but also DXing or outside reception. On the other hand, there are communities where stations formerly heard cannot be picked up now. Still others report little or no difference.

Virtually all stations in the United States conformed with the terms of operation stipulated in their sixty-day licenses which became effective at 3 a. m. June 15, according to Commissioner Bellows.

The New York situation is clouded only by the injunction action begun by Station WMSG, owned by the Madison Square Broadcast Association, one of a group of stations objecting to the commission's orders.

The American Singers.

Oft in the Still Night—
Thomas Moore

The American Singers.

Monday Night on KSD

Marion Keeler, soprano, is to be the featured soloist in tomorrow evenings' big program by Roxy and His Gang through KSD. Supporting Miss Keeler will be heard other members of the Gang and Roxy's instrumental and vocal soloists and organizations. Included in the musical organizations which will form the background for the soloists will be the 110-piece symphony orchestra, the Roxy Jazzmanians, the 100-voice mixed chorus, the Russian choir, the large theater organ with its three organists and cathedral chimes.

Tuesday on KSD

Two selections by the string quartette of the Eveready Orchestra and a xylophone solo by Joe Green will be features of the Eveready Hour to be broadcast next Tuesday evening through KSD.

The favorites, "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes" and "The Londonderry Air," will be played by the string quartette. Joe Green, whose exhilarating fantasies on the xylophone are well known to radio audiences, will play the intermezzo "Jewels of the Madonna."

A series of familiar numbers will follow, by the Eveready orchestra, including the suite of "Indian Love Lyrics" arranged for saxophones; "In the Shadows," "Every Morn I Bring You Violets;" Victor Herbert's "Badinage," Rudolph Friml's "Love Everlasting," and Poldini's "Dancing Doll."

In keeping with its summer policy, the closing 15 minutes of the Eveready Hour will be devoted to popular dance music.

A thrilling half-hour which closes with the gun shots of Mexican bandits, will be heard by KSD listeners Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock, when the next eposide in the series of adventures of the "Coca Cola Girl" is broadcast.

KSD's Tuesday night broadcasting is to conclude with the ever interesting Radio Cavalcade.

Wednesday From KSD

George B. Keevall, organist of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Westfield, N. J., will play in the organ recital to be broadcast by KSD on Wednesday evening.

S. C. Lanin will direct the Ipana Trubadours as usual from 7:30 to 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening when this versatile organization will go on the air through KSD.

Radio fans who have been listening to the series of concerts known as "Songs of the City" by the National Cavaliers male quartet on Wednesday evenings will be pleased to learn that the continuity of this program will not be changed, although the National Cavaliers will not be heard in the mid-week concert for several weeks to come.

A new quartet, known as "The Four Bards," will carry on with this interesting series of songs representing the life and customs of New York City. The second of their programs will be heard through KSD on Wednesday evening. The title of this program will be "Backyard Billads."

The National Light Opera Co. will be heard through KSD on Wednesday evening, under the direction of Cesare Sodero in a tabloid version of Edmund Audran's "La Mascotte" (The Mascot). The cast will include the following soloists:

Rosalie Wolfe, soprano; Frances Paperte, mezzo soprano; George O'Brien, tenor; John Quine, baritone; John Oakley, basso.

Thursday on KSD

Thursday evening on KSD is to begin, as usual, with the South Sea Islanders in guitar music and solos by the tenor, Norman Clark.

Devotees of the tuneful music of Victor Herbert should inspect their radio receiving sets to make sure that they may hear the "Half-Hour With Victor Herbert" which is to be given through KSD Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock. The program will be directed by Harold Sanford, who was long associated with Mr. Herbert and is regarded as an authority on his music.

The program will be presented by an orchestra and soprano and tenor soloists.

The program will be as follows:

Canzonetta ....Orchestra

Devotion ....Orchestra

"A Perfect Day".....Soprano Solo

Cannibal Dance ....Orchestra

"Love Laid His Sleepless Head"—
Tenor Solo

"Aubade" from "Suite Romantique" ....Orchestra

"Thine Alone" from the Irish Opera, "Eileen"—
Soprano and Tenor duet

"Al Fresco" ....Orchestra

Thursday night's program is scheduled to conclude with the usual concert by the Goodrich Silvertown Cord Orchestra and the Silver Masked tenor.

Friday on KSD

If four young college students one summer not so long ago had not been engaged as waiters at the summer camp of Oscar Seagle, noted vocal instructor, the audience of the National Broadcasting Co.'s Red Network would probably not have the opportunity of hearing the Cities Service Cavaliers in collaboration with the Cities Service Concert Orchestra through KSD Friday evening. The Cities Service Concert Orchestra, under the baton of the noted Rosario Bourdon, and the Cities Service Cavaliers will be heard in an hour's program beginning at 6 o'clock.

The Cities Service Cavaliers comprises the following four young men: Leo O'Rourke, first tenor; Robert Stevens, second tenor; John Seagle, baritone, and Darrell Woodyard, basso.

Leo O'Rourke, first tenor and accompanist of the quartet, was born in West Rutland, Vermont, and attended the University of Vermont. During the war, he joined the Navy, but he says that his present location on Riverside Drive is as close as he has come to the Atlantic Ocean.

John Seagle, baritone, son of Oscar Seagle, vocal instructor, although born in Paris, attended the University of Missouri, where he was soloist with the Glee Club.

Robert Stevens is a native of Chattanooga, Tenn., and received his education in the Georgia School of Technology at Atlanta, Ga.

Darrell Woodyard, basso, was born in Oklahoma and calls Oklahoma State College his Alma Mater. While there he won the State interscholastic contest in voice.

Following this broadcast, KSD will put the new Paramount series concert on the air.

At 7:30 Friday night will come the ever popular La France Orchestra, led by Anna Byrnes.

At 8 Friday night KSD will broadcast another appearance of the feature known as The Dreamers.

The KSD Friday night broadcast will conclude with an hour of dance music by one of the noted New York orchestras.

Goldman Band Saturday

Operatic music will be featured in the concert of the Goldman Band through KSD on Saturday evening. Del Staigers, cornetist, soloist of the evening, will play an air from "Sampson and Delilah" by Saint-Saens.

The band also will play the Sextette from "Lucia" by Donizetti and excerpts from "Faust" by Gounod. The complete program will be as follows:

Coronation March, "The Prophet,"
Meyerbeer

Overture from "Rienzi"...Wagner

Pilgrim's Chorus and Song to the Evening Star from "Tanhauser" ....Wagner

Excerpts from "Aida"......Verdi

Finale of Act III of "La Gioconda"
Ponchielli

Aria, "Sampson and Delilah"
Saint-Saens

Cornet solo by Del Staigers.

Miserere from "Il Trovatore"
Verdi

Sextette from "Lucia"...Donizetti

Excerpts from "Faust"....Gounod

The United States has an average of five radio listeners to each receiving set.

A radio weather map recording set is to be installed in the giant dirigible Los Angeles.

A radio magazine for the blind is published in France. It is printed in Braille raised type.

A. C. OPERATED SETS SEEN AT RADIO TRADE EXHIBIT IN CHICAGO

ceivers was shown by Temple, Inc., these being of the long air column type. A huge Temple special speaker, with an extra long air column and a bell three feet across, reproduced with extraordinary fidelity and beauty of tone.

A remote control device, which enables one to tune and otherwise operate a receiving set from a distance, was exhibited by the Algonquin Co., which also showed Algonquin speakers and the line of Thermiodyne receivers.

Interest in the new receivers and speakers was equaled by that in the A and B eliminators and power supply devices. The Philco exhibit was thronged throughout the show. Crowds continually pressed around the Balkite booth. Dealers at times were jammed around the Majestic display. The Acme, Brown & Greene and a dozen other eliminator and power unit exhibits also were kept busy.

St. Louisans played a prominent part in the conventions during radio trade show week. Harold J. Wrape presided as national president at the sessions of the Federated Radio Trades Association. Robert W. Bennett, president of the St. Louis Radio Trades Association, was on the program of the Federated Radio Trades Association for an address on "The Field of the Manufacturer's Agent."

Trade Notes.

The Globe Electric Co. has been appointed exclusive distributer of Kellogg radio receiving sets in the St. Louis trade territory.

A meeting of Fada dealers from this territory is to be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning at the Coronado Hotel. The Beck & Corbitt Co., Fada distributer, will be host.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH
SOCIETY NEWS SECTION

PART SIX — ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, JUNE 19, 1927. — PAGES 1—16.

MISS LUCILLE FALK, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. John Charles Falk, whose engagement to Edward Francis Healey of South Bend, Ind., has been announced. —Dieckman.

MISS MARY AMBROSE SMITH, who will depart this week for Point-aux-Barques, Mich., and will make her debut in the fall. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Sheppard Smith. —Ashen-Brenner.

MRS. WARREN S. MILLER, formerly Miss Dorothy Jackes, daughter of Mrs. Franklin R. Jackes of the St. Regis Apartments. She was married Thursday night. —Schweig.

Miss Margaret Yeomans Engaged To William Randolph Compton Jr.

Announcement Made at Dinner Party Given by Parents of Prospective Bride at Kansas City Country Club.

THE engagements of Miss Margaret Morris Yeomans, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Seabury Yeomans of Kansas City, and William Randolph Compton Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Compton Jr., of 18 Kingsbury place was announced last night at a dinner party given at the Country Club in Kansas City by the parents of the prospective bride.

Miss Yeomans is prominent in Kansas City society. She is a graduate of Smith College and is president of the Kansas City Chapter of the Junior League.

Mr. Compton is a graduate of Princeton University, and is identified with the younger set at the St. Louis Country Club of which he is a member. He also belongs to the Racquet and University clubs.

The wedding date has not been set.

Mr. Compton was in Kansas City for the announcement party, as were his brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John Turner Clarkson. The latter was Miss Frances Compton. Another brother, Randolph, who married Miss Dorothy Danforth, lives in Scarsdale, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Compton were unable to attend. They will depart July 1 for Harbor Point, Mich., where they will be guests at the clubhouse, and Mrs. Compton will go East the middle of August to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Bissell of New York at their country home in Vermont, near Lake Champlain.

UNDER a pergola of roses with smilax vines entwined in the lattice, built on the lawn of her parents' home in Wichita, Kan., Miss Helen McCausland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. McCausland, became the bride at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning, of Frank Hall Kentnor, son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Kentnor of 3734 Washington boulevard. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Aaron Griffiths, and was followed by a buffet breakfast in the house, which was profusely adorned with spring flowers for the occasion.

The bride was gowned in white georgette with a summery garden hat, and carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Ross McCausland, who wore peppermint green georgette with a large hat of cream milan, and carried yellow roses. Mr. McDonald was best man.

Mr. Kentnor's parents went to Wichita for the wedding as did his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Tate of Vandeventer place.

Mr. and Mrs. Kentnor have departed for a six-weeks' trip through Banff and Lake Louise to Vancouver, and will tour the Pacific Coast, returning by way of the Grand Canyon. They have taken an apartment at 3734 Washington boulevard. The bride is a graduate of Fairmont College in Wichita and Simmons College in Boston, and is president of the Wichita Branch of the American Association of University Women. Mr. Kentnor is a graduate of the University of Missouri and a member of Beta Theta Pi.

Mr. and Mrs. Love and Miss Love will depart today for New Haven, Conn., to attend the graduation of Edward K. Love Jr. from Yale. They will spend the summer at their home in Biddeford Pool, Me.

MRS. HUGH CINCAIDE ROBERTS, whose wedding took place Wednesday. She was Miss Aura Antrim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Antrim of 25 Kingsbury place. —Schweig.

Miss Helen Petring Married To F. W. Pavey

MISS HELEN PETRING, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Petring of 6 Washington terrace, and Frederick W. Pavey were married last night at the Church of the Messiah. The Rev. Dr. William L. Sullivan read the marriage service by the light from cathedral tapers set in a background of huckleberry foliage, with clusters of hydrangeas shading from pink into lavender.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Sheridan Knight Loy, Mrs. Dwight Donald Thomas, Mrs. Leo Shanley and Miss Lucille Brooks, were gowned alike in rose pink chiffon, fashioned with circular skirts and bolero bodices with capes. Large rose hairbraid hats, adorned with flanges of pink velvet, completed the costumes, and they carried Columbia roses and purple larkspur. A pleasing contrast was the gown of Miss Mildred Petring, maid of honor, in two tones of rose. Draperies of pink chiffon were caught on one shoulder with rhinestones and former a train. Her hat was trimmed with deep rose velvet and she carried pale pink roses with lavender larkspur.

Preceding the bride were Geraldine Baird and Patricia Dunbar, granddaughters of Mrs. George J. Hess, in flesh-tinted crepe with Valenciennes lace, and carrying inverted leghorn hats trimmed with lace and flowers and filled with spring blossoms.

The bride's gown was ivory satin, heavily embroidered in pearls and rhinestones, made on straight lines with the bodice in bolero effect. A six-yard train formed from a scarf of rose point lace banded in satin fell from the shoulders, and the filmy tulle veil was arranged beneath a band of the lace and orange blossoms. She carried lilies of the valley.

Malcolm Breckenridge was best man, and Mr. Loy, Mr. Thomas, Dr. Shanley, Virgil Pinkstaff and Reid Cornwall were ushers.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Petring home. The receiving line stood before the fireplace in the living room, which was banked with ferns and palms and studded with pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Pavey will spend their honeymoon in the East.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and Miss Bennett's School in Millbrook, N. Y. She completed her education at Washington University, as did Mr. Pavey. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Pavey of Robyn and Denny roads.

Weddings and Engagements Of the Week

The marriage of Miss Frances Blackburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Blackburn of 457 Hawthorne avenue, Webster Park, to James A. Weaver Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Weaver of 5843 Cates avenue, was solemnized Friday evening, June 17, at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed at 8:30 o'clock, with Dr. C. O. Rensford officiating. The bridal party descended the stairway, lighted by waxen tapers, and crossed the broad hall to an improvised altar in an alcove. Tall tapers in large candelabras flanked the altar, and there were tall baskets of pink roses and blue delphinium.

Mrs. C. Harvey Smith, a sister of the bride, the matron of honor, wore light blue silk made with a full skirt of alternating bands of chiffon and taffeta. The bridesmaids, Miss Clara Beardslee and Miss Dorothy Pennell, wore similar gowns and their flowers were arm bouquets of pink roses and the blue delphinium.

The bride wore white chiffon embroidered in crystals. Her satin court train was covered with a tulle veil attached to her coiffure with a Greek bandeou of the orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Mr. Weaver had as his best man Sterling White. The groomsmen were Walter Buckner of Topeka, Kan., and Fred Kramer. Miss Edith Hafner and Mrs. S. E. Buckner sang, accompanied on the pipe organ by Fred Booth. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver departed later in the evening for a wedding trip of several weeks and on their return will make their home for the present with Mr. and Mrs. Blackburn.

The marriage of Miss Louise A. Riley, daughter of Mrs. Woodbury Riley, of 5636 Cabanne avenue, and Raymond F. Howes, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Howes of Elmira, N. Y., took place yesterday morning at the Pilgrim Congregational Church, the Rev. Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, officiating. J. Woodbury Riley, brother of the bride, gave her in marriage. Miss Charlotte Coombe was maid of honor, and Wilbur S. Howell of Addison, N. Y., best man. The other attendants were Miss Isabel Orr, Charles W. MacKenzie of Boston and Norman G. Neuhoff. A wedding breakfast followed at the Forest Park Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Howes departed after the ceremony for Chicago and Elmira. They will make their home in St. Louis after August. The bride was educated at Washington University, where she became a member of Pi Beta Phi. Mr. Howes attended Cornell University and the University of Pittsburg.

A wedding yesterday afternoon was that of Miss Betsey Andrews Sherwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Porter Sherwood, of 5512 Maple avenu, and Donald Gilbert Nibeck, formerly of Hazleton, Ia. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, at the Sherwood home. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret, and Ray Oth was best man. The bride is a graduate of Stephens College and her husband of Iowa State University. Both have been members of the Wellston High School faculty for a number of years.

Mrs. Jessie Peterson of DeTonty street, and Darwin M. Follette, son of Mrs. Mabel Hinkley of 4242 Lindell boulevard, were married at noon Thursday by the Rev. Dr. Palmer in his apartment in the Parkleigh. Mr. Follete attended the University of Missouri and served overseas with the Thirty-fifth Division.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer G. Marschuetz of 211 gray avenue, Webster Groves, was the scene Tuesday evening of the wedding of thir niece, Miss Mary Elizabth Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude S. Adams, and Grant Calvin Carr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry C. Carr of Manchester, Mo. The bride, who was unattended, wore a gren afternoon gown and carried pink roses and lilies of the valley. After a motor trip through the North, Mr. and Mrs. Carr will be at home in Manchester, Mo.

Miss Virginia Lee Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Brown of 6675 Washington boulevard, has chosen July 8 as the date of her wedding to William Felix Boldt, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Boldt of 6300 Enright avenue. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. William Crowe, at Westminster Presbyterian Church, at 8 p. m., and a reception will follow at the home of the bride's paternal grandmother, 1333 North Kingshighway. Mrs. George F. Wood, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor, and Miss Virginia Wood, Miss Elizabeth Malone, Miss Sue Barnes and Miss Sarah Barnest, bridesmaids. Stewart Bowen is to be best man, and Dr. Eversoll, George F. Wood, Roy Stock and Clifford Reeves, groomsmen. Marion Ione Smith of Ft. Smith, Ark., will be flower girl.

A wedding of much interest to their friends was that of Miss Marie Olive Hodges, daughter of E. O. Hodges of 7545 Ellis avenue, and William Brian Jennings, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jennings of Maplewood, which was solemnized Wednesday morning in the Immaculate Conception Church, the Rev. Father Ryan officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Gladys Hodges as maid of honor, and by Mrs. Edward C. Pickel and Mrs. Pauline Dean, as bridesmaids. The bride wore ivory bridal satin made on straight lines with a silver-lined court train banded in rose point lace. A cornet of lace held the veil in place.

MRS. WILLIAM BRIAN JENNINGS.
Mrs. Jennings, whose wedding took place Wednesday, was Miss Marie Olive Hodges. —Kandeler.

MRS. BERNARD O. WELLS
Mrs. Wells will sail soon to spend the summer in Europe. She makes her home at 5750 Waterman avenue. —Ashen-Brenner.

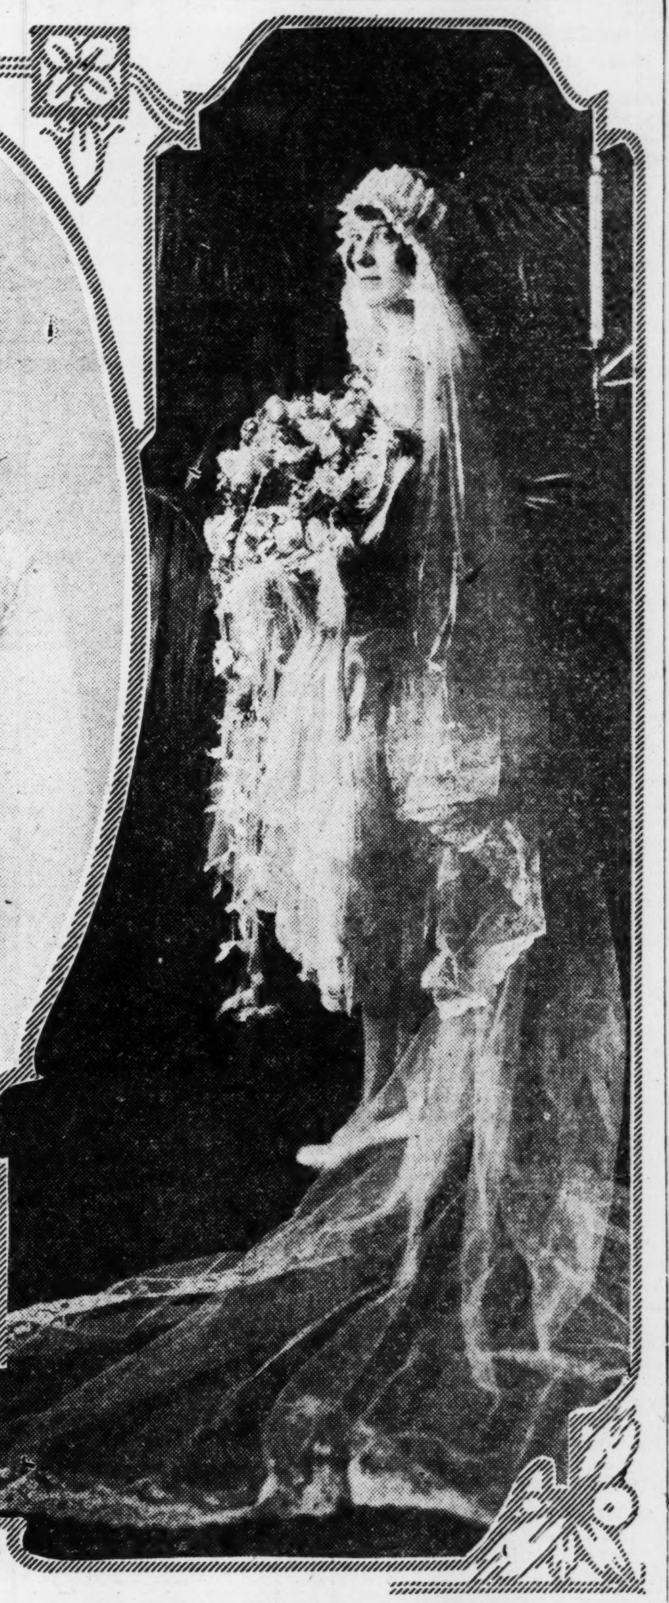
MISS BOBBYE VERNE SCOTT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Scott of 4170 Castleman avenue, has gone East as a delegate to the Sigma Epsilon sorority convention, to be followed by a house party at Atlantic City.



MRS. HAROLD SCHWEIG
Mrs. Schweig was until her marriage, June 11, Miss Mildred Engel. —Schweig.

She caried roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was in flesh georgette and the bridesmaids in rose georgette, with hats to match and carried pink roses. Francis Jennings was his brother's best man, and Edward Pickel and Adrain Jennings, Omaha, Neb., groomsmen. A wedding breakfast followed and the couple departed for a wedding trip in the North.

The wedding of Miss Ruth Kreismann, daughter of Frederick H. Kreismann of the Embassy Apartments, and William A. Field Jr. of Chicago will take place at 8 o'clock next Saturday evening at St. Michael and All Angels' Church. A small reception will follow at the home of Mr. Kreismann. The bride will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Stewart McCormack of Chicago and Miss Marguerite Moll. Thomas Field will be his brother's best man, and Murray Vickers of Cleveland will be groomsman. Mr. Field's mother, Mrs. William A. Field, and a group of relatives will come to St. Louis for the ceremony.

The marriage of Miss Carolyn Mueller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Mueller of 2842 Dalton avenue, and A. E. Schweitzer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Schweitzer of 6124 Adeline avenue, took place yesterday morning at St. Aloysius Church, with the Rev. Francis Brand officiating.

The bride had as her matron of honor Mrs. Charles McCune, who wore a gown of light beige georgette with tight bodice and a two-tiered pleated skirt. Her hat was of beige hair braid and her shoes and stockings were of a silver gray. She carried an arm bouquet of roses and larkspur. The four maids, Miss Hazel Malotte, Miss Mary Brookman, Miss Florence O'Donnell and Miss Ethel Barry, wore gowns made alike in bouffant style of taffeta in different shades, one in green, one in peach, one in orchid and the other in yellow. They wore large hats of hair braid and carried arm bouquets of roses and delphinium. Their slippers and stockings were of the silver gray.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her god-father, Joseph Alther, wore a gown of ivory white satin in period style, with long sleeves. The gown was trimmed in silver lace, as was the long court train of satin lined with shell pink chiffon. The veil of tulle was fastened to her hair in cap style, with tiny pleats of the tulle. She carried an arm bouquet of lilies of the valley and white rosebuds. An innovation to the costume of a bride was a broad white satin ribbon attached to the waist line and extending over the right shoulder down to the edge of the train. On this ribbon, at the right shoulder, was a tniy bunch of valley lilies. There were two little flower girls, Dorothy Bueller, a sister of the bride, and Virgiina Margaret McCune, and a ring bearer, Kenneth Thoeni.

Mr. Schweitzer had as his best man John Scully, the groomsmen were Daniel Sheehan, Vincent Malone and Joseph Cody. After a breakfast served at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Schweitzer departed for New York to spend their honeymoon. They will be at home in their apartment at 6120 Adeline avenue upon their return, early in July.

Dr. and Mrs. E. L. Steward of 308 Laurel avenue gave a bridge luncheon June 11 to announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanette, to Henry Jewell of San Diego, Cal. The home was decorated in yellow daisies and boutonnieres of yellow tea roses were the favors.

Mr. Jewell is a student at the University of California and will spend the summer here.

The following guests were present: Miss Frances Lehnberg, Miss Marion Diechman, Miss Marion LaMont, Miss Aurelia Russel, Miss Louise Berger, Miss Marjorie Harris, Miss Helen Biggers, Miss Virginia Thompson, Miss Helen Burnet, Miss Julia Leitch and Miss Isabel Steward.

Members of the immediate families attended the wedding of Miss Lucille Poppenhouse, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Poppenhouse of 5852 Pershing avenue, and John Gilbert Schulenburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Schulenburg of Alton, Ill., which was solemnized at the Second Presbyterian Church at 9:30 a. m. yesterday, the Rev. John W. MacIvor officiating.

Miss Jerene Todd was the bride's only attendant, while Kenneth Schulenburg, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The wedding was followed by a breakfast at the Forest Park Hotel, after which the couple departed for a short honeymoon trip. Upon their return they will live in their apartment on 7518 Forsythe boulevard.

The bride is a graduate of Washington University and attended Milliken University. She is a member of the Alpha Chi Omega Fraternity. Mr. Schulenburg received his education at Milliken University, where he is a member of the Kappa Delta Chi Fraternity.

The marriage of Miss Barbara Ingenbohs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ingenbohs of 1715 Russell avenue, and Henry Kersting Jr. of 710 Ann avenue took place Wednesday morning at SS. Peter and Paul's church, the Rev. Father J. Stevens officiating. The attendants were Miss Emelie Engler, Miss Edna Fellhauer, John Kersting, Albert Hordes, Arthur Storck and Frank Ingenbohs. Breakfast followed at Mission Inn. The couple have gone to Chicago on their wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Rosenfeld of 5656 Waterman avenue, announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, and Dr. Albert E. Auer, son of Mrs. Hanah Auer of 4905 McPherson avenue. Miss Rosenfeld is a former student at Smith College, and Dr. Auer is a graduate of St. Louis University. Mr. and Mrs. Rosenfeld will receive their friends Tuesday evening, June 21, from 8 to 11 o'clock in honor of their daughter and her fiance.

At St. Augustine's Episcopal church, Miss Doris L. Davidson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Davidson of 7167 Lyndover place, became the bride, June 8, of William McKinley Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Weaver of Los Angeles. The church was decorated with Killarney roses and zelphinium. Mrs. W. K. Lucas, her sister's only attendant, wore orchid crepe with a garden hat to match, and carried an arm bouquet of pink rose buds.

The bride's gown was white georgette, trimmed simply with satin ribbon. A wide hair braid hat, with satin streamers falling to the hem of her gown, completed the costume, and she carried roses and lilies of the valley. Henry MacEwan Davidson of New Orleans, brother of the bride, was best man. Miss Mildred Wulle sang preceding the ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. Walter G. Harter. An informal reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Weaver have gone to Los Angeles for a visit before going to Tracey, Cal., to reside.

Announcements have been sent out of the wedding of Miss Ruth Carolyn Dieckmann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emil H. Dieckmann of Marshall avenue, Webster Groves, to Leslie S. Ruble, the event having taken place at the home of the bride's parents at 3 o'clock on the afternoon of June 11. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Carl Fritch, in the presence of relatives and close friends, and was followed by a reception.

The bridesmaid was Miss Nell Ruble of West Point, N. Y. Paul Dieckmann served as best man. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Ruble left on a honeymoon trip and will be at home after July 15 at 669 Marshall avenue, Webster Groves.

A pretty but quiet wedding which took place Wednesday, June 15, at 8 o'clock at the St. Louis Cathedral, was that of Miss Florence Hough to Ralph William Degenhart. Mr. Degenhart, who has been a member of the Cathedral choir for 15 years, is also a member of the Knights of Columbus Choral Club. Monsignor Tannrath officiated at the ceremony. Miss Eleanor Margaret Degenhart, a sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid. Mr. William Hanley was groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Degenhart have gone North for their honeymoon trip and upon their return will be at home in their apartmen at 5711 Etzel avenue.

One of the weddings of the week will be that of Miss Betty Wiedmer and Dr. C. P. Jasperson, which will take place Tuesday, June 21, at 8:30 p. m., at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wiedmer, 6139 Kingsbury boulevard. Rev. John W. MacIvor will be the officiating minister. The bride will be given in marriage by her father. Miss Isabell Wiedmer will attend her sister as maid of honor. Mr. Willard Jasperson of Kansas City, brother of the bridegroom, will be best man.

The prospective bride is a graduate of the Washington University School of Nursing.

Dr. Jasperson, who is a resident of Topeka, Kan., is a graduate of the University of Illinois and of the Washington University School of Medicine. He spent last year in the Hawaiian Islands. He is a member of Alpha Kappa Lambda and of Phi Beta Pi Medical Fraternity. Following a visit to Topeka and a stay at Three Lakes, Wis., they will be at home in Amarillo, Tex., after Sept. 1.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Regina Eloise Vandeveer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles T. Vandeveer, Carlton Apartments, 4616 Lindell boulevard, to Frank L. Reed Jr., formerly of Bedford, Ind., last Thursday afternoon at the home of the bride. The Rev. Jesse S. Dansey, pastor of the Maple Avenue Methodist Church, officated. After July 1, Mr. and Mrs. Reed will be at home at 4616 Lindell boulevard.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Brown of Muskogee, Ok., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Doris Leona Brown, to Rosswell Susman, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Susman of St. Louis. Miss Brown has many friends in St. Louis, having been the guest of her grandmother, Mrs. I. Mayer, of the Melbourne Hotel at various times.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Gladys Clifton to Clarence Keel of Iowa City, Ia., has been sent out by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stempel of St. Charles, the ceremony having taken place at their home on June 8. The bride attended Lindenwood College three years ago.

The marriage of Miss Fanny Kaiser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Kaiser of 2601 Hord avenue, Jennings, and Sam Berger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Berger, will take place at 7 o'clock this evening. The ceremony will be performed before a bower of flowers on the grounds of the home of the bride's parents, and will be followed by an outdoor reception.

The couple will depart after the receptio nfor a two weeks' stay at a northern resort.

Russian Actress Gets Divorce.

By the Associated Press.

RENO, Nev., June 18.—Vallantina Venitskya, young Russian actress, has won a divorce here from Hamilton Phelps Clawson, of New York. They were married April 12, 1924, in London. The divorce was approved yesterday. Mrs. Clawson charged that her husband allowed her to purchase her own clothing until her money was gone, after which she was forced to depend on women friends for cast-off garments.

Busy Week For Missourians In Washington

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—President and Mrs. Coolidge were like happy school children when they left Monday night for the South Dakota Black Hills. They took quite an entourage with them of White House attaches, secretaries and employes. Their son John Coolidge did not go with them on account of his course in English literature at the University of Vermont summer school, which will detain him until the first of August when he will join his parents in the West.

Mrs. William D. Thomas, formerly Miss Helen Marye, of San Francisco, daughter of the former Ambassador to Russia and Mrs. George Marye, was among the fortunate ones who went to the Naval Air Station on Monday to see Col. Lindbergh "take off" for New York.

The Speaker of the House and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth and their small daughter Miss Paulina Longworth will leave for Cincinnati tomorrow where they will remain until Aug. 1, when they will go to Oyster Bay to visit Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt Sr.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert C. Hoover has gone to the flood district again. Late in August he will join Mrs. Hoover in California, where she is spending the summer.

Mrs. John R. Williams is in New York and has had as her guests Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Leiter.

Mrs. Harry B. Hawes, wife of the Senator from Missouri, and Mrs. Adolphus Busch III of St. Louis have arrived in Washington and are staying at the Mayflower.

Harry H. Knight of St. Louis, who was in Washington for the Lindbergh reception, was host at luncheon at the Mayflower for a number of aviation experts. Mr. Knight was also among the guests at the aviation breakfast given in honor of Col. Lindbergh Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. James M. Thomson of New Orleans came to Washington for the Lindbergh reception and later went to New York. Mrs. Thomson was formerly Miss Genevieve Champ Clark.

Mrs. Frederick Dent Grant was among the patronesses of the ball for the Mississippi flood sufferers held at the Mayflower Saturday night.

The retiring commandant of the Washington Navy Yard and Mrs. Benjamin Hutchinson entertained at luncheon in their quarters, before the arrival of Col. Lindbergh on the Memphis. Admiral and Mrs. Hutchinson entertained at a farewell dinner Sunday.

Mrs. Bessie Parker Bruggemann is among the patronesses for the benefit performance to be given Friday at the Belasco Theater for the benefit of the flood sufferers.

Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins was among the members of the local committee for the reception of Mrs. Evangeline L. Lindbergh. Dean and Mrs. Howard L. Hodgkins entertained at dinner for some of the members of the graduating class of George Washington University last week. Mrs. Hodgkins was hostess at tea for the ladies of the faculty.

Secretary of War Dwight F. Davis went to St. Louis on Thursday to attend the functions in honor of Col. Lindbergh. He will return to Washington Monday.

The Belgian Ambassador and Baroness de Cartier, who are soon leaving this post, are being entertained at many farewell functions. Mr. and Mrs. Edward Beale McLean entertained at dinner for them, with covers laid for more than 150 guests.

Miss Cynthia Davis, Miss Helen Davis and Dwight F. Davis Jr., children of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Davis, sailed from New York on the Arabic on Friday, to join their mother in Europe. Mrs. Davis went abroad recently to join her eldest daughter, Miss Alice B. Davis, who is in school in Paris. They will remain abroad until August, when they will join Secretary Davis at their summer place in Maine.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and his son, Paul Mellon, who has just graduated from Yale University, will go abroad in July and will cruise on their yacht Venetia in the Mediterranean until September. They will be joined by the Secretary's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David Bruce, when they touch Italian shores.

Col. Theodore Roosevelt, who has been visiting his sister, Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, wife of the Speaker of the House, in Washington, has returned to New York.

DECLINE IN BIRTH RATE; INCREASE IN DEATHS

Department of Commerce Figures for 1926 Cover Statistics From 28 States.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Declining birth rates and increasing death rates were disclosed today by the Commerce Department in statistics for 1926 covering 28 states.

For the area there were 1,597,903 births and 961,752 deaths. The birth rate was 20.1 per 1000 population, while the death rate was 12.1. In 1925 the birth rate was 21.1 and the death rate 11.7. The birth rate was lower in 26 of the 28 states, while the death rate was higher in 23.

Infant mortality rates were higher generally in 1926, as 21 of the 28 states showed increased figures.

Foot Expert to be here 6 more days
June 20 to 25

BY arrangement with Wizard headquarters the special representative who gave foot comfort through his advice and services to so many of our patrons last week, will remain in our Foot Relief Department during all of the present week.

See him—talk with him. Without cost to you he will examine your stockinged foot and tell you what is causing your pain or discomfort. More important, he will show you how you can restore your foot to normal condition with

Wizard Arch Builders

All leather, featherlight, flexible—as unobtrusive as your hose, as intimately individual as your toothbrush.

Why let your feet hurt?

SHARP twinges of pain, dull aches and foot tiredness can be traced directly to a disarrangement of one or more of the twenty-six bones of the foot. Perhaps an ill-fitting shoe worn long ago started the trouble by edging one tiny bone a bit out of position. So delicately are the bones of the feet balanced, that this had much the same effect as would removing the keystone of an arch. Lacking means to put the bone back into place, the foot has gradually weakened and the condition constantly grown worse. Sharp pains come from pinched nerves, dull aches from straining muscles. Your foot can never be comfortable in any shoe until you have eased the displaced bone or bones back into position.

Opportunity for expert advice on this subject is yours throughout the coming week in our Foot Relief Department, on the Main Floor.

Missourians in Washington

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PARIS, June 10.—Standing the other day in the mail room of the American Express Co.—where all Americans traveling abroad call eventually—we were approached by a young lady who indeed might have stepped from the pages of that treatise on the complexion preferred by gentlemen. This young lady and her counterpart companion, traveling together on their first trip abroad, had arrived in Paris some three hours previously and were in search of a hotel. We suggested the Latin Quarter.

Suspending her operations on a complete package of Wrigley's, the Y. L. withered us with a glance.

"Sir," she said, "I'll have you know we're perfectly respectable and don't frequent any of them Eyetalian places."

What price fame!

If we had repeated the joke in any one of a hundred restaurants, hotels, cafes or business establishments in that section of Paris known variously as Montparnasse, the Left Bank of the Latin Quarter, it would have to have been in English or else it would not have been understood: for the Latin Quarter has become the American Quarter.

American Bit of Paris.

So thoroughly American is it that one can live there for weeks without hearing more than a smattering of French. In fact, we have acquaintances who have resided in the Quarter upward of a year without having acquired more than a half dozen words of French. They have no immediate need for it, so they make no effort to learn it. The waiters in the cafes and restaurants they frequent speak English: the hotel at which they stop probably is operated by an American, as also are the shops in which they trade. Congregated nearby are the United States Students' and Artists' Club, the American Students' Atelier Reunion, the American University Women's Club, the American University Union.

Those of whom we speak seldom leave the quarter. They have their little groups and their days are divided between aperitifs, bridge and club or studio parties. They read newspapers printed in their own language; they have their own weekly and monthly magazines. If they feel inclined to "make a night of it," they taxi up to Montmartre—and talk English with tourists from the United States.

Learn Little French.

And at the end of their stay, they return to America as ignorant of the French laungage, customs and thought as though they merely had visited another part of the United States.

But Montparnasses has its reputation as the world's art center to maintain, so the "rubber-neck" wagons still include it in their itinerary. The matron from Hutchinson, Kan., enjoying her afternoon tea, is pointed out by the guide in subdued tones as "Edith Wharton, the famous writer": the bored flapper from Chicago becomes a well-known painter's model; a student from Pine Bluff, Ark., who has neglected to have his hair cut, easily is converted into a starving artist. (No art center is complete without one.)

The lady from Douglas, Wyo., seated in the tourist car, stared at the lady from Rutland, Vt., sipping a "cafe au lait" on the cafe terrace.

"Interesting, but how immoral," murmurs the lady from Wyoming.

"What a horrible hat," responds the lady from Vermont.

Mrs. George Kessler was hostess at a dinner party last week at the Pavillon d'Armenonville in the Bois de Boulogne, Paris, in honor of the pianist, Rudolph Ganz, of St. Louis, and Mrs. Ganz. PARIS MAID GETS HER RIGHTS

Contract with Employer Covers Privileges and Pay.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—The Paris house servant is in a fair way to becoming spoiled. A labor contract just drawn up, signed and sealed, reads:

"The lady of the house engages herself to treat with all the desired solicitude her new domestique, Mademoiselle Emma. She will accord her two hours every day to go to her courses in clothes cutting, stenography, piano playing and singing. Her wages will be 350 francs a month for the first three months, with an increase of 25 francs every month at the end of the fourth, up to the limit of 600 francs monthly. The new servant shall have the right to use the bathroom twice a week. Mademoiselle Emma will not be called by her first name, but 'Mademoiselle.' She must be aided by a chambermaid or charwoman, according to the needs of the household."

ASKS FOR PALESTINE MONEY

All persons pledging contributions to the United Palestine Appeal have been requested to redeem the pledges during June in order that the sum of $1,000,000 may be sent to Palestine as an American contribution during the month.

The plea to local subscribers was made by Judge William M. Lewis, chairman of the National Palestine Fund Committee. Judge Lewis announced that "unless immediate and adequate means are provided, the [illegible] structure of Jewish work in Palestine will be jeopardized."

"Accordion Day" in Belgium.

BRUSSELS, June 18.—"The poor man's piano" had its inning today when 50,000 players in every community in Belgium celebrated the centennial of the invention of accordion by Charles Buffet in 1827. The festivities opened with a contest for a commemorative medal with amateurs and professionals among the entrants. Processions of players and accordion concerts will make the final day of the celebration tomorrow.

FOR PERFECT PERMANENT WAVING

Your assurance of a wave - safe as it is lovely

"ONE Circuline for each curl in clear, fresh water. Then but 7 minutes of temperate heat—actually 100 degrees less than is required for an ordinary marcel." Those are your hairdresser's instructions in giving a Circuline wave.

The Circuline method is safe—gentle—free from injurious chemicals, such as potash, lye or ammonia. It will wave and re-wave even the most delicate, "difficult" hair without risk.

Circuline is accurate, too. It treats each head of hair according to its individual requirements—assuring you of a wave just as tight or just as loose as you yourself prefer, always naturally flowing, as beautiful as though nature herself had waved it.

But remember this: a Circuline machine alone is no assurance of a Circuline wave. Be sure your hairdresser uses genuine Circulines. You will recognize them with the name "Nestle Circuline" stamped on the glassine wrappers. Watch your hairdresser as she uses them!

Jefferson Chapter of D. A. R. Entertains New State Regent

Honor Guests at Forest Park Luncheon Include Regents of City and County Bodies.

The members of the Executive Board of Jefferson Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, were hostesses at a luncheon which was given Saturday, June 11, at Forest Park Hotel in honor of Mrs. B. L. Hart of Kansas City, the newly elected State Regent, and the members of her official board.

The honor guests included Mrs. Wallace Delafield, honorary vice president general; Mrs. Ben F. Gray, Mrs. Samuel McKnight Green and Mrs. John Trigg Moss, former vice president general, and Mrs. Joseph Calfee, Mrs. Lon Saunders, Mrs. F. W. Green, Mrs. G. F. Graner, Mrs. Frank C. Thompson, regents of the St. Louis city and county D. A. R. chapters.

Miss Antoinette Taylor, second vice regent of Jefferson Chapter, was toastmistress.

Mrs. Lon Saunders, presided at the luncheon and extended the chapter welcome to the assembled guests.

Mrs. Joseph Jamison of Red Gables was hostess to Cornelia Greene Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, June 14. This was the last meeting of the year, and this day was selected that the chapter might in this way celebrate Flag Day.

The following delegates to the State Conference at Marshall, Mo., Oct. 26, 27 and 28, were chosen: Mrs. F. W. Green and Mrs. John Trigg Moss. The alternates chosen were: Mrs. L. M. Ottofy, Mrs. J. L. Carney, Miss M. L. Baker, Mrs. L. R. Sandford, Mrs. W. P. Wall, Mrs. Frank Ruf, Mrs. E. F. Jackson, Mrs. W. Antoine Hall and Mrs. T. F. Browne.

At the close of the meeting a story of Creve Coeur Lake, written by Mrs. Lorena Jamison Christophel, was read by Mrs. W. M. Jenner. Several new members and guests were present, including the wife and mother of Mayor Victor J. Miller.

The Webster Groves Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution joined with the Kirkwood Chapter and the three St. Louis chapters in presenting a large flag to the Epworth School for Girls in Webster Groves Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Craner, regent of the Kirkwood Chapter, was master of ceremonies. Mrs. Roger Annan Jr. of the Webster Chapter led in the singing of "Ameriac," after which America's Creed was given. The new flag was presented by Mrs. Lon Sanders, vice regent, and accepted by Miss Hafford, superintendent of the school.

Four songs were given by girl students directed by Miss Hafford, followed by a brief talk in which Miss Hafford set forth the aims of the school.

The Rubenstein Junior Club will give a concert tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at Vandervoort's Auditorium. The junior branch of the Rubenstein Club was organized last October, with a membership of 40. Meetings were held monthly throughout the season. Tomorrow's concert will be the Junior Club members' first public appearance. It will be the final meeting of the season.

The final meeting of the season of Clio Delphian Chapter was held last Monday at Cabanne Library, with Mrs. H. D. Billings presiding. "The Age of Chivalry" was the topic of the day, with Mrs. D. H. Age Won't Tell When Healthy

SIGNS of age appear quicker in men and women who are "run-down" than in those who are robust and healthy. Good health depends largely upon keeping the system free from poisonous waste, which means keeping the blood pure through free action of the bowels. Avoid constipation and the many other diseases that arise from constipation. Keep signs of age away by using this wonderful tonic laxative, said to contain a combination of herbs, leaves and barks not found in any other remedy. It's an herb extract preparation known as Herb Juice. Take it—it insures long life.

East St. Louis

The marriage of Miss Jane Stephens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Stephens and John Frank Conrad of Louisiana, Mo., was the most charming of the June weddings in East St. Louis society.

The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's parents, on Pennsylvania avenue, Thursday evening at 8 o'clock, the Rev. O. L. Markman officiating. An altar before the fireplace in the drawing room was banked with flowers and palms. Smilax and ferns were used in the hallway and on the stairs, which the bride descended on the arm of her father. Her only attendant was Miss Patricia Foster, who wore a gown of green georgette and carried an old fashioned nosegay. Shell pink chiffon fashioned the bride's dress, made with tight basque waist and very full skirt, embroidered in self color and edged with wide silk lace. She wore a corsage of ophelia roses. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Mildred McMonigle sang "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Rose Baugh, who played the Lohengrin Wedding March and during the ceremony "I Love You Truly." Mrs. Conrad is a graduate of the East St. Louis High School and Hardin College, Mexico, Mo. She is a member of Eta Upsilon Gamma sorority. Mr. Conrad attended Westminster College at Fulton, Mo., and is a member of Kappa Alpha. After a motor trip they will be at home in Louisiana, Mo. Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Conrad and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Barnard of Alton, Ill.; Miss Patricia Foster, Miss Virginia Fischer, Mr. and Mrs. A. Bauer and Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Pindell of St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Sikking of Oak Knoll. Other guests were: Miss Emily Nolan, Miss Dorothy McCabe, Miss Rose Baugh, Miss Mildred McMonigle, Miss Frances Irwin, Mrs. A. B. Tarleton, Dr. and Mrs. C. F. Wilhelm, August T. McCabe, Clarence Dunkel, Roy Baugh, Mrs. Henry Eckert, Mrs. John A. Campbell and Mrs. Frank Bolte and son, Frank Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Ropiquet and family of College avenue, left Friday morning for a motor trip to Chicago, where they will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Lalumier.

Mrs. Bella Silverstein of St. Joseph, Mo., has announced the marriage on May 28 of her daughter, Irene, and Edmond L. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus L. Taylor of St. Louis, Mo.

The regular ladies' day luncheon and bridge will be held at the St. Clair Country Club Wednesday afternoon.

Announcement was made this week of the marriage of Miss Rita McQuilkan and William F. Smith, April 9, at Union, Mo. The news came as a surprise to the friends of the young couple. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are both graduates of the local high school, having graduated in 1925. Mr. Smith was a student at the University of Illinois until February. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Smith of North Tenth street, and is connected with the Wimmer Construction Co. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. McQuilkin of Lincoln avenue. She is well-known among the younger social crowd in the city. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are at present making their home with Mrs. Smith's parents.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Shreve of North Ninth street entertained a few friends at dinner Thursday evening. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. George A. Sanford, Dr. and Mrs. O. C. Gallenbeck, Miss Margaret Shreve, Miss Virginia Sanford, Miss Elizabeth Sanford and T. Richards.

James Lee Sanders of North Park drive, left the latter part of the week for Platts, Mo., for a short vacation.

Miss Lena Hamman of Illinois avenue, entertained ten guests at dinner Sunday evening. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Byron Smith, of Audubon place, entertained Friday evening in honor of Miss Lucille Richards, whose wedding will be an event of the late summer. The following were guests: Miss Mollie Sharp, Miss Iva Whitlock, Miss Helen

"Gets-It"

Ends Corns Pain Gone in 3 Seconds

World's Fastest Way

"GETS-IT" is a scientific liquid that millions use, among them famous dancers, athletes, doctors and folks who walk a lot. It ends corns and calluses. One drop stops pain in 3 short seconds. Then the corn loosens and comes off . . . all gone, forgotten. You walk in peace. There are imitations of "Gets-It." So watch out. Get the genuine at all good druggists. Enough to kill a dozen corns costs only 35c.

"GETS-IT"

"As You Like It"

Complexion as you like it—fresh, youthful, charming—belongs to Miss Florence Rafferty, 521 St. Mark's Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.—and she says she owes it to using Black and White Face Powder. "After trying powders that adhered well, but coarsened or roughened my skin, and powders that were delicately soft but kept me constantly re-powdering, I began using Black and White Face Powder, which is just right! It clings for hours without renewing, yet never 'cakes' or looks artificial. Its exquisite texture is beneficial to my skin, refining it and keeping it soft, smooth and lovely."

Black and White Face Powder is bolted many times through silk to give it that exceptionally fine texture. It is astringent and slightly antiseptic, making it doubly safe and healing to the tenderest skin. 80,000 dealers everywhere have the dainty 25c boxes of it.

If your dealer doesn't have the Black and White Beauty Creations you want, send his name to Plough, Dept. 121, Memphis, Tenn., and you will receive FREE, a copy of the Birthday and Dream Book, containing many interesting facts on beauty, dreams and fortune telling.

FUR SKIRTS, SAYS PAUL POIRET

Believes Fashion's Silhouettes Will Change With Winter.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—Paul Poiret, the Paris designer, who brought out "trousers" for women when the short skirt vogue arrived, is making fur skirts for next Winter's latest novelty. "If the ladies will wear them so short, at least they can have them warm," is his explanation of why he is making skirts of rabbit skin to wrap the modern flapper in.

Poiret believes the silhouette of the fashionable woman will be considerably readjusted when the cold weather arrives, and the winter girl who wears everything about her neck and little around her knees is likely to find fashions reversed if the fur skirts prove popular. He also is designing jackets for wear with the fur skirts, but not all of them are of fur, some being only fur trimmed. Underneath will go a blouse of some soft fabric, possibly chiffon.

MASONIC POPULATION 36,750

26,000 Belong to City and County Lodges.

The annual Masonic Directory for St. Louis and for St. Louis County shows there are 36,750 members of the Masonic order in the city and in St. Louis County. Of this number, 26,000 are enrolled in city and county lodges, while the remaining 11,750 are members enrolled in lodges elsewhere, but who have removed here and affiliated with York Rite or Scottish Rite bodies.

The directory is not published for general sale, but is exclusively for use of members of the Masonic Order. It is compiled by the Missouri Freemason, a publication.

ANCIENT MANUSCRIPT FOUND

Written in Bavarian-Austrian Language of Middle Ages.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—Fragments of a Nibelungen manuscript, which is believed to be one of the oldest in existence, were discovered by Dr. Hermann Menhard, director of the Klagenfurt Library, at Klagenfurt, Austria, while he was cataloguing the ancient handwritings of the Carinthian archives.

The fragments are written in the Bavarian-Austrian language of the middle ages and are supposed to have belonged to a wandering minstrel of the twelfth or thirteenth century. They are closely written in columns of 30 lines each on a page and are without the ornate initials at the beginning of chapters customary in manuscripts of a later period.

Europe-to-Uruguay Air Mail.

By the Associated Press.

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, June 18.—Air mail service between Europe, Africa and Uruguay is set to begin before the end of the year. A contract for the service was signed today by Cesar Miranda, Postmaster General of Uruguay, and a representative of the French Aerial Navigation Co. The contract is similar to one recently signed between the Argentine Government and the same company.

CLEMENCEAU HONORS MEMORIES OF FRIENDS

Remains in Paris Later in Season Than Usual to Pay Tribute to Dead Companions.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—Remembrance of lifelong friendships has caused M. Georges Clemenceau, "Old Father Victory," to stay in Paris much later in the season than usual. It also caused him to forget his well-known repugnance for appearance in public and for facing the camera.

At the Gobelins tapestry works a great exposition was staged in honor of the late director, Gustave Geoffroy, appointed by Celemenceau. "The Tiger" and he had been fellow-journalists, and fought side by side through the long struggle for the revision of Capt. Dreyfus's famous sentence. As soon as Clemenceau rose to ministerial power, Geoffroy was the first man he took care of. Naturally he had to attend the opening ceremony and brave the photographers.

It was the same for the exhibition of the latest works of the great impressionist painter, Claude Moment, another lifelong friend of Clemenceau. "Monet and Clemenceau," said a cynical critic, "have two things in common: They adore nature and despise mankind." Again "The Tiger" turned out and ran the publicity gauntlet.

Olcott May Return to Stage.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Chauncey Olcott, singing comedian, returned from five months' rest on the Riviera today, improved in health and despite his 67 years, desiring to return to the stage. Mrs. Olcott, styling herself "Boss" of the family, asserted the singer's health would not permit him to return to the stage. "I have gained 12 pounds and have to use a shoe horn to get my clothing on," asserted Mr. Olcott.

Diabetics

If you have the slightest symptoms of Diabetes—such as excessive thirst, inordinate hunger, with loss of weight in spite of keen appetite, with nervousness, irritability, restlessness, anxiety over trifles and loss of strength—lose no time in reading one of the most remarkable books of the day, "Is Diabetes Curable?"

It will be mailed free to anyone who will send merely name and address to Sanborn Laboratories, 642 Y. M. C. A. Building, Battle Creek Michigan. It describes the Sanborn home treatment and relates the experiences of men and women of national prominence who restored themselves to perfect health after other treatments had failed.

The book has 78 pages bound in board covers and is a mine of authentic information for those who are suffering from Diabetes.

Healthy Girlhood's Exquisite Complexion

Blackheads, enlarged pores, scales, pimples and red spots are repulsive and indicate negligence in caring for the skin. If the health and beauty of your skin is impaired by these ugly defects, peel them off with pure mercolized wax. This can be done secretly and quickly at home. By the process of absorption the wax gently but surely removes the unsightly mask in small almost invisible particles, until the spotless beauty of the underneath skin is revealed.

Mercolized wax is a most extensively used facial rejuvenator. You will like it. At all drug stores and beauty counters. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty.

LUTHERAN SYNOD TO MEET WEDNESDAY

450 Delegates Expected to Attend Western District Convention.

Approximately 450 delegates are expected to attend the annual convention of the Western District of the Missouri Synod of the Lutheran Church, which opens at the New Concordia Seminary, De Mun and San Bonita avenues, next Wednesday.

The opening address at 9 a. m. Wednesday will be delivered by Dean Fritz of the Seminary, representing the Rev. F. Pfotenhauer of Chicago, president of the synod. Dean Fritz' address will be broadcast over Station KFUO.

Discussions In Morning Sessions.

As in previous years, the morning sessions of the seven-day meeting will be devoted to doctrinal discussions. Essays on doctrinal matters will be read by the Rev. F. Pieper and Prof. J. T. Mueller, of the Concordia faculty. A special service in the interest of Christian education will be held Friday, June 24, at 8 p. m. The Rev. R. H. Meyer of the Old Trinity Lutheran Church will be the speaker at the service.

A rally, under the auspices of the Mission Board and the Walther League, will be held in connection with the convention at the Washington University Field House next Sunday afternoon. It is expected that 6000 Lutherans of St. Louis and vicinity will attend the rally.

A. A. Grossmann to Speak.

Speakers at the affair will be the Rev. Oscar Feucht of Kansas City, A. A. Grossmann, president of the International Walther of the International Walther League, and the Rev. E. L. Roschke, pastor of the Hope Lutheran Church.

Business before the convention will include the adoption of articles of incorporation for the western district of the Missouri Synod, an overture for the establishment of a board of Christian education, and the annual election of officers. The Western district takes in the States of Missouri, Arkansas and Tennessee, with an approximate membership of 70,000 persons.

BRETON VOTED CHAMPION WINE TASTER OF FRANCE

Identifies 12 Varieties Correctly—Drank Nothing But Cider Until He Was 16.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, June 18.—The best wine-taster in Paris is Marcel le Cudennec, winner in a test of powers by 86 wine stewards of restaurants. He gave the correct age and description of 12 wines. He received 5000 francs, a loving cup and two bottles of ancient brandy.

Le Cudennec is a young Breton. He says he drank nothing but cider until he was 16.

The contestants, supervised by officials of the Ministry of Agriculture, each had 30 minutes in which to identify six white wines and six red ones. They were given these in numbered glasses. They sniffed and looked and took sips repeatedly, but obviously had only two and a half minutes to judge each wine.

When time was called carafes of cool water were brought for the tasters to cleanse their palates of the dozen tastes but the tasters all looked at the water with suspicion.

"I tasted it once," said one of the wine stewards, "and I didn't think much of it."

WOMAN SERIOUSLY BURNED AS ESCAPING GAS EXPLODES

Mrs. Helen Fisher, 67, Injured Trying to Light Range; Home Damaged $500.

Mrs. Helen Fisher, 67 years old, a widow of 6328 North Broadway, suffered severe burns about the arms, hands and face at 1 p. m. yesterday in an explosion caused by escaping gas in her home. Approximately $500 damage was caused.

Yesterday morning a workman was engaged in fixing gas pipes in the basement of the home and it is presumed that the gas escaped through leaky pipes. The explosion came when Mrs. Fisher started to light a gas range in the kitchen.

YOUNG FRENCH EXPLORER PAYS WITH LIFE FOR DARING

Plundering Tribe Sweeps Down and Murders Expedition in Southern Morocco.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

ALGIERS, Algeria, June 1. — A life consecrated to scientific researches in the sandy expanses of the great African deserts was cut short with the slaying of Rene Estienne, young French explorer, on May 18.

Rene and his expedition with the object of penetrating unexplored territory were traveling in an automobile through the Bou-Denib region in Southern Morocco near the Algerian frontier. This part of the Sahara is infested with plundering tribes whom the French authorities have not yet succeeded in subjugating. Armed and mounted on fast camels, the marauders prey on lonely travelers and camel caravans.

When the explorers entered deep in the region, the Saharans swooped down in a surprise attack and murdered them without quarter. Rene, who was 29 years old, was a son of Gen. Estienne and a brother of Lieut. Georges Estienne, famous for leading numerous punitive raids by motor car into the rebel Saharan country.

Rene was a member of the Haard-Dubreuil expedition which in 1922-23 crossed the Sahara down to Lake Chad.

HINDENBURG HAS MANY HONORS

Is Doctor of Laws, Medicine, Theology, Philosophy and Others.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18. — President von Hindenburg is not only a soldier and a statesman, but also a doctor of laws, medicine, theology, philosophy engineering and even of veterinary science.

His latest doctorial degree came from the University of Graz, in Austria, where Hindenburg was made honorary doctor of political science. His honorary veterinary degree was awarded by the Veterinary College of Hanover, and that of doctor of engineering by all the polytechnical institutes of Germany. The University of Koenigsberg, in Eastern Prussia, outdid all other universities by making the soldier-president "honorary doctor in all faculties" soon after his successful campaigns in the East during the world war. Bonn University made him honorary doctor of political science, the degree being conferred by both the law and the philosophical faculties. At Goettingen, Jena and Cologne he holds the title of "honorary citizen."

Dry Administrator and Aid Quit.

By the Associated Press.

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 18.—Judge Harper, Federal prohibition administrator for Northern and Western New York State, and his assistant, Capt. L. C. Regan, resigned today, the resignations to take effect at the close of today's business. Judge Harper said he found himself disqualified under the newly created civil service requirements for prohibition officials. One of the requirements for administrator, Judge Harper said, was that an applicant must have had at least six years of service in an executive capacity. "That will knock out all but three administrators now in the service," he said.

AWARD FOR FIRING ON CHINESE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Action of Commander R. C. Smith, of the Destroyer Noa, who on March 24 ordered the firing on Chinese attacking American refugees at Nanking, was officially recognized today by the Navy Department in a letter which read: "The department commends you for your timely action in protecting lives and property so excellently executed on this action."

At that time, addressing himself to his executive officer in direct charge of the guns, Smith said: "I'll either get a medal or a court-martial for this. Let her go, Benny."

AMERICA READY TO REDUCE NAVAL AUXILIARY CRAFT

Hugh Gibson, at Opening of Arms Conference at Geneva, Monday, Will Outline Definite Proposal.

EXCHANGES WITH POWERS HAVE BEGUN

Effort Will Be Made, It Is Expected, to Induce Italy and France to Follow Suggestions.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
(Copyright, 1927.)

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The United States Government is prepared to make a real sacrifice in cutting down its auxiliary naval craft.

Hugh Gibson, chairman of the delegation to the disarmament conference which opens at Geneva on Monday, has been instructed to indicate in his first statement the far-reaching character of America's proposal to reduce naval armament.

Just as Secretary Hughes in the autumn of 1921 startled the world by his announcement of what the United States was willing to do in limiting construction of battleships, so today America is ready to lay all the cards on the table face up and accept a reduction in the tonnage of cruisers, submarines and auxiliary craft generally.

Informal exchanges of views between London, Washington and Tokio have been going on for several weeks so that the American proposal will not come altogether as a surprise. The British and Japanese are known to be willing to make cuts in existing naval strength and to limit the number of new vessels, but the exact formula for limitation is not yet a matter of agreement.

There are high hopes here, however, that the British and Japanese will concur with the viewpoint of the United States, or that America will be able without difficulty to accept such changes as Britain and Japan may offer.

Confidence in Washington.

Confidence that some tangible results will be obtained prevails here because it is realized that neither Japan nor Great Britain would have accepted invitations to the conference unless in advance there were known to be some basis for mutual agreement.

While the forthcoming conference differs in many respects from that held in Washington six years ago, it is an open question whether the absence of the French and Italians may permit a better procedure this time.

The difficulty in 1921 was that the three big naval powers made an informal agreement in advance as to how the conference should be conducted, and an effort was made at the opening sessions to bring Great Britain, Japan and the United States into concord without worrying about the French and Italian.

There was a feeling among the latter two that they had not been consulted sufficiently, whereas the truth was the American delegates realized an agreement between the three big powers was essential before the ratio of naval strength suggested for France and Italy could be worked out.

Will Inform Paris and Rome.

This year, after the three big powers have reached an agreement, they will not be bound by any views of the French and Italians because the latter declined in the conference to be represented officially. It is expected, however, that every effort will be made to keep Paris and Rome informed, so that when the three powers have reached an agreement, the inclinations of France and Italy will be to go along with the relative strength which the conference will indicate should be followed by other powers.

In other words the hope is that France and Italy will not embark on any program that will upset the equilibrium as between Great Britain, Japan and the United States.

It has been suggested that there may be a conditional clause in the three-power agreement requiring further conference and revision, if France or Italy should undertake a construction program that would require Great Britain to consider seriously the enlargement of her smaller naval vessels.

The three powers do not feel, therefore, that the explicit concurrence by France or Italy is at this time essential, even though diplomacy will attempt to persuade France and Italy to help along world peace by reducing small armament.

Britain to Say Definite Proposals Before Conference.

GENEVA, June 18.—W. C. Bridgeman, British first Lord of the Admiralty, on arriving here to attend the naval conference, said that all questions concerning limitation of warships would be open for discussion.

This was interpreted in some quarters as indicating that Britain will try to reopen the question of cruiser size.

Bridgeman announced that he would lay definite proposals before the meeting and hoped the discussions would make it easier for nations not participating in the conference to adhere later to any principles agreed upon. This was an allusion to France and Italy.

Hugh Gibson, American delegate, told the press that the exact status of the French and Italian observers at the conference had not been determined.

15TH CENTURY BOOKS ON VIEW AT MUSEUM

Part of Famous Volbehr Collection to Remain on Display to June 30.

A Spanish edition of the first travel book to be printed, and containing what William Morris considered the finest wood cuts ever made, is among the incunabula exhibited last wek at Hotel Chase, and now to be viewed at the Art Museum where the collection of 160 aged books will remain until June 30.

The volume with the wood cuts admired by Morris is Breydenbach's "Pilgrimage to the Holy Land." It was turned out by the publisher Horus at Saragossa, Spain, in 1498, and is considered one of the prizes in the famous Vollbehr collection, which numbers 3000 books, and from which all the volumes on view were drawn.

A German edition of "The Life of the Savior" on exhibit also is rich in wood cuts. These, however, are colored. The volume was printed by Zainer, at Ulm, in 1485, and is recognized as one of the finest specimens of its period. A missal printed in South Slavic cyrillian script, turned out in Venice in 1483, is the only one of its kind in existence. It, too, has colored wood cuts.

Other notable volumes in the collection, all from the fifteenth century, are: An Itilian edition of Pliny's Natural History, produced by the famous Nicholas Jenson, in Venice; an eddition of St. Jerome's Epistles, printed on embossed vellum; a first edition of Homer in Greek, printed in Florence in the year 1488 by Bartholomaeus de Libris.

There are other travel volumes, treatises on music, astrology and botany; books of hours and other holy works, all abounding in the extraordinary wood cuts that have not been equaled since.

FORMER HEAD OF ARMOUR GRAIN CO. IS ACQUITTED

Committee of Chicago Board of Trade Finds Nicol Not Guilty of Dishonorable Conduct.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.—K. R. V. Nicol, former president of the Armour Grain Co., today was acquitted of charges of dishonorable conduct by the directors of the Chicago Board of Trade, which tried him on charges preferred by a special committee of the board which had investigated the Armour company.

Nicol was the last of three former officers of the Armour Grain Co. to be tried by the exchange as a result of charges that the Armour company had defrauded the grain marketing company.

The grain marketing company was a merger of the Armour company and two Rosenbaum companies and was intended to have been a farmer-owned and controlled cooperative, but failed of its purpose. It was charged that at the time of the merger, the Armour company had substituted inferior grades of wheat in its northwestern elevator and an arbitrator decided the Armour company was indebted to the grain marketing company to the extent of about $3,000,000, as a result of this action.

Later the Armour company was suspended from trading on the exchange and charges were filed against three former officers. George E. Thompson, who was general superintendent of the Armour elevators, was expelled by the board a few days ago after being found guilty of dishonest conduct, and John Kellogg, who succeeded George E. Marcy as president of the Armour concern, was given a two-year suspension yesterday.

SAYS AMERICAN WOMEN GROW OLD GRACEFULLY

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—American women grow old more gracefully than women of other countries, in the opinion of Paul Poiret, French style creator, who is interviewed in the current issue of the Woman's Home Companion.

"I have known American women of 60 and 70," he is quoted as saying, "who were strikingly beautiful and who still had resplendent style."

Women more than 35 years old are more interesting to the couturier than younger ones, he said.

"The undeveloped figure and unlined face of youth require very little study," he elaborated. "The younger women may wear standardized clothes and find them suitable and becoming. However, as character develops, as those lines appear in the face and around the eyes which render the woman more and more interesting, personality may be defined and dressed."

STRATEGIC SITES IN CITY INVOLVED IN NEGOTIATIONS

Secrecy Surrounds Realty Activities Involving Control and Ownership of Several Corners.

OPERATORS ACQUIRE GRAND BLVD. PARCEL

Plans Previously Announced Sharpen Speculative Interest — Scan Olive Street Holdings.

By Berry Moore.

While announcements are withheld, negotiations were concluded during the week involving control and ownership of a number of strategic corners in the business and amusement centers of the city. Many offers for others were also forthcoming and negotiations were on rather an aggressive basis.

Constituting the feature was a prominent Grand boulevard corner, which under contracts entered into will be acquired under a 99-year lease by a group of professional operators. This lease carries an option to purchase the fee within six months at a stipulated price. The site is occupied by a comparatively new building. Another purchase under negotiation comprises approximately a block of ground, with an extensive Grand boulevard frontage. There is much speculation both as to the identity and the plans of the prospective buyer in view of the large area involved. The tract is said to be the largest available for development adjacent to central Grand boulevard.

Speculative Interest Sharpened.

Speculative interest in this part of the city has been sharpened, with the execution of plans of the Fox Film Corporation at Grand and Washington boulevards. These originally called for a 17-story office building with a moving picture theater on a surpassing scale.

The southeast corner of Olive and Twenty-eighth streets has been purchased through the Beffa-Ghio-Mauro Realty Co. The identity of the purchasers has not been disclosed. Plans provide for the improvement of the site with a handsome business block.

Several offers have been made for the northwest corner of Twentieth and Olive streets, owned by the Thomas Wright estate. This site has a large frontage on Olive street with a depth on Twentieth extending to an alley. It is destined to become an outstanding corner with the widening of this thoroughfare.

Talk of New Hotels.

The southwest corner of Eighteenth and Olive streets, recently purchased by the clients of John S. Blake & Bro. Real Estate Co., through the Hemmelmann-Spackler Co., was the object of several offers. This site is said to figure in plans for a large hotel, for which it is regarded as especially desirable in view of its Olive street frontage of 100 feet.

An option has been obtained on a prominent Washington avenue corner, the purchasers-elect being speculators who recognize the possibilities of the site for a theater or a large hotel enterprise. The location of this site, one of the most eligible in the downtown district for an improvement of this type, is withheld pending consummation of the purchase.

The Orpheum Theater Circuit, it is generally understood, is on the lookout for a site in the downtown district for a new and larger theater. A house that will vie with the largest and most sumptuous in the city, is the ambition of this organization, it is said. The present Orpheum Theater at Ninth and St. Charles streets, has been inadequate to requirements since moving pictures were introduced there.

The closing of deals has been delayed more or less by the distraction incident to the Lindbergh celebration.

Capital is available in large supply for real estate financing, especially for building enterprises in the business centers, at comparatively low rates of interest. This promises to be a factor in renewed activity this fall, when real estate operations will be on a much larger scale, from surface indications.

SIX SALES REPORTED BY GRAVOIS WEBER PARK

Gravois Weber Park reports the following sales: 160 feet to Edward Ringwald, 53 feet on Vasel avenue, to Leo Mallett; 53 feet on Wayne avenue, to N. E. Seago; 100 feet to Charles Ayes; 50 feet on Myrtle, to A. J. Fite; 53 feet on Vasel, to S. F. Speck.

MARITZ AND YOUNG INC. DESIGN NEW TYPE HOME IN CARRSWOLD

H. B. Corson, a member of the syndicate controlling Carrswold, has commenced the erection of a large residence there. It is designed in the rambling, French Breton type, and is about 120 feet long. It is being built of stone enlivened by a certain amount of brick work in several of the gables. The residence has an antique shingle tile roof, and is made interesting through the use of the mullioned windows contrasting with the stone walls.

The interior will contain a living room, dining room, sun porch, butler's pantry, kitchen and a three-car garage on the first floor. The second floor will consist of four large master bedrooms, with dressing rooms and baths and a large open sleeping porch to the south end of the building. The servants' wing is to contain two large servants' roms, bath and adequate closets.

The stair hall will be two stories in height, with a stone sairway around an open well hole. The building is being constructed of reinforced concrete, with gypsum tile partitions, which makes it virtually of fireproof construction, so as to preclude the usual shrinkage of a house constructed with wood studs and joists. The floors are of terrazzo.

This house is being erected with the primary object of establishing a definite standard of houses in Carrswold equal to that of the better houses in the Brentmoor district.

The building was designed and is being erected under the supervision of Maritz & Young, Inc., Architects.

GUNDLACH CO. REPORTS MANY SALES OF HOMES

Dianesic to Philip Schmidtkonz.

The Gundlach company reports an exceptional demand for small homes of all kinds, and also reports an active loan week.

STANLEY EPSTEIN, INC., SELLS 16-FAMILY FLAT BUILDING

Stanley Epstein, Inc., reports the sale of a 16-family apartment style flat building on the corner of Bayard and Hodiamont, just completed by the Marget Realty Company.

This property, which was rented by Stanley Epstein, Inc., 30 days before completion, was sold to Grace V. Norman, who was represented by the Glick Realty Company.

A 4-family flat, 5055-57 Chippewa street, was sold for the account of the Ada Building and Investment Company to Frank Schofro, who was represented by the Watson-O'Rourke Realty Company. This building is one of 15 similar buildings built on this block in Northampton by Jacob Rubin, president of the Ada Building and Investment Company, and the eleventh sale made by Stanley Epstein, Inc., of these particular buildings.

Sale also was reported of two five and seven-room flats at 2831 and 2835 Accomac street for Kate Leydecker.

The bungalow at 4042 East Iowa was sold to Henry F. Mueller.

NEW B. & O. STOCK TO BE SOLD HOLDERS $10.50 UNDER PRICE

Common Issue Will Be Offered at $107.50; Details of Plan Put Before I. C. C.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Details of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad new stock offer were laid before the Interstate Commerce Commission today in an application of the road for authority to proceed. The company intends to give its present stockholders the right to purchase 632,425 shares of new common stock at $107.50 per share, while the present stock of the company is selling on the open market at $118 per share.

It was disclosed that, while the railroad expected to sell the stock to its present stockholders at a price below the prevailing market, it also had arranged with Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and Speyer & Co. of New York to underwrite the new issue in it entirety and had agred to pay them a commission of $1,422,956.

The new issue will thus net the railroad $66,562,731, out of which it proposes to pay $35,000,000 to retire indebtedness, adding the balance to its betterment fund.

St. Louis Judge Buys Farm.

HARRISON, Ark—The W. L. Snapp farm of 300 acres near here has been purchased by Judge M. N. Sale of St. Louis, Mo. It includes a 90-acre apple orchard. Judge Sale owns several hundred acres of land on Galther Mountain near Hilltop.

ADELE PARK HOMESITES TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Schramm Real Estate Co. Announces Two-Day Offering, June 25 and 26.

All holdings in Adele Park, at the southeast corner of Manchester and Deny roads, have been purchased by the F. W. Schramm Real Estate Company. The purchaser announces that the entire holdings will be disposed of by auction to the highest bidder, regardless of price, without reserve, Saturday and Sunday, June 25 and 26, starting at 2 p. m. A. R. Schollmeyer, as auctioneer, will conduct the sale.

The property consists of approximately 5000 front feet of ground and a number of modern Spanish type bungalows. Paid improvements consist of concrete streets, curbs, sidewalks, sewers, water, gas and electricity. The lots front on the Denny road, Sarah street, Taylor avenue, Curran avenue and Bernice avenue.

Manchester road has always been a heavy traffic artery leading from the city to the outlying country. The city now proposes to widen the thoroughfare from Kingshighway to the city limits and to resurface it with a smooth paving. Hhe granite blocks have always deterred drivers from using this street, but when this stretch if smooth paving is laid from Kingshighway to the city limits, there will be an unbroken smooth surface from the downtown district of the city to the country.

Denny road is to be a boulevard 100 feet wide connecting all the east and west roads of St. Louis County. The residences of E. L. Bakewell, Mrs. Clara Busch Hager, the Von Gontards and others are located on Denny road near the Manchester road.

Adele place is within the city limits of Kirkwood and has the advantages of an up-to-date municipality.

M'CORMACK-COMBS CO. TO ERECT MUNICIPAL BUILDING

McCormack-Combs Construction Company announce a contract has been signed for the largest Municipal Service Building in the world. The building will cover an entire block and will be located one the southeast corner of Twelfth street and Clark avenue.

The building will contain about 250,000 square feet of floor space and will house the great heating plant, which will serve the heating and power for all the great municipal buildings which are to be built in the Plaza group. It will contain the transformer house, which will supply electricity to this group. It will house the fire department with its hose station, repair shops and training school, with space for 375 automobiles owned by the city.

The building has been designed by Study & Farrar, architects, specializing in municipal buildings of this type. This firm designed the original Water Works Building at the Chain of Locks and now is building the Howard's Bend Water Works Station on the Missouri river.

The building has been designed in the style of architecture of northern Italy. The walls will be of gray brick, with terra cotta trimmings. In design, this building will be quite similar in many respects to the New Market on Broadway, which has been called one of the finest municipal buildings in the United States. While the building is in fact a group of five buildings, the architects have united all five buildings into one harmonious whole. Building and equipment will cost more than $1,000,000, and will be completed in 1928.

Bollinger; four-family apartment-flat, 5806 Wabada avenue, for Fred Lueckerath to J. C. Steiner; cottage at 5512 Plover avenue to H. Woodward; cottage at 5135 Oriole avenue to J. Fisher; store with flats above, 5062 Maffitt avenue, for C. Lelly; 90-foot vacant lot in Roth Grove Subdivision to Fred Lueckerath; new brick bungalow in Pine Lawn for J. C. Steiner.

Jennings also has recently sold 87 acres of orange and grapefruit land near Donna, Texas, to a St. Louis syndicate.

E. R. MEYER RESIDENCE TO BE NORMAN-ENGLISH

Residence of E. R. Meyer is being erected on Forsyth boulevard, west of Skinker road. The building is designed in Norman-English style and is constructed of soft textured brick with a mottled slate roof.

The interior has an open circular stairway in an octagonal tower and contains a paneled living room, library and dining room on the first floor in addition to service rooms and a three-car garage.

The second floor contains four master bedrooms, two baths, dressing room and service quarters.

The building was designed and is being erected under supervision of Maritz and Young, Inc., architects.

T. HEMMELMANN WITHDRAWS FROM REALTY COMPANY

Holdings of Veteran Operator in Hemmelmann-Spackler Firm Acquired by a Syndicate.

R. SPACKLER IS MADE PRESIDENT

Charles Rippin, Walter Heuer and L. J. Willenbrink Are Among the New Owners.

Theodore Hemmelmann has sold his interest in the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co., one of the foremost concerns in the local real estate field and St. Louis loan correspondent of the New York Life Insurance Co. The announcement, made yesterday, was unexpected.

Richard C. Spackler, Walter Heuer, L. J. Willenbrink and Charles Rippin, composing a syndicate, were the purchasers, and will continue the business. Spackler, who was first vice president, has been eletced president, Rippin vice president, Heuer treasurer and Willenbrink secretary.

The interest of Lawrence C. Schwab, who was second vice president of the concern, and a son-in-law of Hemmelmann, also was acquired by the syndicate. It is understoo dthat the purchase was made on a basis of the book value of the company, which has large resources. In addition, it is understood a lareg bonus was paid. The concern specialized in building loans.

Spackler ,as first vice president of the old concern, has had broad experience in the real estate and loan field. He has been an active member of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange.

Rippin has been traffic manager of the Merchants Exchange for the last 15 years, and for three years has served as treasurer of that body. He was general agent for the Missouri Pacific Lines from 1906 to 1912. In 1923-24 he was president of the National Traffic League, an association of leading business organizations of the country. He will enter the service of the company Aug. 1.

Heuer and Willenbrink have been identified with the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. in various posts, for a number of of years, and have an extensive acquaintance among property owners.

Hemmelmann, who it is announced has retired, is planning an extensive trip. Realty circles are speculating as to his plans upon his return. He has a background of 39 years in the business, in which he was an outstanding figure, establishing 38 years ago, the the firm of Aiple & Hemmelmann, which upon the death of Albert J. Aiple, was reorganized as the Hemmelmann-Spackler Real Estate Co. Loans on real estate and building enterprises in amounts aggregating $75,000,000 is the record of the concern.

W. T. Hartwell, former secretary of the old company, resigned June 1, to make a tour of Europe with his family. He was the guest of honor at a banquet given by the company, which presented him with a watch, chain and pendant. He was with the company 20 years.

MEDART COMPANY ERECTS MODERN FOUNDRY BUILDING

The foundry building of the Medart Co., DeKalb and Potomac streets, destroyed by fire last winter, has been replaced by a modern fireproof building 312 feet long and 146 feet wide. The charging floor is designed for a maximum load of 350,000 pounds, having a storage capacity for three cars of pig iron and two cars of coke.

A five-ton crane delivers material from cars or storage yard direct to charging floor. Six new coke ovens are a part of the improvement. The ventilation is unusually effective. Supervision and erection was handled by the J. H. Wise Construction Co.

HORTENSE PLACE HOUSE SOLD BY A. T. TERRY & CO.

Albert T. Terry & Co. report the sale of the home of the late Mr. Isaac Cook Jr., No. 3 Hortense place, to J. Travis Fleishel.

The house is of modern English architecture and has 14 rooms.

BAKERY COMPANY LEASES BUILDING AT 2325-27 OLIVE ST.

Theodorow Brothers Bakery Co. recently took a long terms lease on the building at 2325-27 Olive street, owned by Henry and Jacob Kuhn. The company will operate a wholesale and retail bakery business.

Gustave Theodorow, senior member of the firm, said it would spend about $10,000 on new and modern baking quipment, to more efficiently serve a large and increasing trade. The transactions for both parties were handled by Martin & Breitt.

Constructive Ideas on Materials Methods and Home Plans

SUMMER INSPECTION FOR HEATING PLANTS

All Home Heating Plants Should Be Overhauled Every Year.

Now that the householder feels satisfied that Summer has really arrived, it is a seasonable idea to have an expert overlook the heating plant of the home to see if the old apparatus is in a condition to heat the house the coming winter. Have him give both the heating plant and the chimney a thorough inspection and if he reports that some repairs are necessary to render the old plant efficient next year, commission him to make the repairs at once so that there need be no rush at the last minute when the first chilly September day is ushered in. This is especially necessary if there be children in the family, for the cool mornings which come early in September necessitate a fire for a few hours early in the day.

If the inspection of the heating plant discloses that a new apparatus is required, then by all means, do not delay putting in an order for the new work at once for there remain but a few months to install the new furnace or boiler.

The market now affords a multiplicity of heating plants suitable for the private home. Besides the hot air furnace, the steam heating plant and hot water plant, there are oil heaters, gas heaters and electrical appliances which can be installed in either large or small houses. There are several types of oil, gas and electric heaters and the prospective purchaser of a new heating plant for the home, should study all types and styles before deciding which type to purchase.

Installing a heating apparatus in an already built house is not an easy job for the contractor nor is it a time of pleasure for the householder and his family, so it is the part of wisdom to give the contractor plenty of time to do his work thoroughly, so it will be the better plan to give the order at once for the new heating apparatus.

Even though the heat expert may find the heating plant and the hot water heater in fine shape for next year, he will advise that proper attention be given the plant to put it in readiness for next season.

The sooty deposits which collect in the flue passages and in the smoke pipe during the winter should be removed, otherwise the soot will absorb moisture during the summer and cause the pipes to rust. The water should be drained from the boiler, which will flush out any sludge left in it. The manufacturer's directions about emptying or filling the boiler with water should also be followed out.

The smoke pipe and the chimney should be looked after and all soot removed. Many furnace experts advise removing the smoke pipe of the heating plants and plugging up the opening from which the pipe was removed.

The smoke pipe wears out frequently and this should be looked after, as should also the fire grate and the damper appliances which also frequently need renewal.

VERSATILITY OF GYPSUM

Many and Varied Are Its Uses In Modern House Construction.

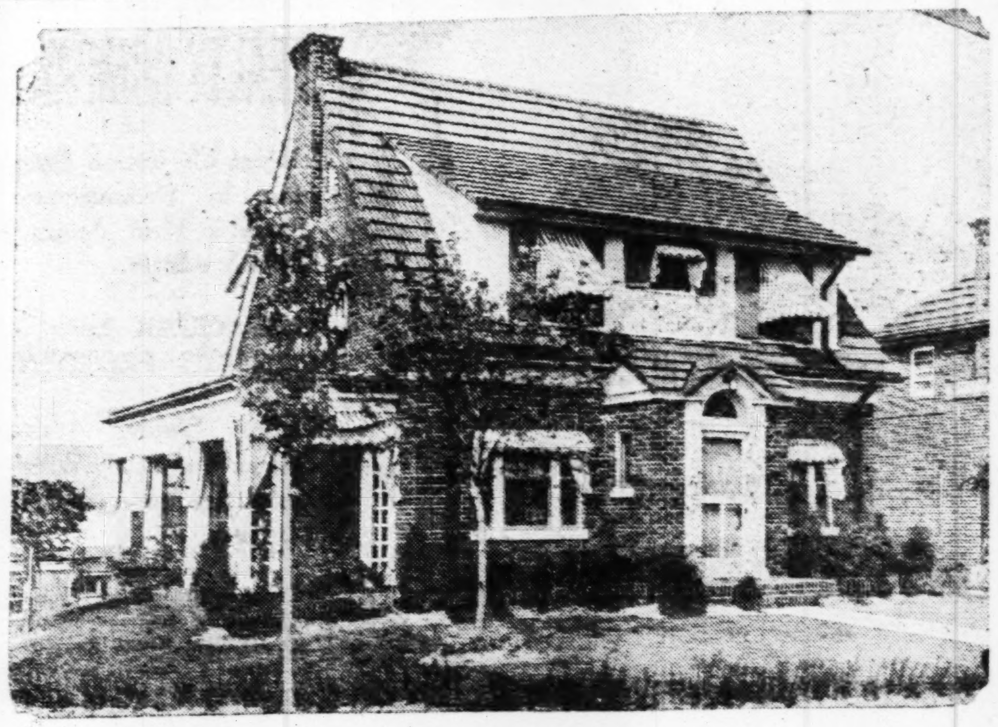
Among the interesting features of a certain new residence apartment are the various uses to which gypsum materials are put. In order that the partitions may be as fire-safe as the rest of the building, they are constructed of gypsum tile, which will not burn because the gypsum rock from which they are made is incombustible. The partitions are exceptionally light in weight, but add much structural strength to the building. Tile similar to the partition tile are used to protect the steel of the frame work. Further protection against fire and against heat, cold and the penetration of noise through floors is being added through the use of gypsum filler, which, when mixed with water, swells and hardens after it is poured in place into a rock blanket honey-combed with dead-air cells.

Walls are being finished with a gypsum lath which is made up of gypsum rock in a tough paper binder. Over this lath are applied three coats of gypsum plaster.

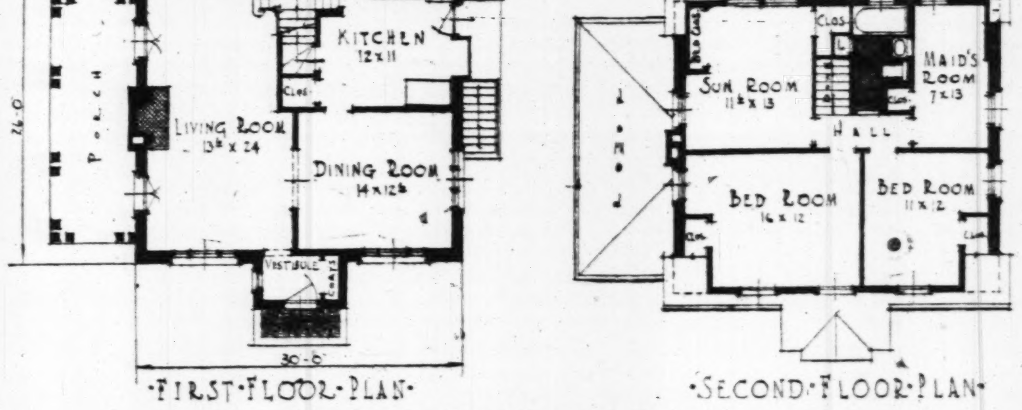
Safety Council Advice.

If you are building a new home or having an old house wired for electricity, be sure that it is inspected by the proper authorities, even though the work is done by a competent electrician. There should also be an inspection when changes are made in the wiring. Additions to circuits—if not properly made—may overload them and require larger fuses than are safe, states the National Safety Council. Devices for connecting several appliances to one socket may be used, with care.

Seven-Room Colonial Residence



Plan 7—B—119



Associated Architects' League of St. Louis.

Colonial Type Residences Are Unusually Popular

Symmetrically Designed, This Particular House Adapts Itself to a City, Country or Suburban Setting.

This attractive residence designed in the colonial style of architecture, adapts itself to a city, suburban or county setting. No small amount of study was given to making the exterior and interior of this home satisfying in the extreme.

The front is symmetrically designed with a typical colonial entrance which immediately holds the interest of the beholder. The sides of the house are treated in the same way, so that the whole design presents a spirit of unity and compactness.

The entrance opens into a vestibule which introduces a spacious living room extending the entire width of the house. A fireplace occupies the center of the wall while two pairs of French doors open onto a terrace porch at the side of the house. While the kitchen is small, it is compactly and conveniently arranged.

The economical arrangements of the stairs allows the greatest amount of space for the rooms. The large, well lighted bedrooms are provided with a great amount of closet space. There is also a maid's room. The sunroom has a in-a-door bed.

The garage is built adjoining the house, so that the wall of the residence serves for the wall of the garage.

The walls are constructed of brick and the roof is covered with a concrete slab as a precaution against fire.

According to rough estimate the house can be built for approximately $15,000.

Further information concerning this colonial house plan (No. 7-B-119) can be obtained by writing to the Building Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHITE WASH THE BASEMENT DURING THE WARM SEASON

Health Demands the Cellar Be Kept in a Sanitary and Cleanly Condition.

Is your basement tidy, bright and neat? Or is it a dingy place where dirt collects and where you store everything that has no other place?

A basement room that is dark can be improved by painting the ceiling and walls with whitewash. Pure quick lime and water form a very white whitewash, but it rubs off easily. If you will add a pint of flour paste (boiled) or a mixture of starch and water (boiled) to every gallon of whitewash, but little of the whiteness will be lost and it will adhere much better.

If you have a can of white paint left over, why not paint the floor joists and ceiling? This will add about 40 per cent to the lighting of any basement room.

The steps, too, are often a source of annoyance and danger. In the semi-darkness one cannot always tell just where the ends of the steps are. A narrow strip of white paint will help.

Cement floors laid directly on earth are necessarily cold. The basement is seldom used for living quarters, but perhaps an extra room down there will be just the place for the hired man, especially if it is near the furnace. If the room is to be inhabited, a false floor of one-inch boards that are matched may be laid over the cement.

Be sure that the earth about the outside of the house is graded at least six inches above the level of the lawn. Otherwise, rain water will work its way down on the outside and cause excessive dampness.

MAKING WALL BOARD PROCESS DESCRIBED

Its Makeup and Physical Nature Mysteries to Many Home Owners.

Home builders and home owners in the United States use hundreds of millions of feet of rock wall-board every year. It is witnessed in use under almost every conceivable condition. Yet the makeup and physical nature of this interesting and adaptable material has remained something of a mystery.

A sheet of rock wall-board is nothing more than a sheet of gypsum rock three-eighths of an inch thick, including the surfacing of waterproof fiber with which it is covered. However, before being fabricated into this uniform product the gypsum rock undergoes a complete change in form and chemical structure and then a change back to its original form.

Here's what happens: The water of crystallization in the gypsum rock is driven out and the rock is reduced to a powder. Then water is mixed with the powder and the plastic mass is distributed onto one of the fiber binders that covers the finished piece of wallboard. The other fiber binder then is put in place and the thickness of the board is insured by mechanical regulation.

Now, it happens that after the water of crystallization has been driven from gypsum rock, the remaining elements have an affinity for water. Thus, when water is mixed in with the powdered gypsum from which the water has been driven off there is a recombining process—that is, what is left of the gypsum and the water which has been mixed in recombine to again form gypsum rock. And by the time the gypsum wallboard has come off the manufacturing machines and out of the driers, it simply is a fiber-covered board of pure gypsum rock.

Line Closets With Cedar.

Cedar has moth-repellant properties. It may be used effectively in lining closets and will protect clothing from the attacks of moths, at the same time imparting a pleasant odor to the garments.

HOUSE CONSTRUCTED LIKE HUMAN BODY

So Declares a Man Who Is Thrilled by Building a New Home.

An enthusiastic homebuilder, who is getting the thrill of his life out of erecting a home, declares that the construction of a house is, in many respects, very similar to the human body.

In pointing out the resemblance he considers the foundation of the building as the feet, the framework as bones, windows as eyes, heating plant as the heart, plumbing as the arteries, veins and intestines while the electric wiring compares with the nerve system.

If the essential organs of the human body could be bought, no one would ever think of buying cheap ones to save money. They would buy only the best, regardless of price, he points out.

Many misguided people when building buy inferior material, second-grade fixtures and employ inefficient labor for the sake of a small temporary saving, to later discover that it was the most expensive. An improperly built home, with inferior materials used in its construction, is like a sick body. It is sure to cause trouble and endless expense later on, he says.

This is especially true of heating and plumbing. The heart as the heating plant, with arteries, veins and intestines as plumbing, fill an important function in both the human body and in the building of a home. They are more than a network of hidden pipes, valves and fittings that provide heat, distribute water and carry away sewage. It is a service of universal, practical benefit, giving comfort and assuring health. They should be of the best material and workmanship if they are to protect health and give lasting service with small upkeep.

About Dipping Shingles.

In dipping it is an economy to wipe the shingles with a brush as they are withdrawn from the dipping tub, or to rig two stiff brushes on the edge of the tub, point to point, and draw the shingles through between them after they are dipped. This saves stain and hastens the drying. The shingles should not be soaked in the stain, but dipped in and out as quickly as possible, and after dipping should be thrown in a loose pile, so that the free circulation of the air will dry them quickly.

But two-thirds the length of the shingle need be dipped.

A GOLD FISH POND IN THE BACK YARD

How a Clever High School Boy Helped Beautify the Family Back Yard.

The increasing number of suburban residences in the St. Louis district offer opportunity to the owners for landscape gardening in either large or small ways.

When the boys and girls of the family are interested in beautifying the home lot so much the better for both the children and the parents.

Just as an evidence of what can be accomplished by boys in the beautification of the back yard the following story is published: An ambitious boy who earned his spending money by raising goldfish required a larger pond than the circular aquarium commonly used.

Besides, he had learned that the fish do best in outdoor ponds of varying depth with long runways. It seems they love to spawn in shallow water that is tempered by the sunshine and that the warmth hatches the eggs; but invariably they seek the deep places for themselves, especially in hot summer weather.

So the ambitious youngster decided to make a pond in the center of the back yard, in full view from a porch that is a sort of a summer living room for the family. The young builder determined to make the pond as attractive as possible.

So he planned carefully, staked off a double circle, each somewhat irregular, and made a winding stream leading from the aquarium to the stone fence or terrace bisecting the yard.

Then he and his helper began digging. The pond along the right-hand side and the foreground is fully four feet deep, but slanting upward toward the stream with curved bottom and sides, in some places a foot deep, in others but a few inches. This excavation was lined with concrete and the inner circle, forming a small pond around the waterpipe, was built up of good-sized boulders and these covered neatly with the same concrete mixture, several coats of the plastic material being spread over their irregularities. The edges of the outer pond and the banks of the "stream" were treated likewise, thus making them quite artistic and saving labor and material.

The pretty arched bridge is as useful as it is ornamental, being formed by a curved sheet of iron for the floor with iron piping for the edges and rails, all of which, when securely fastened together, was plastered over with the concrete. This bridge is only some three feet long, but it bears a man's weight, it appears to be of stone and harmonizes with the rest beautifully. It is the favorite crossing for the family as they go from the house to the rear of the lot.

In the long, straight, foot-deep tank the enterprising young owner keeps the fish that are on sale. Here they are better seen, selected an caught for the visiting customers, and, as stated, this is a money-making proposition. With a wooden, paddle-shaped wedge he can shut off the tank from the stream or the stream from the aquarium.

The young willow tree that bends gracefully over the pond, furnishes a meat-supply for the fish. Certain bugs and their larvae that feed upon it evolve tiny worms that, in turn, drop into the water to the delight and sustenance of the goldfish. Not often does a tree furnish decoration, shade and meat!

This rather elaborate cement work was not an easy job for the two amateur builders without proper equipment, but they succeeded remarkably well. Their work is pleasing to the eye and is heartily approved by the whole fish-colony.

About Mouldings.

Mouldings are usually sold by the lineal foot, though wide mouldings, such as base boards are also sold by board foot measure. There is but one recognized grade of mouldings, which is practically free from defects. Some mills, however, sell a grade of "seconds," the principal defect in which is "stain." Where economy is necessary and the woodwork is painted, "stained" mouldings will usually be found satisfactory.

a limited number of the choicest lots and bungalows, on Saturday and Sunday June 25 and 26

Commencing at 2 p. m. on the grounds. This is an unusual opportunity to buy real estate in the very path of increasing values and on such a small investment that purchasers are assured of an early profit. Denny Road is now being converted into a boulevard 100 feet wide. Manchester Road is being paved further and further and is the main traffic artery leading to the southwest portion of the State. Adele Place is in Kirkwood, one of the progressive cities of St. Louis County. Has an abundance of pure water, ample police protection and all city utilities. All improvements are in and paid for. Come out to the sale Saturday or Sunday, June 25 and 26, at 2 p. m.

AT LAST!
Elegant Medium-Sized New Residence in Exclusive Washington Terrace

For several years we have received an insistent demand for a thoroughly modern residence in exclusive restricted Washington Terrace, and so we have just completed No. 34 Washington Terrace, which we believe you will find, upon inspection, fills every requirement.

This truly gorgeous residence has been completed without regard to cost of the finish as is evidenced by the craftexed and canvas finish throughout; the tile-walled kitchen; the three luxuriously fitted baths with showers on the second floor, and the hand-rubbed gum millwork throughout.

This residence not only is wonderfully constructed, but as soon as you step inside and walk through the 2-story living room with its imported mantel, and stroll through the solarium and inspect the master bedrooms with their adjoining baths, you will immediately realize its extreme attractiveness.

To those seeking sound construction, elegant finish and pronounced attractiveness in a house conveniently situated and yet highly restricted and surrounded by St. Louis' finest homes, this new residence must appeal.

Property open daily from 8:00 A. M. to 5:00 P. M.

GANNONDALE GARDENS

Stand in the display home and view the beautiful gardens on every side. Here a riot of crimson rambler roses, there a clump of spirea and again a bed of pansies trying to display all Nature's colors in their group. On the lawn a pretty child playing with her pet dog. Home, home, home: every plant, every lawn, every brick and stone proclaims it, in unmistakable accents, inviting you to make it your own. We can help you do so by our liberal financial terms. The furnished display home is at 7562 Cornell avenue.

NASSAU TREASURY DYNAMITERS GET SEVEN YEARS IN PRISON

Two Clerks and Chauffeur in Department Convicted of Stealing $47,000 in Gold and Silver.

By the Associated Press.

NASSAU, Bahama Island, June 18.—Sentences of seven years' imprisonment were imposed today on three men convicted of dynamiting the currency vault of the Government Treasury department in March, 1926, and stealing $47,000 in American gold and silver.

The convicted men are Hillyard Bowen and Orlando Ingraham, clerks in the treasury, and Spencer Williams, a chauffeur.

WOMAN CONVICT SURRENDERS

Escaped From Missouri Penitentiary April 20.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, June 18.—Adaline Ball, 22 years old, woman convict from Kansas City, who escaped on April 20 from the women's department at State Prison Farm No. 1, voluntarily appeared at the penitentiary, this evening and surrendered.

She said she was tired of wandering and urged that no one be given the $50 reward that had been offered for her return to the prison. She was the first woman to escape from the penitentiary in many years. She said she had been in Denver, Colo., in Texas, and recently in Kansas City. She was sent to the prison from Kansas City to serve a three-year term for grand larceny, June 7, 1926. Three other women have escaped from Farm No. 1 since Adaline Ball. Two of these were Negroes and were caught the day following their escape. The third, Mrs. Edna Murray, known as the "kiss me robber" and under 25-year sentence from Kansas City for highway robbery, has not been apprehended.

Held on Egg-Stealing Charge.

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo., June 18. Oscar O. Crites of Cape Girardeau was at liberty today under $1500 bond pending trial in Federal Court, as result of his arrest last night charged with tampering with the United States mails. He was arrested by Postal Inspector W. C. Rosenbaum on a charge of stealing a crate of eggs on July 28, 1926, from the parcel post. Crites is an express messenger working between St. Louis and Poplar Bluff.

Parade by K. K. K. Forbidden.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Police Commissioner Warren's recent ruling forbidding parades by religious, racial or political organizations that might result in disorder, was applied for the first time yesterday when he denied permission for a Ku Klux Klan parade July 4. The commissioner's ruling followed disorders incident to a Klan parade and a Facist parade on Memorial day.

FLYER SMILING DURING GREETING OF HIS TOWNSMEN

Starts Day by Meeting Reception Committee of 300 in "Lindbergh Suite" at Congress Hotel.

EASY IN MANNER AT CEREMONY

Secretary of War Davis, Mayor Miller, Ex-Mayor Kiel and Airman's Mother in Receiving Line.

With courtly ease and grace Col. Lindbergh went through another formal period of hand shaking yesterday, one of many since he became world-famous.

This time the hand that has felt the grasp of Kings and Presidents and the great of the nation warmly closed about the hands of 300 of his fellow townsmen who made up the city's official reception committee.

They met him before the parade yesterday in the jade room of the Congress Hotel, Pershing avenue and Union boulevard, where the management has set aside a suite for his use indefinitely, and which is his headquarters.

For more than an hour he stood against a bright background of color, meeting distinguished men who thrilled at contact with a man who had attracted the attention and received the plaudits of the world.

Accompanied by Mother.

Refreshed, smiling and neatly attired in a pin-striped blue suit, white shirt, soft collar and black tie with faint red striping, he arrived at the Congress at 9:17 o'clock from the home of his host and backer, Harry Hall Knight, in St. Louis County.

With him was his mother. She wore a black and white crepe de chine dress black satin coat and a large black straw picture hat.

Immediately upon his arrival, he was escorted to the senatorial suite on the tenth floor, henceforth to be known as the "Lindbergh suite."—A silver plate on the door bears that name.

In the jade room he took his position against the south wall, walking with his characteristic gait, almost a slouch, and brushing down the unruly hair on the back of his head with one hand. He stepped to the right of his mother, who had preceded him.

Then the committee began to file by, and the Colonel in greeting broke into smiles, gave every hand a firm, muscular shake.

He Bows From the Waist.

As he smiled and shook hands, he also bent forward from the waist in another characteristic movement. At his right in the receiving line were Secretary of War Davis, Mayor Miller and former Mayor Kiel.

Outside a crowd, growing in size momentarily, waited for the flyer to come out. A band played. At 9:50 he came out to pose for photographers in the court yard and the crowd, riveting eyes upon him, sent up a long and lusty cheer.

One woman, palpitating with excitement, managed to get near enough to the hero to touch him and went away triumphant. Later when he returned to his suite before leaving the hotel for the parade, another woman rushed into his room with a pitcher of water and came out exulting over the honor.

At 10:16 the Lindbergh party descended in the elevator. A few minutes later they were in automobiles ready for the parade.

Around them pressed balloon venders, photographers, movie men and spectators. Three army dirigibles hovered overhead. The crowd, in contrast to the sober dress of the Reception Committee, was gaily dressed. Most of the members of the committee were in plain business suits, but some wore morning coats.

ANSWERS BISHOP MANNING

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 18.—Declaration that his views on "sex experiments" had been misunderstood, and that there had been much discussion about nothing, was made here today by the Rev. Henry Lewis of Ann Arbor, Mich.

The young pastor, whose remarks to the national congress of the Episcopal church, which closed here last night, drew sharp adverse comment from Bishop William T. Manning at New York, issued the following statement: "In view of the continued publicity given to my address before the Episcopal Church Congress I wish to state that I did not and do not advocate trial marriages. I was merely pleading for a dispassionate consideration and discussion of the findings of modern science and psychology in relation to morals which may lead to the upward development of the human race."

NEW WORDS IN USE IN CHICAGO AS RESULT OF LINDBERGH'S FAME

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, June 18.

LEXICOGRAPHERS of the future may need to include adaptations of Lindbergh in their dictionaries. Oak Park school children have changed the old game of "O'Leary" to "Lindy." Instead of chanting "one, two, three, O'Leary," as they bounce a rubber ball, throwing their feet over it on each bounce, they have substituted "Lindy" for "O'Leary."

"You are doing your work in a 'Lindified' way has been heard in the loop since the Missouri Colonel completed his Atlantic flight.

"I think we'll be able to 'Lindy' across the ocean between breakfast and supper soon," a Chicago flyer remarked in commenting on Lindbergh's flight.

TWO NEW JERSEY TROOPERS CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Accused of Leading Attack on Home Resulting in Death of Woman.

By the Associated Press.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., June 18.—The man who precipitated the attack upon the Meaney home at Jutland Dec. 21, which resulted in the death of Miss Beatrice Meaney, and the Lieutenant who commanded 24 State troopers in the siege, today were found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in County Court.

They were Trooper Alfred K. Larsen, who called at the farm on the afternoon of Dec. 20 with two Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals agents, seeking the arrest of James and Timothy Meaney on charges of underfeeding cattle, and Lieut. Daniel F. Rogers.

Twelve other troopers were acquitted, as were the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals men. The jury asked the Court to "severely reprimand" them.

The convicted men face fines not exceeding $1000 or terms in prison of not more than 10 years.

The State was pitted against the State at the trial, special Assistant Attorney-Generals having been designated to defend the troopers. The prosecution stressed the allegation that excessive force was used by the troopers, while the defense contended that the officers were in possession of legal warrants, and that all they knew was that they had been ordered to apprehend fugitives from justice.

Miss Meaney was mortally wounded by a bullet which penetrated the walls of a closet in which she sought shelter from the several hundred bullets poured into the house by the troopers. The house was stormed after a night of firing.

HUMAN BONES, THOUGHT TO BE 1000 YEARS OLD FOUND IN U. S.

Parts of Skeleton Dug Up in Massachusetts by Brown University Professor.

By the Associated Press.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., June 18.—Prof. Edmund B. Delabarre of Brown University has found human bones he thinks to be 1000 years old at Assonet Neck, Mass. The bones were buried under a thick layer of peat at a spot covered by water at high tide, and were grouped in an area scarcely a foot in radius.

The bones, Delabarre believes, may have been preserved from some prehistoric cremation, or may have been in the stomach of some predatory animal when it died.

Last fall Delabarre deciphered hieroglyphichs on Dighton Rock, in Assonet Cove, as inscriptions left by the lost Portuguese navigator, Miguel Cortereal, which led Portuguese savants to reaffirm their claims that there was a pre-Columbian discovery of America by a Portuguese.

Says Rich Mate Left Her Destitute.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, June 18.—Mrs. James Henry Hobson who described herself as a former newspaper owner in England, obtained a summons in magistrates court today for her husband, who, she charges, disappeared from their apartment last Monday, taking with him her money, passports and marriage certificates. Mrs. Hobson declared she had been left destitute and had been obliged to appeal to the British Consul for aid. She described her husband as a wealthy stock broker with Wall Street connections. She and her husband are British subjects.

PROPOSES TO FLY FROM BERLIN TO SAN FRANCISCO

Anton Koennecke, German Airman, Expects to Hop Off July 25 and Arrive at Goal in 60 Hours.

TO CARRY CO-PILOT AND 2 PASSENGERS

Three-Motor Plane Will Have Fuel for Nearly Three Days of Travel at 124-Mile Speed.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, June 18.—Inspired by the successes of the transatlantic flights of Lindbergh and Chamberlin, interests in Germany now are planning to establish a new world's record crossing to the west, to San Francisco and return, with the name of Anton Koennecke, German World War ace, definitely linked with the project.

It developed today that Koennecke recently was quietly given a leave of absence from Lufthansa the German aerial league, for three months, during which he is expected to organize a Berlin-New York-San Francisco non-stop flight.

While his backers have not been divulged, it generally is assumed he will fly for the Rohrbach Works, whose latest three-motor models attracted much attention at the Copenhagen International Aviation Exhibition.

Plans Trip in 60 Hours.

The plane in which Koennecke hopes to reach San Francisco in 60 hours, taking 35 hours for the crossing to New York, will carry sufficient fuel for 70 hours, and it is hoped, will be capable of maintaining an average speed of slightly over 200 kilometers (124 miles) an hour. The plane, which will be all metal and will have three motors, will be so equipped that it can start and land on land or water.

To escape questioning about his plans, Koennecke quietly slipped from Berlin for the week-end, during which he wants to formulate further plans which now call for a hop-off, July 25, with the arrival in San Francisco on July 28. The plane would remain in the latter city only four days before starting on a return flight. The dates, however, may be advanced. A relief pilot will be carried as well as two passengers, one of them an unnamed industrialist, who is said to be financing the venture.

The Ministry of Communications has approved Koennecke's plan. It is announced the Government is prepared to lend the undertaking all possible support, provided it does not lead to propaganda on the part of one aerial company at the expense of another.

Government to Aid.

The authorities will place weather and wireless services at the disposal of the German aviators, and will furnish the same aid and facilities as would be accorded to American flyers to Germany.

It is pointed out, however, that aviators before starting must submit their project to the Foreign Office, as they would not only be proceeding to America as pacemakers for a regular inter-continental service—to be expected within a few years—but also would be delegates representing the German people.

The ministry announces that the Government would not be ready for several years to consider a project for the establishment of a trans-oceanic air service, as unfavorable economic conditions in German industries do not warrant their embarking on such a venture without adequate technical, organizing and financial resources.

Koennecke is known as one of the most reliable and daring pilots in Germany. He always has been selected by Lufthansa to fly routes which are difficult from a meteorological viewpoint. During the war, Koennecke, who now is 35 years old and is married, was credited with victories over 45 planes and received the highest military decoration.

LIBRARY CIRCULATION GAINS

71,644 More Books Loaned in May Than for Month in 1926.

Circulation of library books during May increased 71,644 above the same month last year. The total number of books issued was 272,562, of which 58,000 were loaned through branch libraries. Carpenter Branch, at Grand boulevard and Utah street, has loaned more books each month since its opening Feb. 15 than any other branch.

New books added to the library during the month totaled 4454 volumes, 483 of these being in foreign languages. The Braille system of printing was employed in 41 volumes, which may be read by the blind.

Ottawa (Ill.) Airman New Entry in Dallas-Hongkong Flight.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

EL PASO, Tex., June 18.—James M. Funk of Ottawa, Ill., was the latest entrant today in the Dallas-Hongkong flight. R. L. Bierce and L. H. Hopewell have made a joint entry with the backing of the El Paso Commercial Club and West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

LOAN OF $2,500,000 INVOLVED IN FAILURE OF TRUST COMPANY

Florida Real Estate Project Used Large Part of Sum, Witness Tells Creditors.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 18.—A loan of $2,500,000 was obtained from A. Lynch by the Consolidated Securities Co., an organization comprising executives of the Adair Realty & Trust Co. of Atlanta, a short time before its failure, E. A. Irwin, former head of the bond department, testified today at a creditors' meeting here.

A half million dollars of this loan was paid in cash to Lynch as a commission, the witness said and $1,000,000 was held under agreement by a New York bank and used later to satisfy Whitfield estate obligations. Of the remaining million, a large portion was distributed among Adair projects, and only a few hundred thousand dollars actually reverted to the Adair company. The Whitfield estates is a real estate development of Sarasota, Fla.

CHILEAN MEMBER RESIGNS FROM TACNA-ARICA BODY

Dispute Over Quorum Threatens to End Last Arbitration Agency Started by Coolidge.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—The resignation of Col. Rizo Patron, Chilean member of the Tacna-Arica boundary commission, on the ground that Brigadier-General J. J. Morrow, president of the Commission, and Col. Carlos Ordonez, the Peruvian member, have shown bias against the Chilean member by insisting that the presence of two members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum, is threatening to close down the last extant agency of the Tacna-Arica arbitration machinery established in 1925 by President Coolidge.

According to Peruvian officials here, the two-party quorum was decided upon by Gen. Morrow and agreed to by the Peruvian commissioner after it was found impossible to hold meetings of the Commission due to the failure of the Chilean member to attend.

In Chilean official circles here, it is explained that Col. Patron has not resigned permanently from the commission, but has merely withdrawn from its sessions until the two-party quorum ruling is withdrawn, which they contend is in direct contradiction to the rules of procedure as originally constituted.

The Commission, provided for in the Tacna-Arica arbitral award handed down by President Coolidge on March 4, 1925, was to determine the geographic boundaries of the provinces of Tacna and Arica.

ENGLAND AROUSED OVER ECLIPSE OF SUN, JUNE 29

Bookmakers Laying 2-to-1 Odds Rare Phenomenon Will Not Be Visible.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, June 18.—The total eclipse of the sun which will take place over a portion of Great Britain early on the morning of June 29, has aroused the sporting blood of old Britain.

Bookmakers, realizing the national love of their countrymen to lay odds on everything from running horses to shooting stars, are taking a flyer into science and are willing to wager all takers 2 to 1 that the rare phenomenon will not be visible. They base their judgment on the uncertain weather conditions prevailing at this time of year.

Scientists are sending six expeditions into Northern England with tons of instruments, cameras and telescopes. Hundreds of thousands of others, including the Prince of Wales, are preparing to catch a layman's glimpse of the suns corona.

Scores of special trains and airplanes will go northward from London and thousands of motor cars with eclipse excursionists. Resorts such as Blackpool, Hartlepool and Southport, are preparing for a night of jollity preceding the eclipse. Licenses have been granted publicans from 4 to 11 a. m. on "Eclipse day."

Numerous scientific expeditions also are in Norway for the eclipse.

COLLEEN MOORE SUED OVER HER $1,000,000 CONTRACT

First National Says She Walked Off Lot With Husband Last Month.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

NEW YORK, June 18.—Because Colleen Moore, flapper of the films, followed her husband, John McCormack, off the First National lot in Burbank, Cal., last month, First National yesterday filed a complaint with Supreme Court Justice Mullan, asking that he compel the actress to arbitrate terms of a contract involving $1,000,000. She intends to sail for Europe for an extended visit, the complaint asserts, thereby violating her contract.

The producing company alleges that as a result of Miss Moore's refusal to act in the pictures chosen by and for her, the concern will lose more than $1,000,000. She has admitted having received $945,000 from the company on a $1,000,000 contract, but has appeared only in seven of eight pictures stipulated in the contract.

THREE HURT IN DERAILMENT

Four Coaches of M. & O. Train Leave Track.

Three passengers were slightly injured early yesterday when the locomotive and four coaches of a Mobile & Ohio train were derailed near Houston, Ill., about 50 miles south of St. Louis. The train was bound for St. Louis. An excursion train carrying 500 passengers for St. Louis for the Lindbergh reception was delayed, but got here in time for the downtown parade.

ANCIENT SLABS FOUND ON ARDUOUS JOURNEY

Deciphering "Sinai Inscriptions," Being Attempted in Cairo, May Cast Light on Bible.

By the Associated Press.

JERUSALEM, June 18.—The recent discovery on Mount Serabit of fragments of the mysterious "Sinai inscriptions," which have puzzled archeologists for years, was the reward of pains-taking work and a difficult journey into the interior of Sinai Peninsula by Prof. Kirsopp Lake and Prof. Robert Blake of Harvard University.

The professors, members of the Harvard-Michigan Expedition, had great difficulty in reaching Mount Serabit, which is 11 days' camel ride from the coast and is in an almost inaccessible region.

After taking the important find to Cairo, where the inscriptions were deposited in the Museum, the professors set to work in an attempt to decipher them. Dr. Butin, director of the American School of Oriental Research in Jerusalem, likewise is engaged in deciphering the inscriptions.

The missing link between the language of pictures—hieroglyphics—and the language of letters—the alphabet—may lie in an interpretation of the so-called "Moses inscription," as the Sinai inscriptions on stone slabs are known.

The Sinai slabs were found in 1906 by Sir Flinders Petrie, the noted British archeologist, but were not deciphered until 1916, when Prof. Alan Gardiner, the British authority, deciphered one word "Ba Alat" which means "mistress." In 1923, the German archeologist, Prof. Grimme, gave out a complete translation of the slabs, saying they referred to the finding of Moses in the bullrushes. Both Prof. Gardiner and Prof. Petrie, however, declared Prof. Grimme had misunderstood scratchings on the slabs for letters, and that the translation was worthless.

Archeologists say the one word "Ba Alat" shows that the people of the Sinai Peninsula turned hieroglyphics or word pictures into a sort of alphabet. This is considered of great significance, because from these people the Phoenicians or Aramaics may have derived their alphabet, which they passed on to the Greeks, from whom eventually was derived the alphabet in use today.

News of the discovery of fragments of the Sinai inscriptions was received in Boston May 27 in a short message from Prof. Lake to the Boston Herald. Harvard University authorities declared the inscriptions might throw an entirely new light on Moses and Biblical history, and might furnish the key to the baffling characters of the strange half-Egyptian, half-Semetic language which flourished nearly 3000 years ago.

PROSECUTION OF GHOST ASKED

Kansas Farmers Report Seeing Restless Spirit.

By the Associated Press.

GREAT BEND, Kan., June 18.—Prosecution of a ghost, on complaint of some of the most substantial citizens of the county, was the unusual situation that confronted Wayne Lameroux, County Attorney, today. Complainants swore they had seen the restless spirit and been disturbed by it.

"Go and bring in your ghost while I look up the law," Lameroux told Fred Koett, farmer, on whose place the ghost has been seen. "We'll throw him into jail. We might charge him with disturbing the peace." Since the first of the year strange noises have been heard about the Koett house at night, and the following morning the family has found pictures turned to the wall, a statue of the Virgin Mary changed from one wall to another, doors unlocked and the keys in their usual places.

Gives $250,000 to Triangle Club.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 18.—Thomas McCarter of Newark, president of the Public Service Commission, tonight donated $250,000 to the Princeton Triangle Club for construction of a theater. The theater will have a seating capacity of 900.

EMBEZZLEMENT OF PUBLIC FUND CHARGED

Warrants Issued for Five, Including Lake County, Ill., Treasurer and Predecessor.

By the Associated Press.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., June 18.—Warrants have been issued for five men, including the Lake County Treasurer and a former holder of that office, who are charged with conspiracy to embezzle $100,000 of the county's funds, it was learned tonight.

Two of the men—Clark C. Nye, Wichita, Kan., oil promoter, and Harold Martin, Brownsville, Tex.—have been arrested. The others involved are Roy Bracher, County Treasurer; Ira Pearsall, former County Treasurer, and Caleb Busick of Wilmette, Ill.

Nye, who was brought to Waukegan today, was released in bonds of $5000. Martin, according to a county official, is enroute to Waukegan in charge of the Sheriff.

The alleged embezzlement, the State charges, occurred in 1922 and recently was uncovered by the County Commissioners who gave the information to A. V. Smith, Lake County State's Attorney, and he filed the complaints.

It is the State's contention that the county money was withdrawn from the Security State Bank of Waukegan, of which Martin was at that time cashier, and transferred to the First National Bank of Eureka, Kan. Nye was an officer of the Kansas bank then. Ultimately, the Eureka bank closed and charges of misappropriation of funds were filed against Nye. They later were dismissed. Eventually, too, the Waukegan bank met with financial difficulties.

At the time of the transaction which Nye said was legitimate, took place, the Wichita man was president of the Barrington Oil Co. of Waukegan; Busick was vice president and Martin was treasurer. From 1923 to 1927, Pearsall was the treasurer of Lake County and at the beginning of this year, Bracher again assumed the office.

The warrants on others of the alleged conspirators have not been served.

TORONTO INVITES LINDBERGH

Requested to Attend Exhibition Prince of Wales Will Open.

By the Associated Press

TORONTO, Ontario, June 18.—The Canadian National Exhibition hopes to have as its guests the present outstanding young man of each of the two great English-speaking nations. Having invited the Prince of Wales to open the exhibition, Aug. 27, officials today invited Col. Charles A. Lindbergh to be present.

The invitation congratulated Lindbergh on the success of his transatlantic flight and urged him to give the people of Canada an opportunity to congratulate him in person. They explained that the exhibition would be the logical place for his reception in Canada.

Helpful Information about

RESORTS and TOURS

The Post-Dispatch Resort and Travel Bureau has entered its third year of broader usefulness to the traveling public in St. Louis and the Great Southwest. Each year's added experience in personal contact with thousands of travelers has developed constantly increasing efficiency for the Bureau.

Preparations for the Season of 1927, which were under way for months, are now complete. Bureau employees have accumulated up-to-date information. Map makers have collected the most recent facts about highway construction; railway and steamship companies are supplying the Bureau with every schedule change as soon as it is made; resorts, hotels and camps have supplied new information and every other possible avenue of information has been explored so that the Post-Dispatch Bureau of 1927 is even better equipped than ever before.

What Are Your Vacation Plans?

Do you want to go North, East, West or South—near or far—Do you want to travel by train, steamboat, steamship or automobile? Whether your plans are definite or indefinite, the Post-Dispatch Bureau will help arrange all details. Railroad, sleeper, steamship or hotel reservations will be made if desired. The best automobile routes and interesting side trips will be suggested.

This service is free—the Bureau has nothing to sell except some very handy and reliable state maps which cost a dime and an atlas which sells for half a dollar, but you will not be urged to buy any of these unless you want them.

Personal calls, letters or telephone inquiries will receive prompt, courteous, efficient attention

More Than 25,000 People Served

More than 25,000 people were served by this Bureau last season. The scope of the inquiries, as the partial list below shows, extended from the Gulf to Canadian points and from the Atlantic to the Pacific—however, a number of intercontinental tours were arranged.

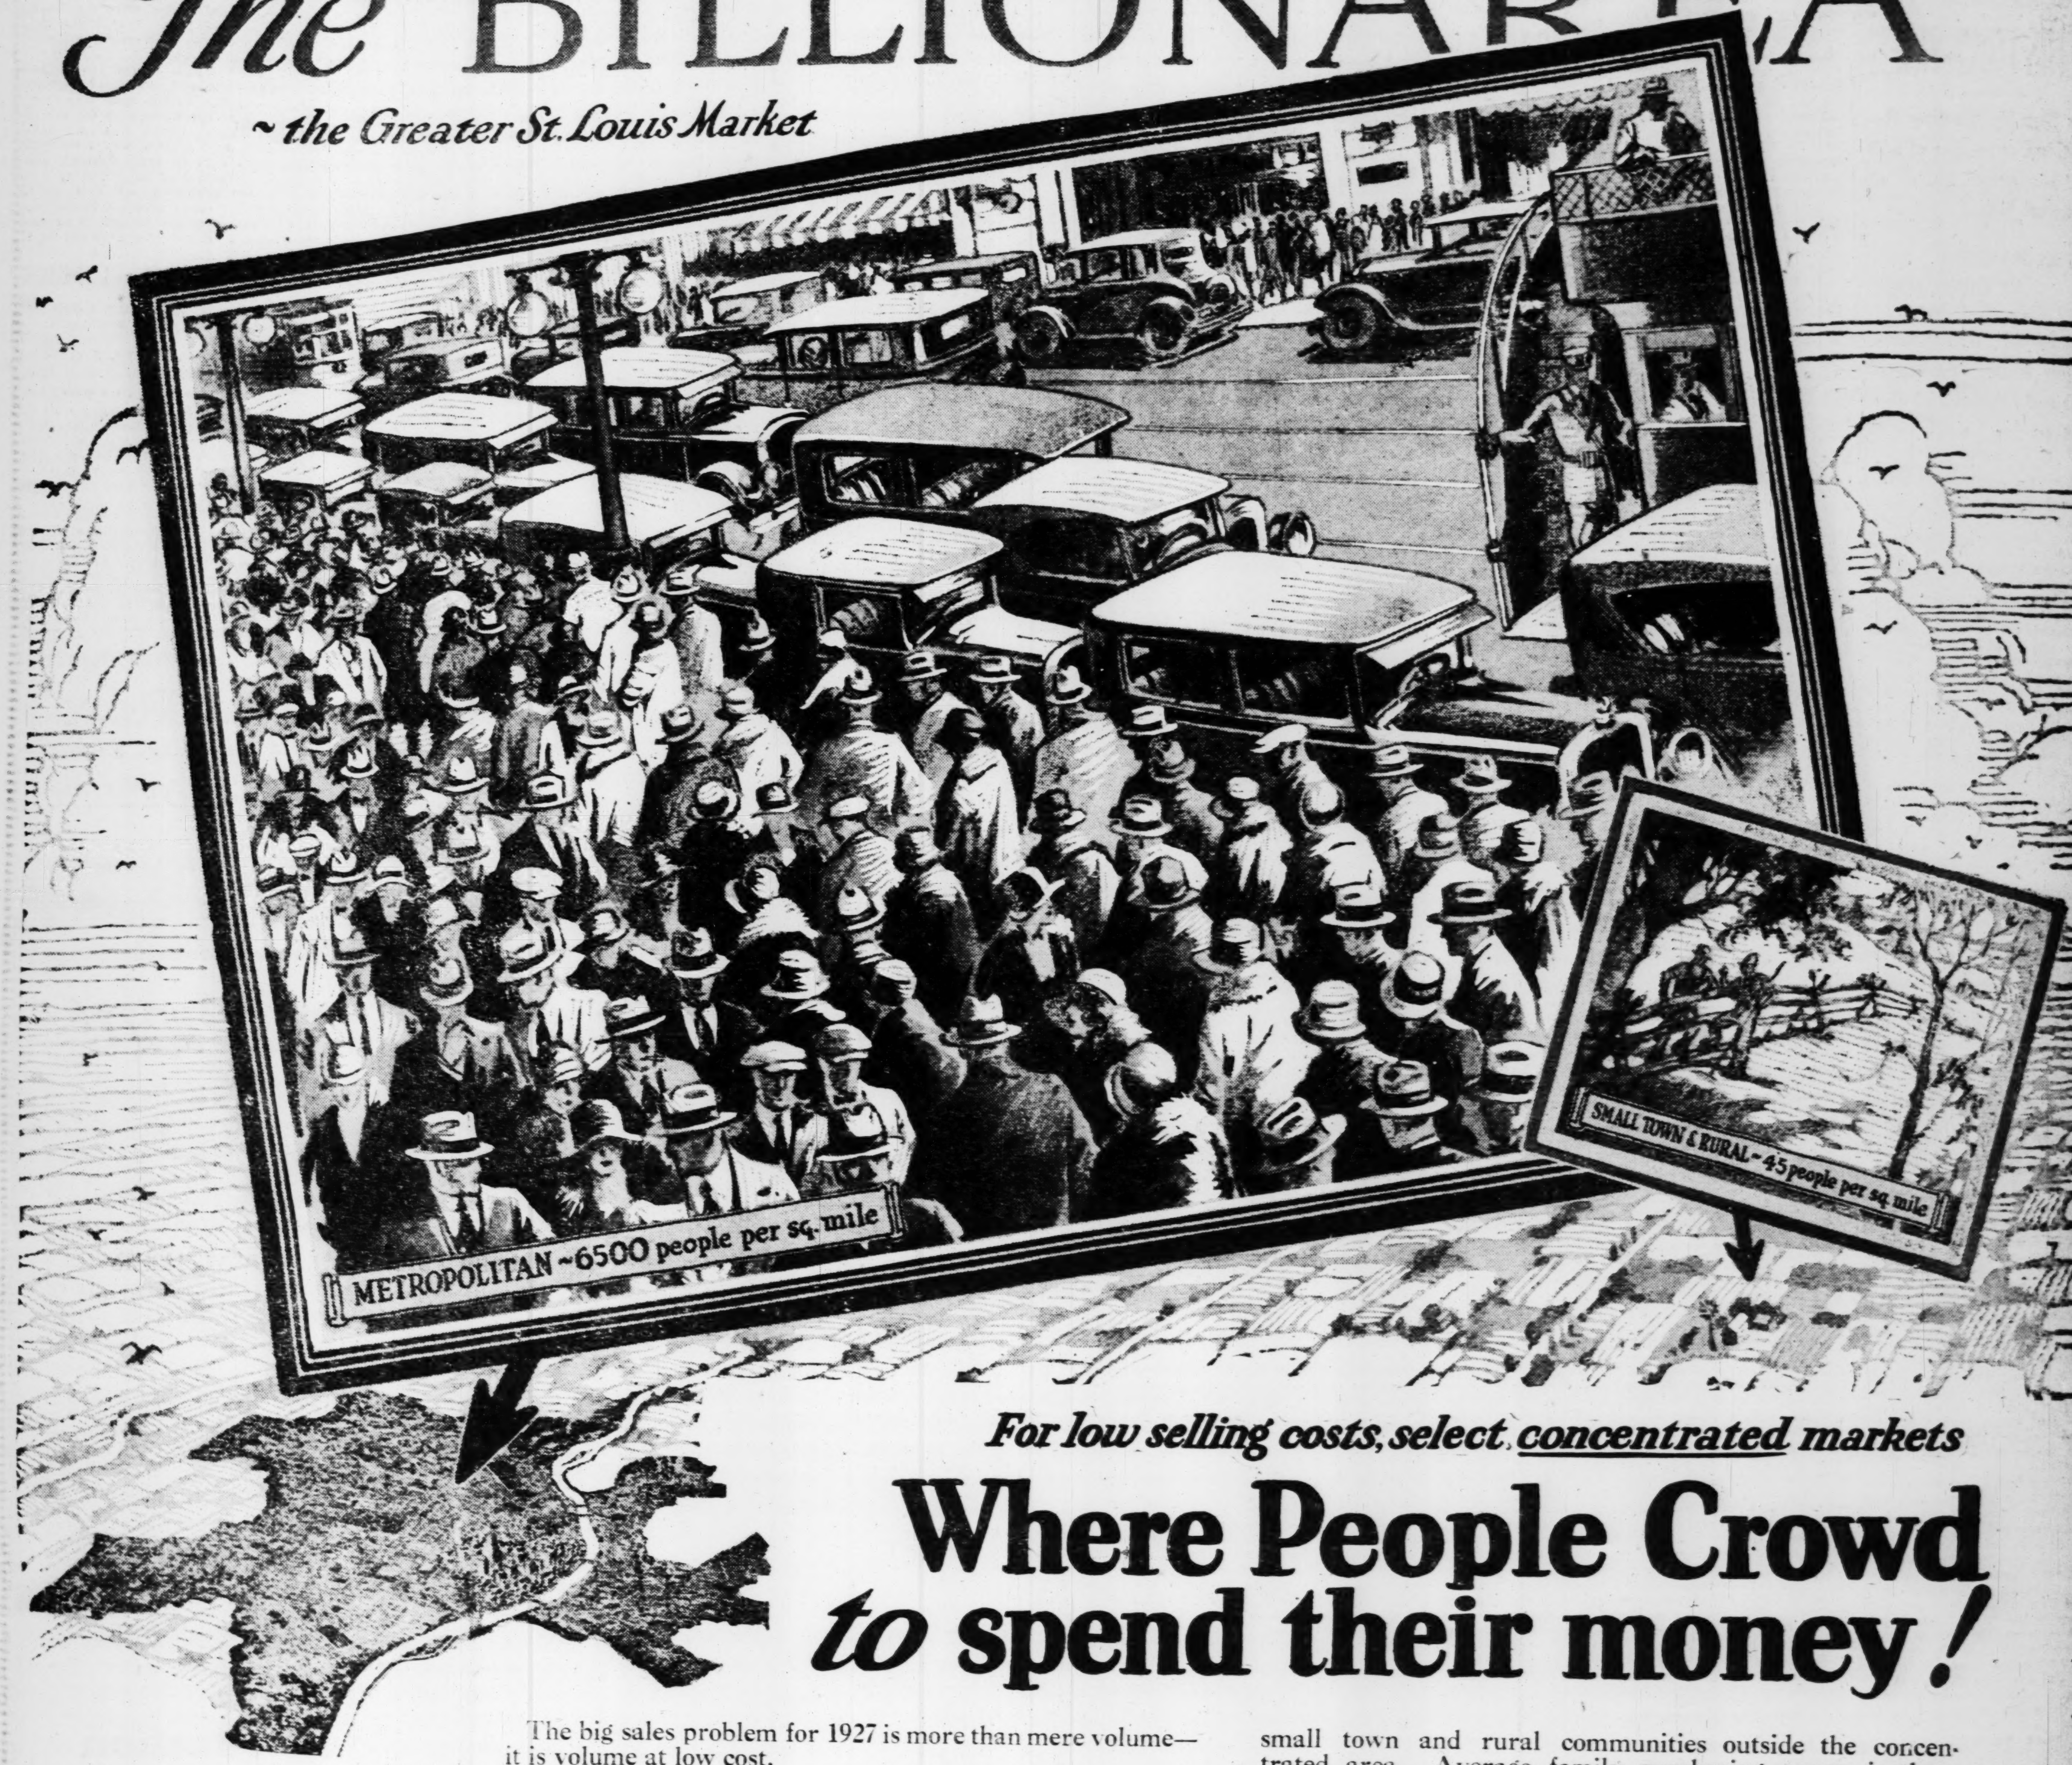
ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

The highest ranking P+D+C newspaper of The BILLIONAREA—the Greater St. Louis Market

The BILLIONAREA

~ the Greater St. Louis Market



METROPOLITAN ~6500 people per sq. mile
SMALL TOWN & RURAL ~45 people per sq. mile

For low selling costs, select concentrated markets

Where People Crowd to spend their money!

The Billionarea—

The Greater St. Louis Market

The Billionarea is the Greater St. Louis market as it actually exists and as officially designated by the Audit Bureau of Circulations. Its boundary is simply the physical limits of metropolitan St. Louis on both the Missouri and Illinois sides of the Mississippi. It includes all (and only) that area where concentration of People, Dollars and Coverage (P+D+C) offers a volume market at low cost for advertisers.

P+D+C

The Advertiser's Micrometer of a Newspaper

The very principles that have been long recognized as fundamental in the analysis of any market are for exactly the same reasons fundamental in the analysis of a newspaper's market.

Those principles are the relation of Population, Dollars (or Purchasing Power) to Coverage.

The P+D+C Manual and the Book of Information About The Billionarea—the Greater St. Louis Market—will be mailed free to anyone interested in the advertising and sales opportunity of this market.

The big sales problem for 1927 is more than mere volume—it is volume at low cost.

Two big factors will engage the sales manager's attention for 1927: (1) The more accurate selection of economically covered markets in which to drive for business; (2) The greater use of that reliable producer of low-cost sales volume:—metropolitan newspaper advertising.

Concentrated markets, where people and buying power are crowded into a concentrated area, offer obvious opportunities for volume sales at low cost. The great billion-dollar metropolitan markets prove especially profitable because they are so accessible to effective and economical coverage by both salesmen and newspaper advertising.

Markets which consist largely of scattered and relatively inaccessible areas, with low average buying power, are much less interesting because of the high cost in money, effort and time required to obtain volume sales.

The Billionarea, the Greater St. Louis Market, stands next to the top of all metropolitan volume markets in conditions most favorable for volume sales at low cost. The Billionarea contains 145 times more people per square mile than the small town and rural communities outside the concentrated area. Average family purchasing power is three and one-half times greater within The Billionarea than outside of it. The Billionarea's million population is far more accessible to salesmen than any million people in rural and small town markets. And most important, the purchasing power of The Billionarea also is made "accessible" by the remarkable circulation coverage of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reaches practically every home of purchasing consequence in the entire Billionarea—30,000 more families daily, 80,000 more Sunday, than any other newspaper. The families within The Billionarea reached by the Post-Dispatch earn and spend more than a billion dollars each year.

With a market so large, so rich, so concentrated—with a circulation coverage so complete and effective—the St. Louis Post-Dispatch offers an outstanding opportunity to Advertisers for big volume sales at low cost.

The proof of this opportunity is evident by the fact that for years more advertising, local, national and classified, combined, has been placed in the Post-Dispatch than in the second and third St. Louis newspapers added together.

Price is a factor in the purchase of a used car, but is far from being the most important.

A poor car is an expensive proposition regardless. When buying, it pays to do business with a house whose policy makes it possible for you to get the "Lowest Price Consistent With Good Value."
It pays to do business where you are sure of protection.

CARD OF THANKS

Mrs. Thomas Kelly and family desire to express their grateful appreciation to relatives and friends for kindness and sympathy in their sorrow occasioned by the death of our dear husband and father.

I wish sincerely to thank friends and neighbors for their kind expression of sympathy and the beautiful floral offerings in my recent sadness in losing my dear husband, Philip J. Ebenhoh.

MRS. LUCY EBENHOH

Mrs. Edw. Traber and family wish to thank their many friends and relatives for their kind expressions of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings during their late bereavement. Special thanks to the Rev. E. Duever, pallbearers and the male choir.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral offerings.

CHARLES DOHRMANN AND FAMILY.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

B. A. S.—We advise you to send the dress to a professional cleaner in order to avoid spoiling the dress by home cleaning.

DAILY READER.—The following is a formula for exterminating the moths: Cloves, cinamon, mace, black pepper and orris root. Of each of these take two ounces; powder coarsely and mix well together.

OLD-TIMER.—Quicklime may be placed in saucers about the basement to stop the dampness, or it may be sprayed upon the walls. A pound of calcium chloride will also remedy the damp condition of your cellar. Calcium chloride may be dried over a fire and the calcium chloride used over again as often as you desire.

STUDENT.—The Bank of England was established in the city of London in 1694. Although a private institution, it is under Government control, and constitutes the Treasury of the Empire, England having no national treasury like that of the United States. It is managed by a governor, deputy governor and 24 directors.

CONSTANT READER.—Edward S. Evans of Detroit and Linton Wells, a newspaper man of New York, under the auspices of the North American Newspapers Alliance, established a record for encircling the globe, when they reached the Pulitzer Building in Park Row, New York City, in an automobile on July 14, 1926. Vilhjalmur Stefanson, the Arctic explorer, was the official timekeeper, and announced the time of the trip as 28 days, 14 hours, 36 minutes and 51 seconds. The journey covered 20,100 miles over land and sea, by steamers, fast trains, motor cars and airplanes. The journey of Evans and Wells cost them about $25,000 and 8500 miles were made by air without mishap. They started from the Pulitzer Building June 16, 1926. Their schedule was carefully worked out in advance and was closely followed in spite of several breakdowns which caused rearrangements of details.

STUDENT.—The army of the United States consists of the Regular Army, the National Guard while in the service of the United States and the Organized Reserves, including the Officers' Reserve Corps and the Enlisted Reserve Corps. The Regular Army consists of the Infantry, the Cavalry, the Field Artillery, the Coast Artillery Corps, the Air Service, the Corps of Engineers, the Signal Corps, which are designated the combatant arms of the line of the army, the General Staff Corps, the Adjutant-General's Department, the Inspector-General's Department, the Judge Advocate-General's Department, the Quartermaster Corps, the Finance Department, the Medical Department, the Ordnance Department, the Chemical Warfare Service, the officers of the Bureau of Insular Affairs, the officers and enlisted men under the jurisdiction of the Militia Bureau, the chaplains, the professors and cadets of the United States Military Academy, the present military storekeeper, detached officers, detached enlisted men, unassigned recruits, the officers and enlisted men of the retired list, and such other officers and enlisted men as are now or may hereafter be provided for.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

F. H. M.—The adjoining lot owner cannot compel you to erect a retaining wall.

HEIR.—Any one of the heirs can compel the sale of the property at a partition sale. You should consult a lawyer.

WORRIED.—Under the circumstances you state the boy's parents could not have the marriage annulled.

M. D. H.—The book firm can sue you for the balance of the payments still due on the books for which you signed a contract. Your husband's wages cannot be garnished unless he signed the contract or authorized you to sign it for him.

DAILY READER.—You have only to furnish enough ground to provide a right of way wide enough for the reasonable needs of your neighbor. You do not have to give him 20 or 30 feet, as he says, and you do not have to fence the right of way. If he causes you trouble, consult a lawyer and have the deed legally construed.

M. P. B.—(1) You can legally remarry as soon as a divorce has been obtained, but it is safer to wait until the end of the term of court at which the divorce was granted, as the divorce decree may be set aside during that term of court. (2) You are still liable for the support of your child. (3) This depends upon the circumstances. If your former wife sued for divorce here, and you lived here and could be found, then you should have been served with a summons.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

WORRIED READER. — We would advise a complete physical examination to determine the true nature of your trouble. You certainly should be under the care of a competent physician and if you wish and will send a self-addressed, stamped envelope, we will recommend a physician for this service.

S. K.—A cancer usually develops after a person is 40 years old, but it is possible to have a cancer younger. Nodules in the breast does not necessarily mean cancer as nodules in the female breast may be due to the blocking up of the conduits from the milk glands and from the simple fibroid tumors in the male.

S. G.—The Shriners' Hospital for crippled children, 700 South Kingshighway, will probably take care of the case you describe. You should inquire of this institution. This hospital should also be able to give some advice to the crippled lady, or her case might be cared for at McLain Sanitarium, 915 Aubert avenue.

DAILY READER—You are undoubtedly suffering with muscae volitantes of the eyes. The origin or cause of this disease is unknown, hence there are no symptoms but only the actual trouble to be reckoned with. Such patients often suffer from excessive uric acid formation and are much relieved by a continued course of salines, such as phosphate of soda or other antiuric acid treatments.

(2) The north or more strictly the north-northeast wind, the coldest in Greece, is called the Boreas. In ancient legend Boreas was the brother of Hesperus, Zephyrus and Notus and dwelt in Thrace.

We especially thank the priest of St. Augustine's Church, pallbearers and undertaker.

MRS. TONY HECKMAN AND FAMILY.

To all relatives and friends I wish to extend my heartfelt gratitude in sincere thanks for their expressions of sympathy, as well as the beautiful floral offerings tendered in the time of sorrow caused by the death of my beloved fiance, Carl J. Schmidt. I especially wish to thank the pastor, pallbearers and undertaker.

EVELYN A SAWADE. (c)

We wish to thank our relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife and our dear mother, Rose Kallaher Hamm. We especially wish to thank Rev. Schuch and the pallbearers for their kind and efficient service, also for the many beautiful floral offerings. Edward Hamm and Kallaher family. (c)

The undersigned extend their sincere thanks to relatives and friends for the beautiful floral offerings in the hour of their sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife, mother and daughter, Margaretha Krohn. Special thanks to the pallbearers for their kind assistance.

JOHN KROHN AND CHILDREN.
JOSEPH AND EVA BEISER, Parents.

I hereby wish to extend my sincere thanks to the relatives and friends for their kindness and sympathy shown me in the loss of my dear uncle, Clemens Dohle; especial thanks to the Rev. G. Gruender, the pallbearers, members of the Plasterers' Union No. 3 and C. R. of A., No. 407, Wm. J. Roberts for his kind service and also for the beautiful floral offerings. ELIZABETH MACK, Niece.

To all our relatives and friends we wish to extend our heartfelt gratitude in sincerest thanks for their expressions of sympathy as well as the beautiful floral offerings tendered us in the time of sorrow caused by the death of our dear mother Louisa Horn. Especially do we wish to thank the Reverend H S. Carl Haas for his prayers and his consoling words.

WILLIAM F. HORN AND FAMILY, and H M. HORN AND FAMILY.

We wish to extend our sincere thanks to our many friends for their kind expressions of sympathy as well as the beautiful floral offerings tendered us in the time of sorrow caused by the death of my dear wife, Elise Schlueter, and our dear niece. We especially wish to thank the Rev. Schaefer for his consoling words and also the Drehmann-Harral Undertaking Co. for their proficient and sympathetic services rendered.

WOLFGANG SCHLUETER.
MR. AND MRS. LUDWIG VOELKER.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to thank our relatives and friends for their sympathy shown us in our sad bereavement in the loss of my beloved son and our dear brother, John T. Giese. We especially thank the Rev. Paul Press for his kind and consoling words, the pallbearers and the Henry Leidner Und. Co. for their kind and efficient service.

MRS. EMMA GIESE, BROTHER AND SISTER. (c)

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all our relatives and friends for the kindness and sympathy shown us in our late sad bereavement in the loss of my dear wife, Dora Heil, formerly Roth. We especially thank Rev. C. Fritsch and Rev. N. Schuch for their kind and consoling service; pallbearers, and the Ladies' Societies of St. Luke's and Christ Church for their large attendance, the organist, Kriegshauser Undertaking Co. for their efficient service and our many friends for their beautiful floral offerings. The bereaved, Chas. P. Heil.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear brother and uncle, Phillip Chibnall, who departed this life June 18, 1925.

She earthly ties are broken.
In life we'll meet no more;
But our thoughts are with you brother
Till we meet you on yonder shore.
Sadly missed by sisters and brother, Jessie, Clara and Jack; niece, Clara Thoene; nephew, Vincent Trimberger.

In loving memory of our dear mother, who passed away one year ago, June 14, 1926.

We are lonely, yes, for mother
In the year that passed away,
And we know she'll always guide us
'Til we meet again, some day.
She is happily reunited
With her pal, our father dear,
In that beautiful Isle of Somewhere
They wait their children there.
Mother, your memory is as sweet today,
As the day you passed away.
HER LOVING CHILDREN. (c)

In loving memory of our dear mother, Catherine Withman, who departed this life seven years ago, June 20.

Wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better, God never made.
Wonderful worker so loyal and true,
One in a million, that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright.
Loved by your friends and all who knew you.
Our wonderful mother, that was you.
Sadly missed by all who loved her.

In loving memory of my dear husband and dad, John A. Quinlan, who departed this life on June 19, 1926.

Dear Dad, can it be true,
One year has passed since God called you?
The call was short, the shock severe,
To part with this one we loved so dear
When evening shades are falling
And we are sitting alone
In our hearts there comes a longing,
If you could only see that home.
Sadly missed by his wife and daughters

In loving memory of my beloved husband and our dear father, John Henry Gehle, who departed from us one year ago, June 15, 1926.

He bid no one a last farewell
He said good-by to none
His loving heart had ceased to beat
Before we knew he was gone.
His cheery smile and kindly ways are pleasant to recall
He had a kind word for everyone
And died, beloved by all.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear mother, Lena Ranft, who departed this life June 19, 1923. Sadly missed by her daughter and all who loved her.

EDNA RANSOM.

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Wm. F. Gracksieck, who departed this life one year ago, June 21, 1926, aged 86 years.

Days of sadness oft come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow.
Love shall always keep you near us,
Tho' you left one year ago.
In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lonely hearts will love to linger
Around the grave where daddy's laid.
Sadly missed by
MR. and MRS. FRED W. REMMERT,
And Children.

In loving remembrance of Arthur Stratmann, who departed this life one year ago, June 20, 1926.

We had a little treasure once,
He was our joy and pride.
We loved him, ah, perhaps too well,
For soon he slept and died.
All is dark within our dwelling,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever passed away
Sadly missed by
HIS PARENTS, BROTHER AND SISTERS AND ALL WHO LOVED HIM.

In memory of Clara Bertha Caudle, who departed this life June 10, 1922.

A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One whom was better God never made;
A wonderful worker, so loyal and true,
One in a million—that, mother, was you.
Just in your judgment, always right,
Honest and liberal, ever upright.
Loved by your friends and all whom you knew.
Our wonder-mother—that, mother, was you.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, HER CHILDREN.

PLOT TO KILL THREE PERSONS CHARGED AGAINST 2 WOMEN

Disguised Detectives Had Part in Plans, New Jersey Prosecutor Says.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., June 18.—A plot in which Miss Bessie Morse, 40 years old, was alleged by Prosecutor John E. Toolan to have conspired with a Negro maid to slay her aged father and mother, and then decided to kill three other relatives, was alleged tonight with the arrest of the two women.

Miss Morse and Mamie Todd, 21, the maid, were held in $7000 bail each on charges of conspiracy to take the lives of three persons. Toolan said the maid had confessed.

The arrests followed weeks of bargaining between the women and his disguised detectives, he said, and were made tonight after Miss Morse insisted the officers carry out their part of the agreement to slay her sister, brother-in-law and their son.

Miss Morse denied the allegations. She is the daughter of George F. Morse, 84 years old, a wealthy retired farmer of Prospect Plains, near here.

Toolan declined to disclose a motive for the alleged conspiracy. He said he sent two detectives to the farm to dicker with the women. After weeks of plotting, it was decided to throw a bomb at the intended victims tonight, the official said.

Tooth Removed From Lung.

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, June 18.—Arriving here today on a fast train from the west, Mrs. H. Davis of Galveston, Tex., was taken to the Jackson clinic at the Jefferson hospital, where a tooth was removed from her lung by means of a bronchoscope. The first attempt was successful. Several days after she had a number of teeth extracted in Galveston, Mrs. Davis felt a pain in her lung. An X-ray photograph revealed the presence of the tooth.

LINDBERGH ESCAPES CROWD THROUGH RUSE AT HOTEL

Flyer Uses Freight Elevator and Rear Door to Leave the Coronado for Knight Home.

After the ball game, Col. Lindbergh had the afternoon to himself, and there was much speculation as to what he would do. He first asked to go back to the Hotel Coronado, and it was thought he might take a nap in his room. The return to the Coronado, however, proved to be only a ruse.

Through a lane of eager thousands, held back by police, he walked briskly from the curb to the hotel entrance, going upstairs immediately, it was said, to change his costume. Instead, he ducked into a freight elevator and in this fashion got downstairs, unknown to any save his escort. He then slipped out a rear door and boarded another automobile, and was whisked away to the home of Harry Hall Knight in the county.

MUNITIONS OF WAR SEIZED

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., June 18.—Two truck loads of munitions of war seized yesterday by Department of Justice Agents near Santa Barbara, Cal., as they were headed from San Francisco to Mexico, were under guard here today while Federal officers awaited the arrival of a gun-running vessel expected to put in for shipment.

Meanwhile a man, said to be a wealthy arms dealer of San Francisco and head of the company from which the supplies were purchased, was being shadowed.

Mexican Decree Not U. S. Boycott.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, June 18.—The recent decree of President Calles forbidding the Mexican Government to purchase American products directly in the United States, became officially effective today. There had been some speculation in American circles whether the decree ever would be officially published. The Foreign Office already had declared that the decree was not intended as a boycott of American goods, which still can be purchased through a Mexican agency.

YIELDS PER ACRE GAIN FOR 40 YEARS

U. S. Survey Finds Northwestern Section Especially Noting Crop Increases.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Increased production of the important food and feed crops during the last 40 years is due in a considerable measure to the increase in yield per acre, according to B. O. Weitz, agricultural economist of the United States Department of Agriculture.

This acre-yield increase has been most notable in the long-settled northwestern section of the United States, where some of the land has been supposed by many to be wearing out.

Since the population is growing steadily and most of the good land suitable for cultivation has already been taken up, the problem of soil productivity and fertility in relation to the future food supply will become a more and more important phase of land ultilization.

The future trend of acre yields can best be estimated on the basis of past performances, says Mr. Weitz. Since 1883 the average yield per acre of corn in the United States has increased about 18 per cent, and potatoes about 40 per cent.

During this 40-year period the combined acreage of corn, wheat, oats and potatoes has been expanded about 52 per cent, whereas the total production of these crops has increased 77 per cent.

It seems safe to assume that developments in the coming years with regard to acre yield will depend as in the past to a great extent on the prices of agricultural products.

DEMPSEY'S RETURN TO RING SAVES OUTDOOR SEASON

SHARKEY HAS YET TO SHOW TITLE CLASS

Without Dempsey's Massive Wallop This Year's Championship Campaign Would Have Seemed Innocuous.

By John E. Wray,
Sports Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Jack Dempsey [illegible] back after all—a fact that will save the outdoor fistic season from dull despair. "No Dempsey, no color," was the way the promoters and the fans had it worked out. A proposed battle between a Sharkey and a Tunney had little appeal to the b[illegible] of the [illegible]ns. It meant a contest of [illegible]ting, blocking and backing [illegible] on both sides—a struggle of much head and foot work but of little thrill.

Tossing Dempsey int[illegible] the back[illegible] [illegible] a [illegible]ht. For Dempsey is not the [illegible]d to hang back and [illegible] hey. He is there to m[illegible] fight and it never fails to be o[illegible] through any fault of his.

Thus at least one good bout will be assured the [illegible] This will be on July 21 at Yankee Stadium when Dempsey meets Jack Sharkey, the Lithuanian aspirant to wor[illegible]ors.

If there is any miscarriage of the mayhem and managing, so dear to the [illegible] worshipper of ring stuff, it will not be because of Dempsey.

It's Up to Sharkey.

The making or marring of ring history, in the calends of July, will be strictly up to what Sharkey does. That will be plenty, to hear Boston tell it. In the Hubtown, Sharkey is running a close [illegible] to the late John L. Sul[illegible] prestige. Although he is of Lithuanian parentage and was born in New York, Boston has [illegible] very own.

And yet only a few months ago Sharkey bore the reputation of being a cautious fighter who could not hit hard—exactly the opposite to the great John L. in ring qualities.

In fact, outside of Boston and New York, where the ballyhoo of the elimination series still sways the popular mind, there is a tendency to wait and see before accepting Sharkey as one of the elect.

A trip through the record book fails utterly to efface the opinion that Sharkey must yet be proved. Fighting his fourth year, until late last season he had encountered no foe worthy of consideration. In fact, he had been knocked out by an Indian light heavyweight, Leo Cates, and he had been beaten by Maloney, and was on the road to a knockout at the hands of the same opponent, who, however, lost on a foul. He was seven times on the floor in that bout.

Unable to Stop Third Raters.

Last year he showed improvement, but the quality of opponents picked for him was not good. Joe Stoessel of ham-and-egg fame; George Cook, beaten on all sides; Charley Weinert, burned out and all in; Tony Stabenav, Art de Kuh, Franz Diener and Harry Persson made up the list of his opponents. Of these he was unable to knock out any foe of merit. Harry Persson, Diener and Cook all lasted the full distance.

Not until he boxed Harry Wills and battered that ancient ebony structure until Wills committed a foul, did he attain any real fame. In the surprise over his victory it was forgotten that the big and uncouth Firpo had given Wills a hard 10-round fight two years before; and that Wills had been idle and grown older since that time. Sharkey was proclaimed a "coming champion" and thrown into the heavyweight eliminations.

In these he undoubtedly proved the best man, stopping McTigue by an accident and Maloney in dead earnest.

His real merit then, is best attested by his knockout of Maloney, a bigger man than himself. If one can believe Maloney the equal of Dempsey or Tunney, then he can concede Sharkey a chance to beat both Dempsey and Tunney.

The writer saw Sharkey beat McTigue. The little man was gradually being worn down by weight and power, but up to the time of his accident McTigue had not only made a good fight of it but he had socked Sharkey savagely not a few times.

The Way to Destruction.

Sharkey fought forwardly and aggressively and this played into the hands of McTigue. It can be said in passing that if Sharkey goes to Dempsey as he went to McTigue, there will be an end to Lithuania's "hope" in world's championship circles. Dempsey still packs the dynamite despite his nearly 32 years.

Sharkey's fear of Dempsey's hitting power may force him to mount his bicycle and wheel out of harm's reach. Tunney discovered the way to beat Dempsey—and even then it might not have been the way, had the former champion been free from mental worries.

Although another idle year will have passed since Dempsey lost his title, when Dempsey faces Sharkey it will be a BETTER Dempsey, in one respect. The cares of law courts will be off his shoulders and the rough-riding of that Old Man of the seas, Jack Kearns, will not be in evidence. Dempsey all but carried subpenas and deputies into the ring with him, so closely was he hounded. He was in court the day before he fought Tunney. Every waking moment he was made to know that the hounding of Kearns would not cease. Almost the day of the fight there was still doubt if Dempsey would be allowed to keep his date with the challenger.

Relieved of that load this year Dempsey will be mind-free to work out his redemption. The writer does not think he has gone at the task properly and therefore can not fully believe in the champion's recovery. Dempsey will find it hard to regain in three months that which he has neglected for all those years—fighting intuition.

He will have to face a much younger man, one who has been fighting all the time and improving, and who has proved that, at times, he can both box and hit. He is on the up-grade and Dempsey is tobogganing.

And yet it is hard to forget that one quick hook of either Dempsey's right or left can nullify all calculations and all science. Jack has what almost no other fighter in the ring today—what no other champion in any weight division possesses—a SURE knockout shot, in a SINGLE PUNCH. Jack Delaney has it, now and then. Dempsey has it always—he only needs to land it.

Pulling for Dempsey.

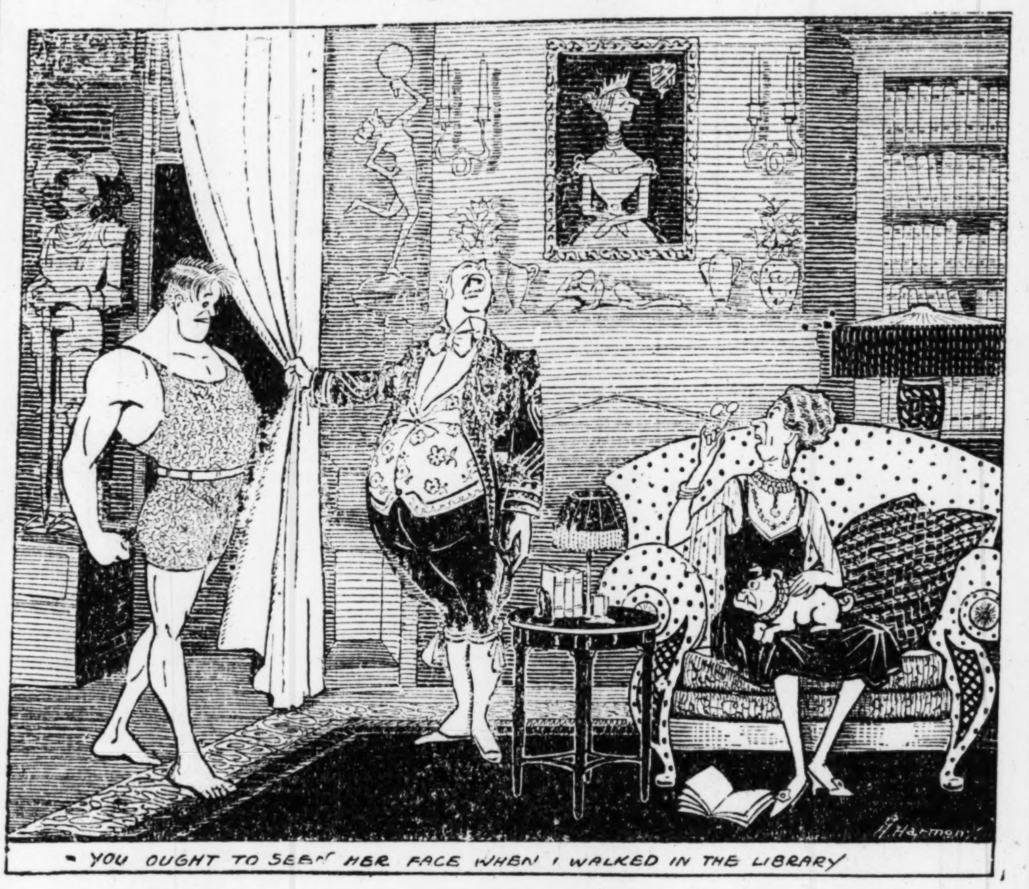
One always hopes that Dempsey will beat Sharkey. The latter, being young, still will have his shot at the kingship. All that vast throng that sat through the rain and saw Dempsey whittled down by a fighter who backed away, and even ran, would like to see if it was the real Dempsey Tunney defeated that night, or just a worried victim of many lawsuits.

To find that out Dempsey must whip Sharkey. Can he?

K. O. Frisbie Enters Social Swim

—As Bouncer on a Private Bathing Beach

No. 11—A Prize Fighter's Letters to His Manager



"YOU OUGHT TO SEE'N HER FACE WHEN I WALKED IN THE LIBRARY

Splendid Physical Specimen Spurns Boys and Gals of the 400 and Tends to Business.

Society Buds Watch in Admiration as Future Champion Bashes Angry Anthony, Policeman of the Rival Beach.

By Walter Davenport.

EVENTS RECITED IN PREVIOUS LETTERS

HARVEY (K. O.) FRISBIE is a young chauffeur, 18 years old, who writes Patsy O'Brien, a hard-boiled but human prize fight manager, in an effort to enter the famed O'Brien fighting stable. The latter looks over Frisbie and finally lets him in.

Aside from his ring proclivities, Frisbie is the self-appointed successor to Rudy Valentino as the world's leading sheik. O'Brien is slightly alarmed at his charge's being a fighting wolf in sheik's clothing and attempts to discourage the boy from high stepping, with no very effective results. Right now, K. O. Frisbie is quite sure he can bowl over Paolino, Sharkey or Tunney. He craves action with a headliner.

After watching Harvey polish off a number of tough second-raters, O'Brien secures the boy a summer job as life saver at ultra fashionable Belgravia Beach. The lay of the land is that Mrs. Blish, who owns half the beach, is crazy about fighters and wants one to add tone to her swimming domain. On the other hand, Mrs. O. N. T. Sledge, Mrs. Blish's sister, is also pug-crazy, but owing to a terrific squabble with her sister has ended diplomatic relations with the Blishes, taken over the other half of the beach as her territory, and engaged another canvas kisser for a life saver.

The go-between in the Blish-Frisbie deal is T. Quincy Blish III., son of Mrs. Blish, the elderly beach czarina and cauliflower fancier.

DEAR Patsy:

This was my first day working for old Mrs. T. Quincy Blish on her exclusive end of Belgravia Beach and if it was not that I am a boy who can understand people and not get sore at an old lady they would not been any first day but I would of quit.

She is about 60 years of age and if she did not have more dough than the mint she would be a bigger man than Tex Rickard and be my manager and get me a fight with Tunney because she has a lot of influence and owns a couple of railroads.

Anyway I got down here last night, bag in baggage and this morning a couple of butlers come to me and said the madam wanted to see me in the library. I began using my head and put on my bathing suit. You ought to seen her face when I walked in the library which was full of good books. I was not surprised because i am not a bum in a bathing suit as you know.

"Well," said Mrs. Blish, "I certainly am glad to see somebody is ready to go to work around here. Did you bring any other clothing?"

Stand Back, Ladies.

I COULD see she liked her kidding and as you know I can gag back and forth with anybody so I said, "Who cares" and busted out laughing.

"Well," she said, "I am in favor of not taking any chances so do not forget that you have some other clothing once in a while. I am liable to have guests who will stop at nothing, especially young ladies. What I wanted though was to tell you what you are here for. The upper half of this beach is mine and the rest is my sister's. We are both very old and very foolish and have not spoken to each other since the Dempsey and Tunney fight in Philly last fall because she thinks Dempsey took it on the lam for money and I think Tunney won on the square, see?"

"Yes," I said still gagging with her, "even the rain fell for that fight."

"Listen," she said, "your job around here is to keep my beach clear of reporters, my sister's guests and other reasons for feeling bad. Go on down there now and let us have peace. If you see a big crime on my sister's side of the line named Anthony pay as much attention to him as possible and make it real tough. She hired him like I hired you, so don't be delicate."

"Am I the life saver on your beach, too," I said.

"Well," she said, "do not put yourself out any more than you have to. The main thing is to see that we are not annoyed. A real lady or gentlemen would rather be drowned than annoyed any day."

Spurns Society Buds.

SO I went on down to the beach which was full of society buds of both sexes feeling like I was a cop and a bouncer and not a life saver and if it wasn't that I did not want to disappoint old Mrs Blish I would of quit because I come down here to be a life saver and not a flat foot.

The first thing I did was pay no attention to the society buds but walk right down to the end of our beach to look for Anthony. The name they got for him is Angry Anthony because he come from Sweden when he was a boy.

Between you and I, I do not think he ever was what you could call a boy because to tell the truth all I could see when I got down there was this Anthony who looks like they must of hired him by the car load. Jess Willard would be his little brother. I thought to myself that if I ever had to hit this big leftover on the chin I would have to step back quick because it would be like the post office falling on you.

"Halt," he said not knowing who I was, "you cannot go any further because this is a private beach and we are pretty particular."

"I can see it is," I said. "Because the public would never stand for what I see."

"Excuse me," he said. "I made a mistake. Come on over. My license to work on saps like you is good over here."

Anthony Gets Kayoed.

"ALL right," I said stepping over. "Afterwards when you wake up I will tell you who you are working on."

"Afterwards," he said, "nobody will want to know what your name was because all they will be calling you will be the remains."

He lifted one right out of the sand and if he had of wrote me from Chicago I would not of had more time to duck. I come up inside and hooked one to his chin and by the time the buds come running up I was a block away thinking what a lovely day it was. He came down so hard that he was down to his belt in the sand.

But old Mrs. Blish was sore as a new cauliflower ear. She said her sister would sue her now sure.

"But I will say you got a honey of a left hook," she said.

Some people are very hard to suit and are always looking for something to find fault about which is why I alwa s say every boy ought to learn to box when he is very young because if a boy knows how to hold up his hands when he is young he will not go around looking for trouble but will be peaceful and people will let him alone because they know he will smack them on the chin.

So that is all for the first day. Maybe there will be something doing in a day or two and if so, will let you know. I will say this for this place, they swing a heavy feed bag. I now weigh 210 pounds.

K. O. FRISBIE.

DEAR Frisbie: Don't be discouraged. You did pretty good for the first day and I won't be a bit surprised if you would attract a lot of attention from the folks down there at Belgravia Beach before the season is over. Only don't rush. What I mean, don't knock it over. We got a long summer before us and I see a lot of good boys running around wondering if they will make it.

Also don't keep your nose in the Blish feed bag all day. You are ten pounds over weight now and after a boy gets to weigh more than 200 all he amounts to is more boy and more there is of him the harder it is for another boy to miss him with a merry-go-round right.

Remember, you want to be champion and the gate to the championship is not as wide as a lot of guys think. A lot of boys who get as far as the gate find they are too fat to squeeze through.

Watch Them Dames.

ANYWAY I am glad to see you got by the first day without letting any of the little society buds date you up. Or are you holding out on your manager? Don't kid those swell fluffs too much because they are weak and it is my experience that a lady can go on being a lady just so long and after that she will be a couple of years of bad news especially dames who don't have to work for a living.

If you find you can't help it once in a while be sure you are only breezing one frail at a time. That is about the only rule there is about women folks.

A couple of years ago a big, healthy young fellow was wading through the heavyweights like a kid in an ice cream blizzard. You wouldn't of give a nickel against his chances of being champion the way he was going. He could even miss a guy so hard that the guy would fold up and take a count of 10.

One Career Shot.

HE met a couple of girls at a movie ball one night and did not have any more sense than to try to drag them both thinking neither of them would let on to the other. He is a night watchman in a paper cup factory now and the ladies are still going to movie balls.

Well, try to keep out of the social register and if you have to take a sock on the chin be sure it ain't a woman that does it because when a woman socks some guys they stay socked and sometime I think you are one of them.

4 Valley Track Champions Enter National Meet

Conger, Caulum, Wirsig and Stephens Will Strive for Honors.

LINCOLN, Neb., June 18.—Four Missouri Valley champions have signified their intention of competing in the National Amateur Athletic Union track and field championships at Nebraska Memorial Stadium, July 1, 2 and 4.

The Valley titleholders are Ray Conger and Linus Caulum of Iowa State, and Frank Wirsig and Bobbie Stephens of Nebraska.

Conger in addition to winning the Valley mile honors, copped the National Collegiate crown by winning the mile race at the Chicago meet in four minutes, 17 6-10 seconds. Caulum, captain of the 1928 Ames track team, is a Valley half-mile champion and proved one of the outstanding middle distance runners of the college season.

Wirsig established a new Missouri Valley Conference record for the pole last month when he cleared better than 13 feet, four inches. Stephens, who captained the 1927 Nebraska squad, won conference broad jump honors at the 1926 outdoor and 1927 indoor meets. A muscle injury kept him out of the 1927 championships. Stephens also holds the Missouri Valley indoor broad jump record.

Caulum, Wirsig and Stephens will compete in the junior championships.

Four Southern Stars.

Harold Trumble, Art Easter and Fait Elkins are also booked to appear in the A. A. U. meet. The trio is included in Coach Henry F. Schulte's University of Nebraska freshman track squad. Trumble won the national interscholastic high hurdle championship in 1926.

The Southern A. A. U. Association will send four athletes to the championships, according to information received from L. DiBenedetto, secretary of the southern organization.

Sid Robinson of Clinton, Mass., who will run for the Meridian A. C. in the senior mile and half-mile, is the first southern entry. Robinson won the Southern Association mile championships with a mark of four minutes 24 seconds and finished second in the 880-yard run which was clocked in one minute 57 seconds.

The entry of F. E. McCaffree of Ann Arbor, Mich., has also been received. McCaffree, who will compete unattached, will enter the junior hammer throw and the decathlon.

JUNIOR BARGE RACE SLATED FOR TODAY

The St. Louis Rowing Club will open the season today with a barge race of one and a quarter miles downstream for juniors.

In addition to the North End crew, which won the event last Sunday, the St. Louis crew, which took second place, and the No. 1 Western crew, which took third in the same race, the Baden, Central and the Western No. 2 crews will be entered.

The race will start at 3:30 p. m. and finish opposite the clubhouse, 2600 South Wharf. William Bentlage will be starter and Arthur Eilers referee.

MITCHELL IS AGAIN READY TO PLAY GOLF

LONDON, June 19.—Abe Mitchell, who should have captained the British Ryder Cup team, but underwent an operation is practically fit again. He is confident of making a bold show in the big professional tournament to take place in July, when it is expected a large number of Americans will take part.

Wisconsin Loses To Washington In Rowing Events

Varsity and Junior Crews From West Win in Two Races.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON Wis., June 18.—Out of the far West came 16 masters of the silver-tipped oars to conquer Wisconsin's varsity and freshmen eights today in a beautiful exhibition of a picturesque sport over a two-mile course.

Washington's smooth-stroking six-footers swept to victory in two races, the varsity defeating the Badger Varsity with ease and their junior varsity leading Wisconsin's freshmen across the finishing line.

The Washington varsity men steadily stroked their way to a five-length victory while the juniors spurted in the last quarter of a mile to leave a fighting yearling eight scarcely two lengths behind.

The junir crew rowed the distance in 11:14.2, while the varsity completed the course in 10:55 1-5.

The Washington troupe and the Wisconsin freshmen prepared for trips to Poughkeepsie this afternoon, where they will be entered in the annual intercollegiate regatta, June 29.

Barnes, Kamman, Win In Doubles At Net Tourney

St. Louisans Defeat Shreveporters; O'Connell Takes Singles Title.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TEXARKANA, Tex., June 18.—Charles Barnes and Karl Kammann, St. Louis net stars, lobbed their way to victory in a hard-fought clash with two Shreveport players here this afternoon to win the Arkansas doubles crown in the State tennis tourney.

Barnes and Kamman, matched with Bill Barrett and George O'Connell of Shreveport, were hard pressed from the opening serve in the first set whihc went to deuce, 7—5, with the verdict falling to the St. Louis pair.

Smashing through to a 6—4 victory in the second set, Barnes and Kamman slipped in the third mix-up and narrowly escaped being whitewashed, a rally taking one game of a 1—6 set.

O'Connell and Barrett, with placement shots, annexed the fourth set by a 6 to 4 count, knotting the set count at two each, with the fifth and deciding clash finding players weary. Lobbing their returns just over the net wtih the backspin holding the ball to the ground, Barnes and Kamman took the fifth and winning set 6 and 2 to wrest the crown from the two Shreveporters.

O'Connell, who defeated his fellow-townsman for the singles championship today, eliminated Barnes yesterday in four sets, 6—2, 6—3, 3—6, 7—5, blasting hopes of Mound City racquet wielders for a clean sweep of major honors.

Archie Hollier of Shreveport won the junior singles title by defeating Harold Burman of Oklahoma City.

HE FOUGHT A SHARK WITH HIS BARE HANDS

Heroism of Australian Boy, Trying to Save a Comrade, Wins Medal From The King of England.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SYDNEY, Australia

STANLEY GIBBS now wears the Albert Medal and all Australia concurs in the opinion that he richly deserved it. This is the British Empire's highest award for the heroism of the civilian and it was pinned upon the coat of the 18-year-old postal clerk recently by no less a personage than the Duke of York. It was bestowed in recognition of the youth's display of courage when he dived into a flurry of sea foam stained with blood and, fighting with his bare hands and feet, wrested from the teeth of a 12-foot shark the mangled form of a younger companion. The younger boy, Mervyn Allum, 15 years old, died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital. But young Gibbs' failure to save the boy's life detracted nothing from the measure of his heroism. The general sentiment indicates that if there had been a higher award to give, the youthful postal clerk would have received it.

Like most chronicles of heroic exploits, the story of Gibbs' adventure is a simple tale without elaborate setting or spectacular ramifications of plot. Without warning, the emergency arose and without hesitation or deliberation the hero hurled himself to meet it. It was all over quickly. An instant before the man-eater seized its victim the boys were at play, with little thought of tragedy or danger. Gibbs had no thought that in a few seconds he would be called upon to risk his life in a fight for the life of another. He was having fun. Then, like a flash, the danger appeared and tragedy stared him in the face. He left off having fun and sprang to the business of a death struggle. When it was over he had to stop and think before he could realize just what had happened or what he had done.

Gibbs and Allum and several other boys were engaged upon a week-end holiday party at Gray's Point, Port Hacking, a beach resort on the coast not far from Sydney. It happened early this year. Gibbs and several of his companions left that morning for a short trip in a motor launch, but while casting off they lost the anchor. They let it go, intending to conduct a search for it when they had returned. When they got back, shortly after noon, they found Mervyn Allum and two other boys splashing about in the shallow water, about 20 yards from the shore. They were searching for the lost anchor, diving here and there and exploring the bottom with their feet. The thought of a shark lurking in that shallow water had not entered their minds, although it was known that the season had been a bad one for sharks and numbers of them had been seen near shore as a result of the northward movement of the food supply of the deeper water. Those seen had shown every indication of hunger and unscrupulousness.

Just as the launch drew up, it occurred to somebody that splashing around in the water might be hazardous, and he shouted a warning to the swimmers. The boys dismissed his warning and went on with the search. The launch pulled up about 50 yards from the wharf and some of its occupants paddled ashore in a skiff.

Then, suddenly, a cry was heard. The party on shore heard a churning of water and saw a confusion of foam near the spot where

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN'S "COME-BACK" TINGED WITH SADNESS

Though His Professional Prestige Has Been Restored, the One Time Idol of the School Girls Sighs Over His Faded Romance With Beverly Bayne.

Francis X. Bushman as Messala in "Ben Hur."

HOLLYWOOD, California.

FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN, screen idol of other days, has "come back," as everybody knows. After lean years of waning popularity, complicated by heavy debts and other trouble, he has acted himself out of a hole almost as insurmountable as were some of those melodramatic pits he used to act himself out of as a hero of the films. Recent contracts in such roles as that of Messala in "Ben Hur" have brought him affluence. He lives on an elegant estate on the hills above Hollywood and has about everything that money can buy. But that is not enough. The life of the great screen lover of pre-war days is tinged with sadness. As a real life lover he has failed. Beverly Bayne, his partner of a romance which, back in 1918, quickened the pulse of every high school miss, has gone out of his life. And she says it is to stay.

Back in that period between 1910 and 1918, before 10-cent movie tickets went the way of the covered wagon, nearly everybody was a Bushman fan. His name on the posters in front of the old nickelodeons never failed to pack the house with an enthusiastic gathering that would applaud and stamp the floor. Cast usually as a Prince or an officer or a particularly elegant gentleman, he was a hero of heroes. He caused many a feminine heart to go pit-a-pat and turn completely over. Today, when so many actors are vieing for the crown of greatest popularity, there is nobody to compare at all with the Bushman of old as an idol. Nobody stands out above all others as he did. Even Rudolph Valentino at the crest of the Valentino wave did not hold a height so undisputed. If one went to the movies in those days and observed the reaction of a movie gathering to one of his pictures—"Graustark," for instance, a characteristic vehicle—it is easy to understand how he won a nation-wide contest as America's most popular screen actor.

THEN, when he married Beverly Bayne everybody said it was a perfect romance. Movie fans had grown familiar with the idea of a Bushman-Bayne romance. She had played opposite him in the films. She was the favorite heroine for Bushman pictures. Ruth Stonehouse used to play the leading woman's role in a number of his productions, but no picture was quite perfect unless Francis X., as all movie fans called him familiarly, was making love to the pretty and youthful Beverly. There was a picture called "One Wonderful Night." It was a sentimental piece, fairly dripping with sweetness. Done by the Bushman-Bayne combination, it sent even the little grammar school misses home bubbling and cooing. Nearly all of them wrote to Bushman for his picture and suffered pangs upon learning they had to pay 25 cents for it. All, naturally, were excited over the marriage of their favorite players, and older people, too, hailed the match as a triumph of ideal and idealized romance. And aside from sentimental considerations, it did seem fitting that these two who had won professional honors together should seek marital happiness together.

But, married, the Bushman-Bayne magic seemed to lose some of its potency. It was disclosed to the disillusionment of many a girlish fan that Bushman already had a wife and children. In her divorce action the first wife had named Beverly Bayne as the trouble maker. There were whispers of scandal and the glamour began to wear off. They appeared less and less frequently. There were several vaudeville tours which kept them more or less before the public, but eventually they almost dropped from sight and came to be regarded as "has beens" of the past, along with such one-time celebrities as Florence Lawrence, Maurice Costello, King Baggott, Broncho Billy Anderson and Lillian Walker.

MEANTIME, debts saddled the Bushmans and aggravated the heartbreak of fading popularity. There were several years when earnings were slim, and it seemed that Bushman had got his glory on credit and was now paying for it, with all the breaks against him. His young wife, however, stayed with him. Together they struggled against the tide of misfortunes and eventually they won. About 1923 both began to appear more often, and a year later recovery was assured when Bushman was awarded the role in "Ben Hur" and Beverly signed a fat contract with the Keith-Albee vaudeville organization. Once started, fortune came back as swiftly as it had fled a few years previously.

Just when it seemed they were again on top of the world, something went wrong. Nobody could find out what it was. No charges were made by either against the other, but news leaked out that they were separated, and before long Beverly was suing for divorce. A decree was granted on grounds of desertion. Through it all they remained tight-lipped. Not a word was said as to the real nature of their rift and their former admirers all over the world were agog with curiosity, for the estranged lovers had been considered the happiest and most "united" pair in screendom.

Now, after a year, during which both have prospered more than they ever did while married, comes their own stories of the wreck of their romance. These explanations—versions which differ somewhat—reveal them climbing back to success by different paths. In the last year the name of Francis X. Bushman has been steadily in the film spotlight and Beverly has won considerable popularity in vaudeville. Professionally, everything is rosy for the divorced pair, but their stories indicate that for one of them, at least, success has not brought contentment.

"I am sad and lonely," Bushman recently told an interviewer. "When Beverly and I were first married we did a successful vaudeville skit called 'The Poor Rich Man.' That is just what I am now.

"SHE married me when my fortunes were at the lowest possible ebb. I was $136,000 in debt. Beverly was marvelously sympathetic and pitched in with me to pay off the load of debt. We lived on as little as possible and applied everything above bare necessities to my creditors. Times were lean, indeed and we had a small son to take care of also; but she stuck by me. Then came the opportunity to play 'Romeo and Juliet' together and we came to Hollywood. Success was coming our way once more. But Beverly grew discontented—not over things that happened, but, I have always thought, over things that were said to her.

"I feared disaster. When I asked her to go to Rome with the 'Ben Hur' company she said she would not go with me. I left alone, with a heavy heart, but I still hoped she would remain true to me. At first, I received a steady stream of letters from her, but they grew fewer and colder. Days and weeks passed with no word at all. I wrote and cabled, but eventually replies even to the cables ceased. And suddenly I knew. All I feared had happened.

"I miss Beverly and I still want her. If she wishes to live away from me, I must defer to her wishes, however. Still, it seems too bad that, when we are both successful we cannot be happy as in the lean years and forget jealousies and idle tongues."

Thus the screen lover sums up his unhappy situation. Beverly, who is still in vaudeville, but considering various movie contracts, gives another version.

"IT HURTS me to talk about this thing," she declared as she wielded a brush before a mirror in her dressing room, "but since Mr. Bushman has seen fit to talk, it is fair that my side should be heard, too.

"I met Francis X. Bushman when I was not yet 16—a romantic high school girl who had got a chance in the movies by a trick of fate. We starred together for the old Essanay Company. The movies were young then and the stars were few, so we received publicity that would be almost impossible now in these days of competition.

"Naturally, I was thrown in Mr. Bushman's company a great deal. By and by I grew sorry for him. He was having such a hard time with his former wife and his terrible debts. Foolishly, I mistook this sympathy for love, and finally, in 1918, we were married.

"After a year I was sure that an actress should never marry an actor. I felt disillusioned and discouraged, but I did reverence my marriage vows. Francis was in terrible financial trouble and I decided that the only decent thing to do was to stick by him. Nearly every cent I earned went to help pay off the debts I had not helped to make. But I did this willingly while the breaks were against us.

"When Francis gained success, that put a different light on the situation. I felt that he no longer needed me. I had seen him through the hard days and now was my chance to live my own life. It was certain to me that we would do better separately.

"Mr. Bushman has continued to be successful, and I am very glad. But I would not think of going back to him. If I ever marry again it will not be with an actor. One temperament is sufficient in any family, I am convinced. I regret the necessity of divorce because of my son. A broken home is hardest on the children, I know. But I could see no other way out. I hope my little son will be a doctor or a lawyer; certainly not an actor. There are so many temptations and life is so uncertain. I guess all parents wish to spare their children the troubles they themselves went through, so I am going to do my best to start my boy in a business that is steady and sure to pay.

"Tell them that life looks good to me," she laughed as she fled from the dressing room. "I'm going straight back to my first love—the screen—and here's wishing myself the luck that only hard work can bring."

Leonie's Tragic Love "Quadrangle"

Leonie Gerard.

Victor Deprez Had His Wife, and the Mother of His Children Under the Same Roof, But Still His Fancy Strayed Until—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

PARIS.

THE people of this city of the world, they say, are the most sophisticated on the planet, and perhaps it is true. Paris, which is not only home for the Parisians and all the French, is home for thousands of citizens of every country on the face of the earth. Here is the great meeting place for mankind, and here is very much the center of art and kindred things. Life goes on in Paris in all its varied phases, strange things happen here, countless things, and these occurrences, coming to the ears of the citizenry of the capital, accustom these people so to strange stories that they nonchalantly listen to whatsoever the day may offer and calmly put it down as just something else that has happened in this Paris of theirs.

But even the Parisian will show interest if that which occurs is far enough outside of the common event. Quadrangles in love affairs are so unusual that even sophisticated Parisians, who are quite accustomed to triangles, elevated their brows when recently in the Seine Court of Assizes a most amazing intrigue was bared.

When, only a few months before, M. Victor Deprez, wealthy manufacturer, died, the death notices conveyed the impression that his passing was due to ordinary natural causes, and even his family and intimates took no steps to change that impression. The police, not having been notified of anything irregular, gave less than passing heed to the event. Deprez was well known, he was rated as wealthy, he had had many friends, but he had reached the age of 60, so it was considered just another death.

The funeral of M. Deprez was one in keeping with his wealth and station. His friends and relatives crowded to the services, he was wept for, many fine things were said of him. All that was mortal of him was laid to rest; his life was over; it could well be believed that his sojourn on this earth would live only in the memories of those close and dear to him. As for the public, it seemed he was forever forgotten.

BUT scarcely had the funeral taken place than Mademoiselle Leonie Gerard, manager of the Deprez factory, appeared at the office of the Prefect of Police.

She was asked what her business was.

She wished, she said, to make a statement concerning M. Victor Deprez.

But he was dead, they told her; what was there to say of M. Deprez?

"He is dead," she answered, "yes. But M. Deprez is not dead of illness or of age."

"What!" they said. "No, no. Of what, then, is he dead?"

"I killed him," she answered.

There were no scenes, no tears, no regrets on the part of the comely woman as she recited the events that had led up to the murder of the father of her three children. And it was this sworn statement of facts that not only convinced the Judges on the tribunal of the Court of Assizes, but the jury as well, that the cutting short of the career of M. Deprez was not entirely unjustifiable. In fact, the Public Prosecutor and the Court admonished the jury to deal with the defendant as leniently as possible. So Mlle. Gerard was exonerated and walked out of the court satisfied that she had done right.

Back in her home she was welcomed by Mme. Deprez, the legal wife of Deprez, who for upward of a quarter of a century not only has been her bosom friend but has cared for Leonie's three children. For Leonie had made her home with the family almost from the day she became the mistress of Deprez.

But what is even stranger still, the three illegitimate children Leonie bore Deprez were legally adopted by Mme. Deprez, who bestowed even more attention upon them than if they had been her own.

Fog enshrouded the boulevard de Clichy, and torrents of rain pelted that Paris thoroughfare on a drab autumn day in 1902, when a slim brunette girl of 17 entered the Deprez bicycle factory in quest of employment. At the information desk she was told there were no vacancies. But the youthful applicant insisted that if she could but see M. Deprez for a moment she was confident she could convince him of her business ability. M. Deprez consented, and within a few minutes he was convinced. The following day the little brunette, Mlle. Gerard, took her seat before one of the big ledgers in the office of M. Deprez.

IN HER home on that same day Mme. Deprez, wife of Victor Deprez, bicycle manufacturer, was enjoying almost every comfort possible for the wife of a well-to-do business man. Ten years before she had become the bride of Deprez, and for several years their life was a happy one. But there was a shadow upon the home. Both were fond of babies, but none arrived, and Deprez blamed his wife.

In the factory office, Leonie, with her raven tresses and hazel eyes, moved about like a sylph. She found new ways to cut expenses, increase production and create new markets. Her business acumen caused the profits to soar as never before, and Deprez began to look upon her as a real find. In a short time she became manager of the business.

It was not long thereafter that his constant contact with Leonie caused Deprez to take more than a business interest in his new clerk. He, turned 35, was a good dresser and not bad to look upon. Restaurant dinners and the theater became frequent events for Leonie. Deprez always had some excuse to give Mme. Deprez. It was not long before everybody in the factory knew that the proprietor and his new clerk were launched upon an "affair."

Within a few months Deprez had pressed his suit to the point where he agreed to divorce his wife and wed Leonie. To accelerate his plans, Deprez took Leonie to his home and boldly announced to his wife that she, Leonie, was to remain. So she decided to make the best of the situation. What was stranger still, she volunteered to remain in the house with her husband and his new companion.

A few months later Leonie gave birth to a child. Mme. Deprez nursed the young mother and infant and grew to love them. And so it was with two other children that Leonie subsequently bore Deprez, the legal wife giving to each of them the love and care a broken heart can lavish.

For 25 years this unusual triangle continued, the business prospering in the meantime and Deprez waxing rich as Leonie managed the concern at maximum efficiency. While Mme. Deprez cared for the children Leonie hurried off to work each morning, and in the office from 8 to 6 her agile brain and nimble fingers controlled and recorded the finances, the production, the purchases and sales of the Deprez factory.

BUT the now affluent Deprez was tiring of Leonie, and early in the winter of 1926 the young woman who had borne three children and piled up riches for him was not slow to notice the falling off in his affections. Even Mme. Deprez noticed it, and while in her heart she knew that Leonie was suffering the same agony that Leonie had caused her to suffer, she still felt sorry for her. In every dispute the legal wife sided with Leonie.

Unprotected by the law, without a marriage certificate, the mother of Deprez's three children, Leonie had but a precarious hold upon Deprez. But, while Deprez had succeeded in browbeating Mme. Deprez, he found Mlle. Gerard not so easy to master. She was ready to fight back at any time, and managed to hold her own with Deprez. It was then that the triangle became a quadrangle.

Employed in the plant in the spring of 1926 was a blonde young woman of the same age as Leonie when she had first entered it. She attracted the eye of M. Deprez. She was Mlle. Andree Delconnay, 17, petite, vivacious and pretty. It was not long before Deprez invited her to dinner and to the theater, and then he established her in an apartment in the Rue Rochechouart.

AFTER a violent scene in the office Leonie discharged Andree. The employes cheered their manager and hissed their employer, Deprez. But the latter continued to maintain his new favorite in style and to remain away from the house in which his legal wife and former paramour held sway.

It was then that Leonie began to droop and lose spirit. Her own behavior of a quarter of a century ago was being brought home to her. But still, Andree had not built up a business, Andree had not slaved to make Deprez rich. All she was doing was spending the money Leonie had accumulated for the man who now discarded her.

In her despair Leonie purchased a pistol, but was dissuaded from suicide by Mme. Deprez and others, who assured her Deprez would soon tire of his newly found love. Then, on the advice of physicians, Leonie went to the country for a rest. She was recovering her health and composure, until, suddenly returning to the factory, she found that Andree had been installed in her place as manager.

It did not take Leonie long to show Andree the way out and to tell Deprez several things she thought about him. But from day to day life in the plant became more and more unbearable. Finally the crisis came, 10 days before last Christmas.

LEONIE was preparing the annual inventory of the concern on December 15, when Deprez, becoming irritated and impatient, reproached her for being slow.

Leonie smiled and continued at her work. Her indifference stirred Deprez and fanned his fury. Rushing to a desk he picked up a heavy ledger and hurled it at Leonie. He was reaching for another book when Leonie walked deliberately to her cabinet, took out the pistol she had purchased to end her own life, and, turning, emptied the five chambers into Deprez as he was rushing upon her. He fell to the floor, and Leonie, calling up Mme. Deprez, told her:

"It is all over now. I have killed Victor."

But, although mortally wounded, Deprez did not die at once. He was removed to his home, and it was announced by his wife that he had been injured. Even when Deprez's sister came, he did not say he was shot. Six days later he died, and after the funeral Leonie surrendered to the police.

Mme. Deprez on the witness stand declared that she bore no malice toward Leonie, and declared that Deprez when dying urged that his slayer should not be brought to justice. Almost every employe in the plant appeared to testify in behalf of Leonie.

In the home of the late Victor Deprez, 10 days after Leonie had been cleared of the murder charge, the legal widow of Deprez, with his illegal companion and her three children, celebrated the forty-second birthday of the woman who was part of the triangle and made short shrift of the quadrangle in the domestic career of the bicycle manufacturer. The indications are that Leonie is to remain as manager of the business to which she has devoted a quarter of a century.

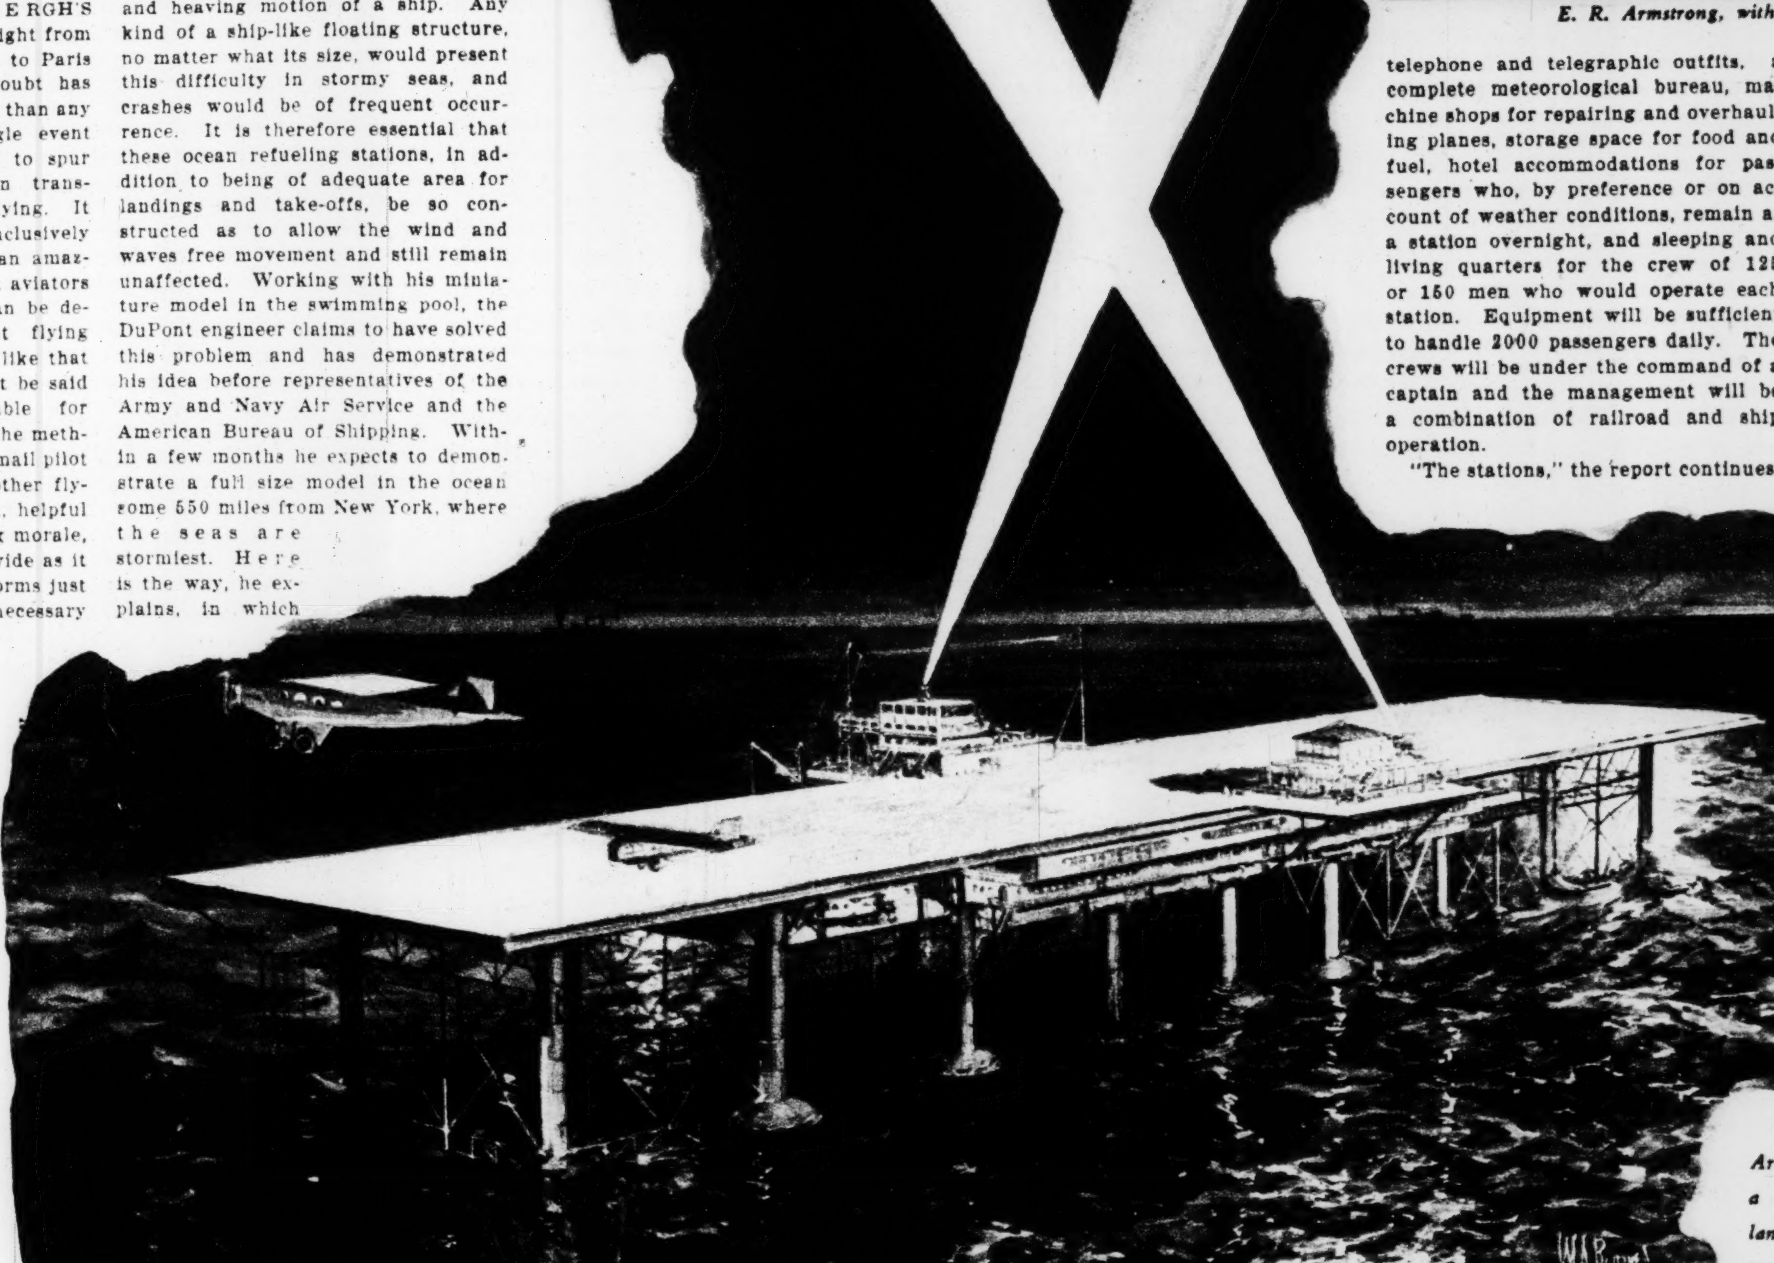
E. R. Armstrong, with a model of his seadrome.



Artist's conception of a mid-ocean airplane landing station or seadrome containing quarters for the crew, a hotel for passengers, fuel store rooms and other accessories.

CAPT. CHARLES A. LINDBERGH'S nonstop flight from New York to Paris without doubt has done more than any other single event in history to spur interest in transoceanic flying. It demonstrated clearly and conclusively that planes capable of such an amazing hop can be built and that aviators who can pilot them across can be developed. But with present flying equipment, even with planes like that flown by Lindbergh, it cannot be said that such a hop is practicable for commercial purposes or that the methods employed by the intrepid mail pilot could safely be adopted by other flyers. In spite of his conquest, helpful as it was in its effect on flying morale, the Atlantic remains just as wide as it ever was; its fogs and sleet storms just as formidable and the fuel necessary to keep a plane in the air 35 hours or so remains just as heavy. So the problem of how to carry mail, express and passengers cheaply and at regular intervals—a problem still unsolved—comes to the fore again with added interest.

With Lindbergh's conquest to serve as a guide and inspiration, however, it is entirely reasonable to suppose that within a very few years transatlantic airlines will be an accomplished fact. But in order to accomplish it with present equipment it is obviously necessary to devise means whereby part of a plane's carrying power may be devoted to other burdens than fuel. To meet this need a number of plans already have been suggested. One of these, indeed, has come in for particular attention since the Lindbergh flight.

This is a plan for stringing between New York and some important European point a chain of eight enormous rafts to serve as landing fields and refueling stations. It is proposed by Edward R. Armstrong, chief mechanical engineer of the DuPont Company of Wilmington, Del., who has devoted several months to experimentation with miniature working models in a swimming pool where, by artificial means, conditions are produced to resemble those of a stormy sea. The landing fields, 1200 feet long and 400 feet wide, would literally be floated on the surface of the ocean while great cables would anchor them to the sea bottom in water two and a half to three and a half miles deep. Each field, the inventor calculates, would cost about $1,500,000 to build.

ACCORDING to Armstrong's plan, these landing fields, or seadromes, would permit planes to make the New York-to-Paris flight in a series of hops of about 400 miles each along a selected route. Beneath the great platforms used for runways, machine shops for repairs, hotel accommodations for passengers and refueling facilities for the planes would be maintained so that passengers might make the 3600-mile trip to Paris with as much safety and comfort as would obtain on a transcontinental flight, and so that planes would need to carry fuel for 400 miles instead of 3600. Briefly, the project contemplates establishment of a regular transoceanic airline with a fleet of ships which would cut down the time of passage to Europe from seven days to something like 39 hours. And this with planes flying 115 miles an hour and making every stop. With craft flying 150 miles an hour and making only every other stop, he points out, it would be possible for a man to leave London at the close of one business day and arrive in New York at the beginning of the next. An "overnight" service from London to New York!

Obviously, one of the first requisites of an ocean landing field is a level runway, which would ride steadily above the waves without the pitching and heaving motion of a ship. Any kind of a ship-like floating structure, no matter what its size, would present this difficulty in stormy seas, and crashes would be of frequent occurrence. It is therefore essential that these ocean refueling stations, in addition to being of adequate area for landings and take-offs, be so constructed as to allow the wind and waves free movement and still remain unaffected. Working with his miniature model in the swimming pool, the DuPont engineer claims to have solved this problem and has demonstrated his idea before representatives of the Army and Navy Air Service and the American Bureau of Shipping. Within a few months he expects to demonstrate a full size model in the ocean some 550 miles from New York, where the seas are stormiest. Here is the way, he explains, in which he has eliminated the rolling movement of the waves.

By tests it has been shown that even in the roughest seas, only the surface is disturbed. Fifty feet below the surface the water is virtually motionless. Armstrong, therefore, proposes to build his rafts on steel supports, or legs, 185 feet long. The legs would terminate in damping disc buoys which, under the raft's weight of 18,000 tons, would float about 85 feet beneath the surface. This would place them in still water and the supports would lift the landing platform to a height of 100 feet or so above the surface—high enough to escape by 50 feet the highest waves. Only the steel framework would be exposed to the lashing of the waves, and that wouldn't make any difference because the waves would cut through and go rolling on. The surface of the steel supports would not be great enough to break them as the side of a ship would do. Armstrong demonstrated this feature when he put his model on display for the Air Service experts. Alongside his raft he placed a miniature model of an ocean liner, built on corresponding scale. Then, in the swimming pool, he stirred up waves which rocked the ship as the waves from a passing steamer might rock a canoe. The raft, however, remained as steady as if its legs had been fastened to the bottom.

"Each of the mid-ocean stations," says Armstrong in his description of the project, "will be equipped with complete sending and receiving radio telephone and telegraphic outfits, a complete meteorological bureau, machine shops for repairing and overhauling planes, storage space for food and fuel, hotel accommodations for passengers who, by preference or on account of weather conditions, remain at a station overnight, and sleeping and living quarters for the crew of 125 or 150 men who would operate each station. Equipment will be sufficient to handle 2000 passengers daily. The crews will be under the command of a captain and the management will be a combination of railroad and ship operation.

"The stations," the report continues, "will be assembled and constructed completely in a still-water harbor and towed to their position by tugs or propelled by planes blocked on the decks. They will then be anchored at their designated places along the route."

E. R. Armstrong.

ALMOST as extraordinary as the plan of construction is the method proposed for anchoring these huge floating air fields. The Armstrong anchoring system resembles in some respects the methods used by the United States Navy in making a survey of the Gulf Stream, in which anchorages were made at great depths, including many in water two and a half miles deep. Without some special device, ships could not be anchored in such water because the weight of a cable long enough to reach the bottom would sink the vessel. In the Armstrong system, however, provision is made for anchoring the seadrome to buoys around it and for anchoring these in turn to the sea bottom with a good deal of slack in the cable so that the strains upon it could not exceed those previously determined upon as within desirable operating limits of movement and unit stress.

Armstrong believes a field 1200 feet long would be ample to permit the landing or takeoff of any type of plane which might be used in the service.

"The Joint Committee on Civil Aviation of the United States Department of Commerce and the American Engineering Council," he writes, "recommended a landing field at least 2000 feet square. The Chief of the Air Mail Service concurs in this recommendation. The navy airplane carriers, the Saratoga and Lexington, which will shortly go into commission, have landing decks about 100 feet wide and 850 feet long. Between these two extremes the size adopted for the ocean route seadrome decks of 400 feet wide by 1200 feet long appears adequate and the equivalent, because of over-ocean flying conditions, of the 2000-foot flying field officially determined as most suitable for over-land air transport service. There are no obstructions to interfere with the approaching airplanes about to land on the decks of the anchored seadromes, which will, because of their construction and method of anchorage, always trail into the wind and by so doing give substantially an area of approach and first contact equal to the facilities provided at the foremost airports.

"The run required for landing and takeoff of the modern transport plane is typified by the new 14-passenger three-motored Handley-Page "Hampstead" Imperial Airways plane, which lands at 45 miles an hour and requires about 600 feet to pull up. In getting off, the run is about 850 feet. Airplane arresters for the reduction of the landing run have been developed by the navy and are being installed on the new carriers. Catapults for decreasing the takeoff run have reached a high state of development, also."

In order that the runway be of uniform width for its entire distance, the inventor plans to build the shop and hotel quarters beneath the platform, or, in other words, on the under side of the raft. It would also be possible to build them on projections at the side of the runway. Built on the sides, the structures might rise to a considerable height and support huge flood lights for illumination of the field. The achorage buoys on all sides of the field would be equipped with beacon towers and at intervals of 50 miles all along the course would appear route-marker buoys, also lighted. Then, at intervals of 200 miles, or half way between the fueling stations, refuge buoys would be placed. These would be rigged out with radio apparatus for use in the event of forced landings between stations.

THE inventor, however, does not anticipate much trouble on this score. He declares the probability of forced landings is very remote if the modern three-engined transport plane is used. According to operating data now available, this type of plane would be eight years old and worn out before a forced landing due to engine trouble would have occurred.

The terminals for the proposed line, says Armstrong, should be either at New York or Atlantic City in this country and at Plymouth, England. Thus would be established a more southerly route than is now traversed by the main steamship lines, and the worst storm areas of the Atlantic would be avoided. From those ports, then, connections could be made with commercial routes covering both continents.

The cost of this huge string of fueling stations, the inventor believes, would be negligible, in view of the commercial possibilities afforded. He figures the eight stations would cost approximately $12,000,000. The cost of intermediate refuge and route marker buoys, anchorage equipment and rescue boats is placed at $3,840,000 and the construction cost at $4,237,600, making the total cost of the system $20,077,600. To this he adds $8,000,000 a year for operation cost. But against this outlay of capital, Armstrong conceives of an income from passenger toll charges, at a rate of 1 cent per passenger mile, sufficient to justify the expense.

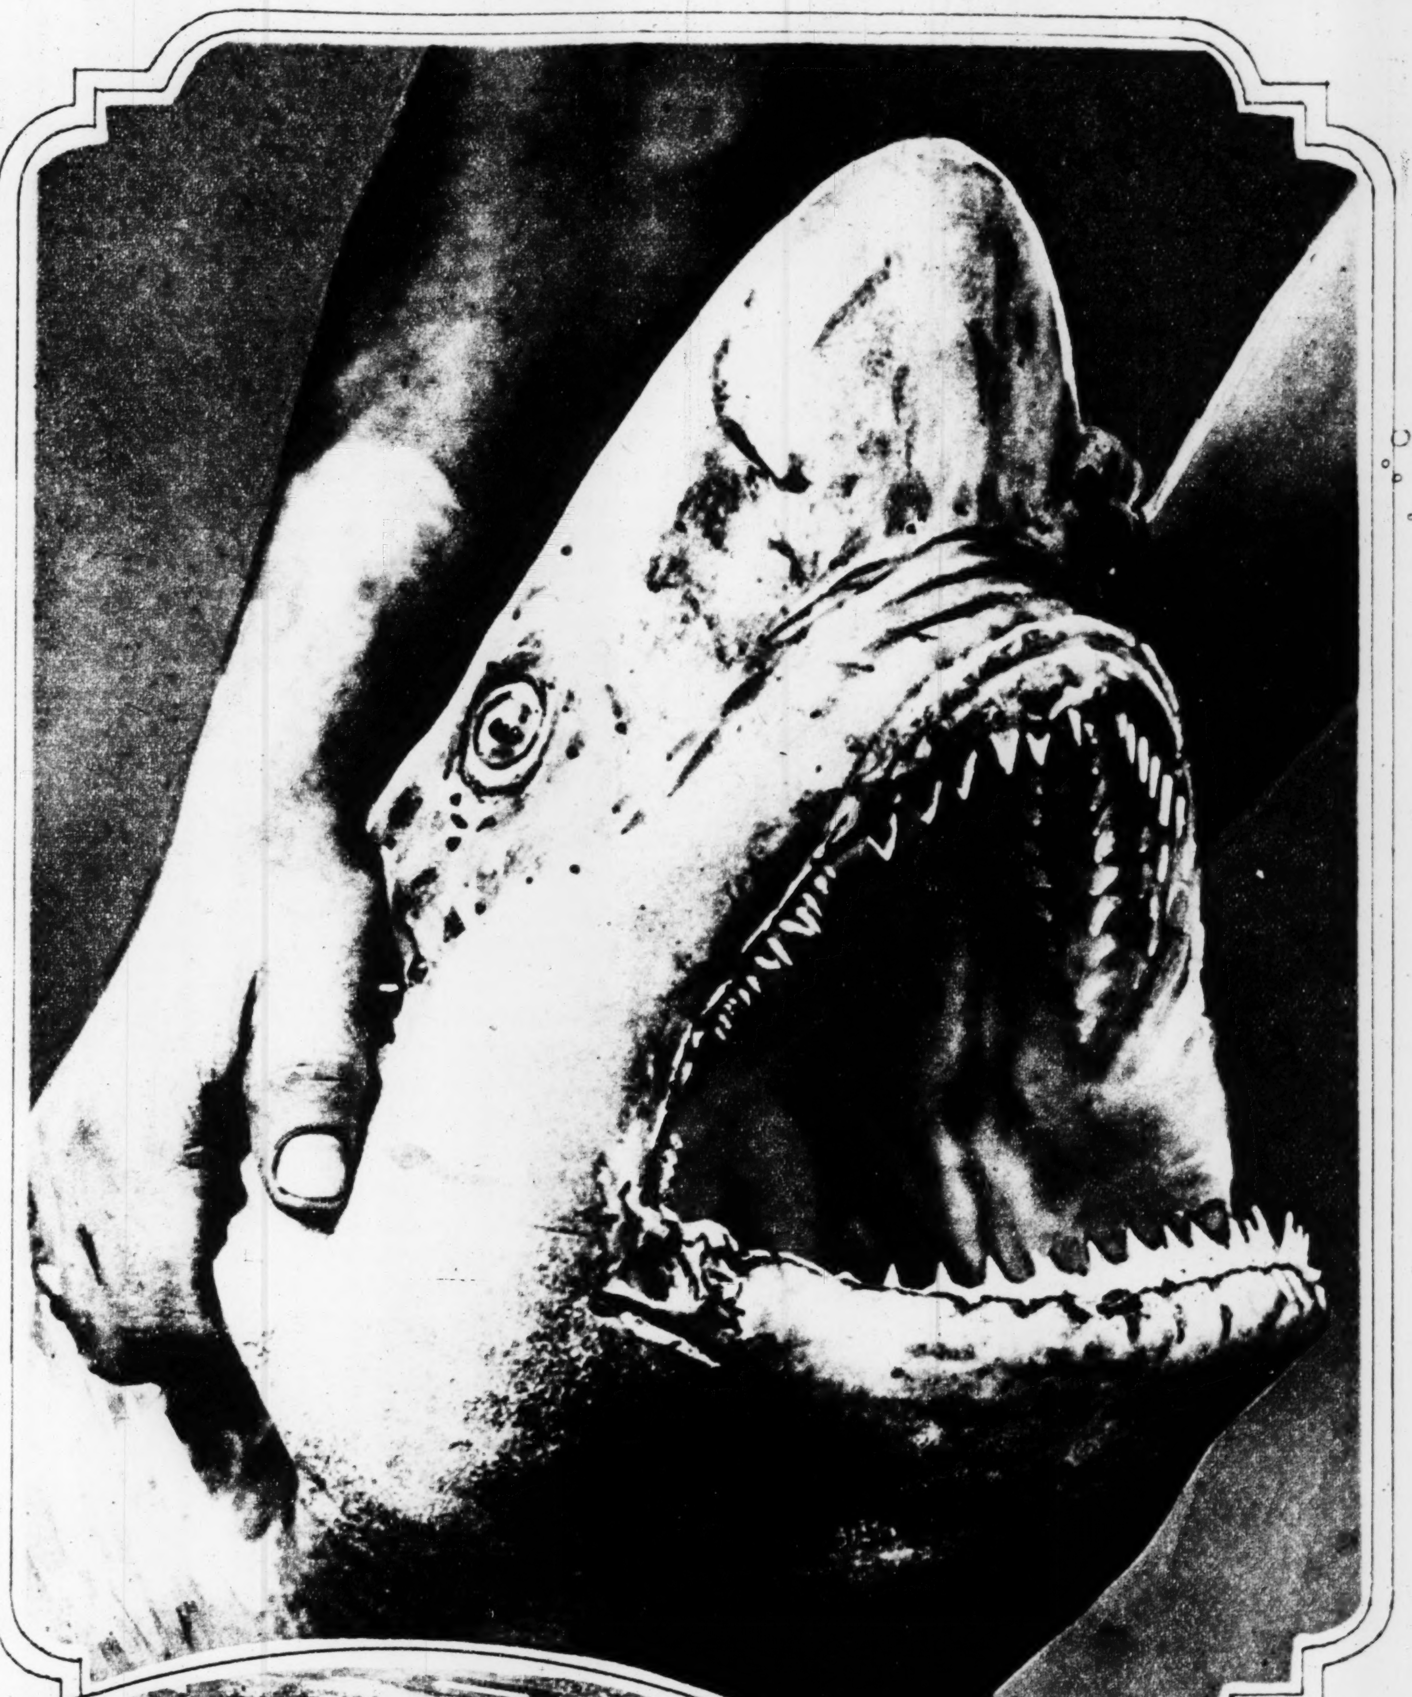
Fought Shark With Bare Hands



Head of a shark showing the teeth formation.

Stanley Gibbs, hero of the desperate fight.

Allum had been wading a moment before. They guessed the worst and ran, horrified, to the water's edge, uncertain about what course of action to pursue.

Gibbs, however, made a quicker decision. He had remained in the launch, and from this vantage point could see more clearly what had happened. Allum, screaming with pain, was being drawn under by the shark. The water about him already was stained with blood. Gibbs, who was a slender youth, but a strong swimmer, dived into the sea and struck out for the spot. He reached the boy and grasped his hand just as the victim's head disappeared beneath the water.

"Hold to my hand," he shouted as he dragged the boy up above the surface. Allum, in agony, clung to his comrade, while Gibbs struck at the shark with his free fist and kicked at it with his feet. By hammering it in this fashion, he daunted the monster and caused it to release its victim.

Allum, moaning in agony, was in a terrible condition. Half of one leg had been bitten and cut away, and he was half-dead already from shock. Gibbs kept talking to him. "Hold on," he urged. "You're all right now. I won't let it get you again."

BUT before they had covered half the distance to the shore the shark had gathered courage and rushed at them a second time. Gibbs describes the encounter as follows:

"I was treading water and holding on to Mervyn. The shark came at us from underneath. I felt my feet scrape its back. It then struck at Mervyn again and seized him by the injured leg. It was about to drag him away from me after all. I kept punching and kicking at it, and though that didn't do it any particular harm—for it could have dragged us both away had it paid no attention — the punching was a form of resistance new to it, and it was wary. Finally it let go again. That was all."

The shark swam off, frightened by the unusual assault Gibbs had made upon it. In the struggle he actually got astride the man-eater. Holding on by its dorsal fin, he kicked it in the ribs on both sides as a rider might kick a rebellious mule. By this time, however, one of the party had arrived in a skiff and dragged the two boys out of the water. Allum was unconscious and Gibbs' hand was bleeding from a cut received when he struck one of the shark's fins. People on shore had called an ambulance and Allum was hurried away to a hospital, but Gibbs' game fight had been in vain. Allum died before they reached the hospital.

The strange affray was one of the first ever heard of in which a man put a shark to rout with his bare hands, and it has gone into the records as a most exceptional exhibition of bravery. It was so extraordinary that many were not satisfied with the award of the highest civilian decoration and urged that military custom be stretched sufficiently to allow award of the Victoria Cross. Agitation in favor of this was heard for several weeks, but that award could not be made because the Victoria Cross, the decoration for supreme courage on the battlefield, is never given to civilians. The Albert Medal, for civilians most nearly corresponds to the cross for soldiers. The wearers of either are few and far between.

GIBBS is a modest fellow, who hesitates to speak of his adventure. After rescuers had dragged him out of the water, they then had to drag from his lips the story of just what happened. The onlookers were unable to see exactly what had taken place because of the terrific splashing and churning of water which accompanied the encounter. It was only at the Coroner's inquest into Allum's death that he told a complete story. He does not consider he did anything extraordinary.

The harbor at Sydney, Australia.

"It's no more than any chap ought to do for his mate," he said. "I was standing in the launch, about 20 yards from Mervyn, and was not looking in his direction when the shark first caught him. But I heard his cry and heard the cries of the girls on shore. As they screamed I looked up and saw the shark jump right out of the water. It showed almost the whole of its body. It was practically on top of Mervyn then. I dived in from the bow of the boat. When I got to him the shark was still alongside and there was blood on the water. It had almost severed one of his legs in the first grab, we found later.

"I called to him and reached for him. He was still conscious and held out his hand. I missed it at the first grab, but managed to grasp it on the second attempt. Just as I did so, the shark came at him again and pulled him under. I held on to him, but managed to keep my own head above water. In that tussle we went round and round and at one moment I felt myself standing on the thing's back. I gave it a kick then and seized its fin, but couldn't hold on and hold Mervyn at the same time. He was virtually helpless and becoming unconscious from shock and loss of blood. He was almost too weak to moan any longer. The kick must have frightened the shark, for it let go and darted away for a short distance. Then, as we were making for the shore, it came at us again and got Mervyn by the leg a third time. This time I managed to get astride it and held on for a moment by its fin and kicked it in the ribs with both heels. That put it to flight for good. It swam away and we didn't see it any more. We had help then, anyway. One of the men had arrived in the boat and was pulling us out."

View of a shark being hooked under water in Sydney harbor.

Gibbs' display of gallantry was praised by the Coroner as comparable to that of any great military hero. "In my opinion," he said, "Stanley Gibbs merits the Victoria Cross for his bravery and sacrifice, if such a distinction can be offered him. His heroic action will be brought under the notice of the Royal Humane Society."

Of course, it was impossible to bestow the Victoria Cross upon a civilian, but there was no trouble in obtaining the Albert Medal, the highest award it was possible for Gibbs to win. Two other holders of the medal sponsored him. Meetings of congratulation were held all over the city and a large sum of money was subscribed by the public for presentation to the youth as a testimonial of appreciation. Presentation of the medal was made by the Duke of York at a public reception held in the town hall, on the occasion of the arrival in Sydney of the King's second son.

Many of the eye witnesses on the shore saw the shark leap out of the water. They said, as did Gibbs, that it was at least 12 feet long. One of those who saw it was Allum's younger sister. A witness at the inquest testified he had difficulty in preventing her from rushing into the water to her brother's assistance.

The shark's persistence evidently was due to hunger. Apparently it had wandered into the shallow water in search for food and, having once tasted blood, was loath to leave its prey. Only when pressed by hunger do sharks venture so near the shore. When food is scarce, however, they become so daring that some varieties, such as the "whaler" shark, will enter shoals scarcely deep enough to float their bodies. For this reason, there is seldom the flash of a fin looping above the water to warn the swimmer of their approach. An incautious bather walking in shallow water is likely to step directly upon a lurking shark, which would not even need to turn over in order to bring its teeth into play.

THESE terrible fangs, sometimes triangular in form, with saw-shaped edges, can chop through a heavy bone as if it were soft as cheese. Some varieties of sharks have teeth which are not so good at the chopping stroke, but which are far more dangerous. They are shaped so that they interlock; so that once they have become fastened upon their prey they cannot be released. These monsters almost invariably drag away whatever they have bitten.

In the last few years there have been other cases of shark fatalities on Australian beaches, and some of them have been attended by examples of similar heroism. Milton Coghlan and Jack Gannon were killed by sharks, only a few months apart, on Coogee Beach, and in each case a courageous struggle was put up by life savers and swimmers in the vicinity. Other deaths have been those of Ernest Conroy, killed at Kiama in 1924; Charles Brown in the Parramatta River in the same year, and Jack Canning at Newcastle in 1925. Other persons have suffered terrible maulings, but have survived with the loss of limbs. Of all these, however, the exploit of Stanley Gibbs, the slender boy who put a 12-foot man-eater to flight with his bare fists, remains the most spectacular feat these shark-ridden waters have yet witnessed.

The killing of Coghlan occurred under circumstances similar to those in the recent case. He was attacked in shallow water and both arms were almost severed by the first snap of the monster's jaws. A returned soldier, Jack Chalmers, swam to the rescue and dragged Coghlan from the shark's fangs, and other swimmers rescued both. Coghlan died on the beach before medical attention could be obtained. Hundreds of persons witnessed the struggle from the shore, but were unable to lend aid.

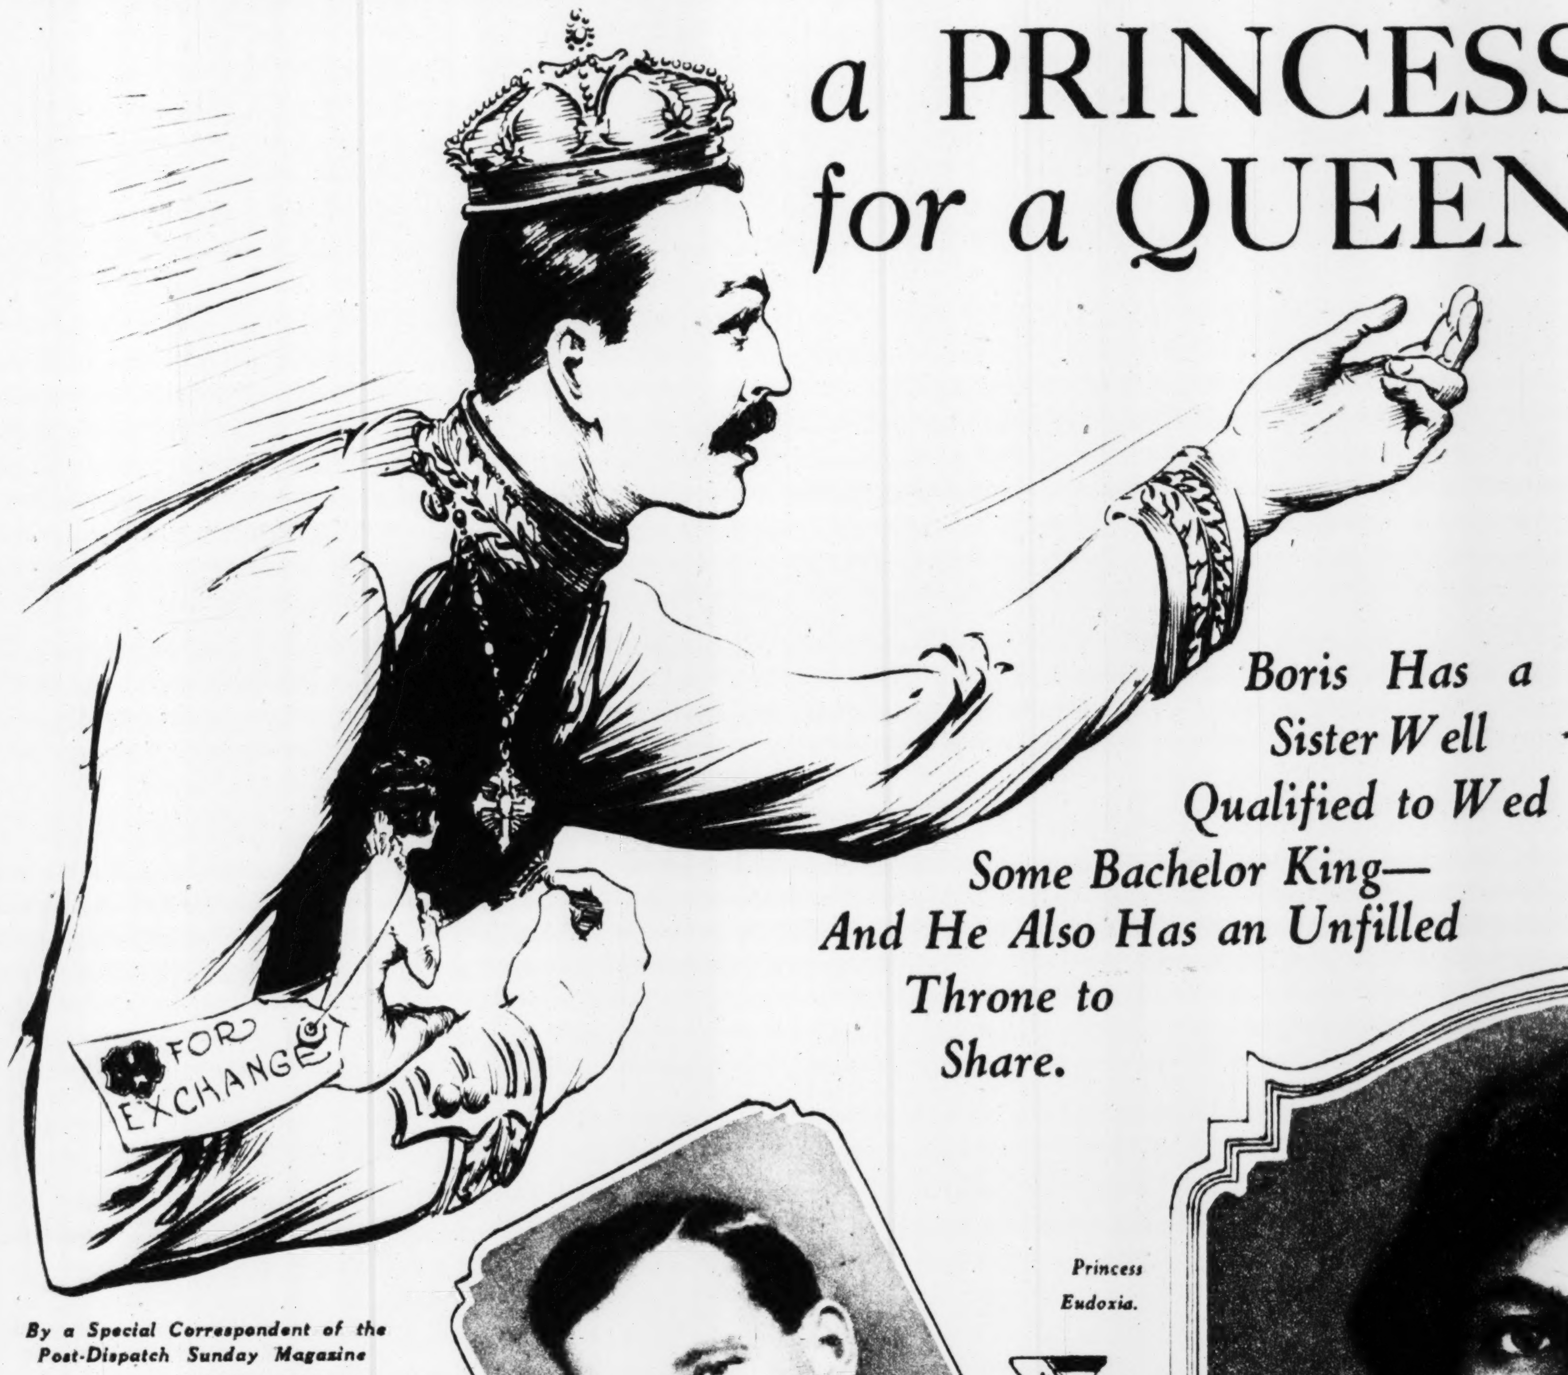
Shortly after this tragedy the authorities of Sydney passed a "safety" ordinance prohibiting swimmers from venturing far from the shore. Bathers were warned they would be not only subject to attack from sharks but also to fines for their indiscretion. Watchers were posted at regular intervals along the beach to look out for sharks and electric alarms were installed to warn the bathers of their presence.

THE warm Pacific waters of the Australian coast have always been notorious as the abode of the huge man-eater. Celebrated shark hunters have declared it is far more dangerous to bathe or be upset in the Paramatta River or in Lane Cove than in the clear waters of the South Pacific islands. The majority of deaths caused by sharks in the Sydney waters occur in the upper reaches of the harbor, where the water is muddy, especially when the tide is on the ebb. In these cloudy waters the predatory terrors are able to approach almost unobserved and seize the unsuspecting bather with great facility.

Several varieties of sharks inhabit these waters. Those that the Sydney fishermen know best and fear most are the tiger shark, the blue pointer, the so-called white shark and the gray nurse. The tiger and the blue pointer are the most ferocious. Because of the position of the mouth on the under side of the head, these monsters attack their prey by leaping out of the water and coming down upon it or by turning belly up and approaching it from underneath. The snap of the jaws of a large shark is of amazing force. They have been known frequently to cut off a man's leg or arm as cleanly as if the member had been severed by a guillotine.

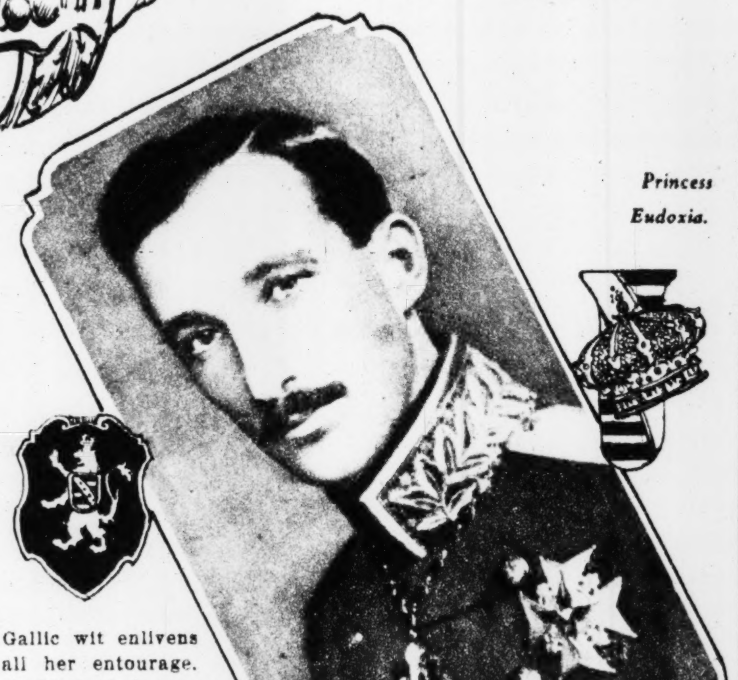
Shark fighting is a hazardous business, even when the hunter goes with the best of armament. Often they are harpooned or shot. A favorite method with some shark hunters is to catch them with hook and line and draw them close enough to the boat for a blow with a heavy knife or cleaver. This blow is directed to the spine, near the tail, to sever the backbone and thus render the powerful tail harmless. In the South Seas natives often attack sharks with knives. Instances, however, of a man routing one of the big fish with his bare hands are almost unheard of. Gibbs' feat, therefore, has gone down as the most daring in the records of such combats.

BULGARIA Ready to Trade a PRINCESS for a QUEEN

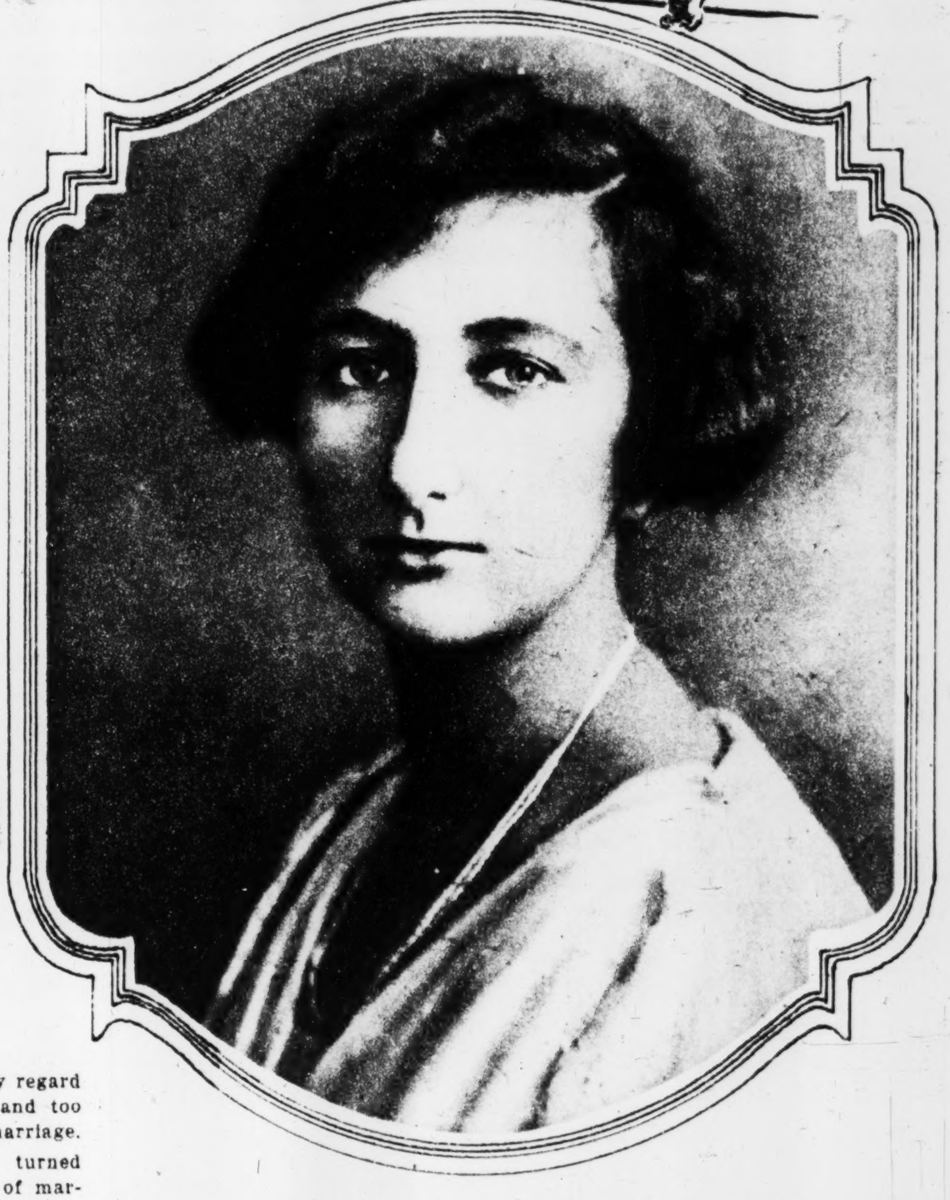


CUPID'S SHOPPE

Boris Has a Sister Well Qualified to Wed Some Bachelor King—And He Also Has an Unfilled Throne to Share.



King Boris.



Princess Eudoxia.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

SOFIA, Bulgaria.

IF SOME country needs a good Queen and can furnish one in exchange, Bulgaria is the place to go for a trade. Bulgaria needs a Queen. This turbulent land of the Balkans has been without one ever since King Ferdinand abdicated in 1918 and turned the throne over to its present unmarried monarch, King Boris. Bulgaria has, however, the best of material for somebody else who needs a Queen. Where could be found a Princess with better qualifications of birth, pedigree and regal training than Eudoxia? In her own land, of course, she has no opportunity to be a devoted Queen, but she has been a devoted sister. Foregoing all opportunities to leave rough, uncultured Bulgaria, she has steadfastly chosen to remain at her brother's side until he should find someone to take her place.

Probably there are in the world today no two persons of such high lineage as Boris and Eudoxia, whom fate has immured in this remote plebeian land to lead a life of loneliness. On one side they are scions of Europe's most ancient reigning house, the Hapsburgs; on the other they are direct descendants of a score of Bourbon Kings of France. Concentrated regal culture and regal instincts of many generations are here—the bluest of patrician blood in a kingdom of mud huts and malodorous peasantry. Both perhaps are fitted by nature for a better heritage than that which has been theirs, for their homeland doesn't shine out very brilliantly among the remaining monarchies of Europe. It is even less luminous than it used to be. When former King Ferdinand chose to play his cards on the side of the Central Powers he brought down upon his land a dark cloud of trouble, from which it has never quite emerged. When his mistake became apparent he got out and left the mess on the hands of Boris. That is the chief reason why King Boris has never married. He has been in such constant danger of assassination that no woman wanted to take a chance, even for the glory of sitting temporarily on a throne. And his failure to find a wife has had much to do with Princess Eudoxia's voluntary maidenhood. Princely suitors she has dismissed one after another for this reason or that, but principally in order that she might stay where she felt she was most needed.

SO FAR, she has carried on with whatever love secrets she had buried too deep for public view. She hardly ranks as a beauty, for she has inherited the Bourbon nose and something of the Hapsburg lip, but it is said one soon forgets these defects when in her company. Keen intelligence unites in her eyes with the light of warm human sympathy and her Gallic wit enlivens all her entourage. At 28 she is known as a masterful woman, but with treasures of womanliness. Not least among the virtues widely praised has been the motherly care with which she has watched over Boris during the years he has been forced to dodge assassins' bullets. This, and the fortitude with which she endures so dull a town as Sofia.

It is perhaps difficult for an outsider to realize the intellectual loneliness of the Bulgarian capital. Like most capitals on the borderland of east and west, it is all show—built like a stage set, to impress somebody with its front view. It has a nucleus of a splendid capital, with imposing buildings, beautiful gardens and boulevards which London or even Paris might envy. But that beauty is only skin deep. Around it all lies a squalid zone of mud huts where pigs wallow and rows of men sleep cheek by jowl, and where one sinks to the knees in the mud of the roadways.

Bulgars themselves, absorbed as they are inveterately in a network of political intrigues, always murdering somebody or being murdered, have little time for the amenities of culture. There are a few dry-as-dust academic professors, a few officers and court officials whose veneer, acquired in Paris or Berlin, creates whatever atmosphere of learning the country affords. And there are a few members of the diplomatic world who allow human feelings to percolate through the official hide. These few constitute the society to which Boris and his sister are confined.

THE palace in which they live in Sofia is silent and unfrequented by visitors. Here they spend their lives here and in the restful country splendors of Euxinograd, trying now and then to alleviate the hardship of their subjects and throw oil on troubled political waters. Reports of the King's efforts to find a wife who would share his uncertain life have been numerous. It is admitted in official quarters that since he accepted the throne in 1918 he has proposed to six different Princesses and has been refused by all of them. The royal families of Europe all consider Boris a charming young man, but they regard his position as too difficult and too dangerous to permit a happy marriage.

Eudoxia meantime, has turned down almost as many offers of marriage as her brother has made. One of her most ardent wooers was Friedrich Leopold of Hohenzollern, who conducted his courtship by writing for a long time before he had ever seen her. He was so persistent and his letters so well put that at last he was invited to Sofia. But he turned out to be a complete "flop." He was fat and awkward and had an amorous trick of turning up his eyes, which made his love making seem ridiculous. The Princess received him politely and refrained from smiling at his overtures, but sent him away as tactfully as possible. He didn't come back to Sofia any more and there was also a falling off in the volume of Eudoxia's mail.

ANOTHER determined one was a Prince of Thurn and Taxis. He was immensely wealthy, having inherited millions from a string of ancestors who had been successive Postmasters-General of the Holy Roman Empire. He, too, was clamorously amorous and extremely theatrical in his love making, and he seemed to think it more romantic to make love in French, a language which he knew imperfectly. With his thick German accent, the effect was sometimes as ridiculous as Friedrich's rolling eyes. Once, in the midst of a court reception in the drawing room of the palace, he was seized with one of these sentimental urges and, to the amazement of everybody present exclaimed dramatically: "Ah, Eudoxia, comme je vous aime," with a Teutonic gurgle that sent the entire party into a fit of giggling. Eudoxia was deeply embarrassed, and the Prince got his dismissal promptly.

There were still other suitors, Bulgarians among them. One of these in particular was attentive, and it was said his wooing struck a responsive chord. But for political reasons a marriage to a Bulgarian commoner was impossible, so this wooer went the way of the rest. Princess Eudoxia remained in her brother's palace, and he had need of her. With all the bloodshed of periodic Bulgarian revolts and attempts upon his life, there was little wonder that the young King, while only 32 years old, was stooped like an old man and bore the tinge of sadness in his eyes. He was then, and still is, so far as anybody knows, the most miserable of Kings. He declares he would abdicate at once and live his life his own way but for a promise made to his father, a promise that he would keep the throne.

Desperately he has been trying to keep that promise, and it has required more than an ordinary man's share of courage. In more ways than one he has exhibited heroic qualities. During the war he was so active on the firing line as to provoke the following declaration from General Jekoff, the Bulgarian Commander in Chief:

"THAT young man," said the General, "gives me more anxiety than the whole of the enemy's general headquarters. There is no holding him back. He always wants to be some place where he is not, because he thinks the fighting may be a little hotter there."

An attempt to assassinate the young King three years ago led to another demonstration of his coolness and courage. He was traveling in an open car with an aide and a young botanist, to whom he was greatly attached, when the car struck some unseen obstacle and was overturned in a ditch. At the same time a murderous fire was poured in from a ring of assassins in ambush.

The chauffeur, the botanist and the aide were killed on the spot. The King, thrown out of the car, picked himself up, ran the gauntlet of the attackers back to a postal motor car coming up the road, jumped on, pushed the chauffeur aside, seized the wheel, turned the car around and, still under hot rifle fire, drove coolly back to Sofia. His clothes were torn, his hands covered with blood, and one side of his upper lip had been shaved clean by a bullet. To a horrified Marshal who hastened up to him he remarked, grinning: "Give me a looking glass, will you? I have an idea I have lost half my mustache."

THIS terrorist attempt to kill him was an answer of the extremists to the policy of barbarous persecution which Boris' Ministers had applied to their political opponents.

For several years after the war a rough, bullet-headed man named Stambuliski ruled Bulgaria with a rod of steel. He was the power behind and all around the throne. Shortly before his death, in 1923, he made this pronouncement concerning his policy.

"I am a peasant and the son of a peasant. The Bulgars are a race of peasants. We have in us that crude, fertile strength that reeks of new-plowed soil. I am determined to clear my country of the plague of parasites, militarists and sycophants that feed on the people like locusts."

It was that plague that carried him off. He was arrested by a reactionary gang, was buried up to the neck in earth and his head was kicked savagely by officers until he became unconscious. Then he was dispatched.

Stambuliski's colleagues in the Cabinet, his personal and political friends, his relatives and followers were hunted like rabbits and slain wherever they were found. Some of those who escaped swore vengeance and tried to carry it out, but their first attempt was aimed at the wrong man.

BORIS was no friend of Stambuliski's murderers. He was no friend of Stambuliski, either; but he admired the force and statesmanship of the man, and when he heard of his murder he was horrified. "For weeks afterward, my brother never smiled; it was months before he laughed, and to this day he laughs but seldom," the Princess Eudoxia testified a year or two later.

More horrors followed. There was the blowing up of the Sofia Cathedral that crushed half of official Bulgaria under its smoking walls; there were reprisals of unheard of ferocity, murders, wholesale hangings, a veritable carnival of blood. And through it all, Boris and Eudoxia stayed on in the lonely palace. It was little wonder that women didn't think so well of Sofia as a prospective home. The rattle of musketry about the place was hardly tempting.

There were times when he considered abdicating in spite of the promise to old Ferdinand. "I am desperately unhappy," he is quoted as declaring to his friends. "I dream of a cottage and a flower garden, where I may live my life as I please, but what girl wants to marry a King who may be assassinated at any moment? I would much prefer to abdicate, but I cannot break my word."

Some years ago a young Bulgarian officer, a close companion of the King's, married an American girl. She was lovely, rich and charming.

Boris was tremendously struck with his friend's romance, and seriously contemplated going to America to seek out another such prize for himself. There was nothing surprising in this, for a more democratic pair than Boris and Eudoxia never lived on or near a throne. Both lived in the simplest, most frugal way. They lived in a palace because that is their fate, but they sleep on camp beds because that is their taste.

The Bulgarian people, and Stambuliski in particular, when he was alive, looked with favor upon the idea of an American Queen, for there are no morganatic restrictions on the Bulgarian ruler. He is free to marry a housemaid if he chooses.

BUT they liked the American plan especially because they calculated the presence of an American Queen in the palace would promote the economic development and prosperity of the country with the help of American capital and American methods. It was taken for granted, too, that an American bride for Boris would bring with her a well-filled purse. There had been times when official Bulgaria was hard pressed to meet its household bills. In 1922 the King himself got so hard up that he had to sell his two pet elephants because he couldn't afford to feed them. He was also forced to sell some of his automobiles and all the wines and liquors which had belonged to his father. In those times of stress he talked more seriously than ever about abdicating and going to America to get a job "driving a locomotive or teaching mechanics in some university." He was qualified for either.

Eventually, however, the fit of American enthusiasm died away, and Boris took the only trip of his life, but it was not to America. He went to Venice with his sister. It was a real holiday of sunshine and beauty and joy, away from the cares of an anarchical state, and he is declared to have enjoyed it as a King never enjoyed a vacation before.

But there were no Princesses in Venice and no charming American candidate for a post as Balkan Queen. So Boris went back still a bachelor to the unpleasant job that is his in his blood-soaked Bulgaria.

RANGOON, Burma.

THE British expedition which set out last December upon the romantic but dangerous mission of freeing the remaining slaves of the Kachin and Naga tribes of Upper Burma is now on the last lap of its strenuous tour. According to advices reaching the Burma Government authorities here, the military party headed by Captain J. F. O. Barnard, Deputy Commissioner of the Burma Frontier Police, broke camp at Myitkyina a few days ago and plunged into the district of mountain wilderness known as the "Triangle." Sleeping beside their loaded rifles at night and facing the danger of annihilation at every turn, the emancipators will press on toward the dreaded Hukawng Valley—"the Valley of Death"—to wind up by the latter part of June or July, if possible, their program of setting free 5000 slaves this year.

Already the party is well on its way to the achievement of this objective and already it has encountered hostility of the sort to be expected in the wilder region it is now attempting to traverse. Several weeks ago, while pressing up the west fork of the Irrawaddy River in the Naga Hills, an advance guard was attacked by a large force of Naga warriors in ambush. Captain E. M. West, a gallant officer of Queen Alexandra's Own Gurkha Rifles, and three men were killed. Three others were wounded and a civil interpreter was captured or killed. No trace of him has been discovered since the fight. Reinforcements were rushed to the aid of the mission and a halt was made near Myitkyina for reorganization and accumulation of supplies. Then, after loading their rifles and gathering up all the extra ammunition they could cram into their belts, the marchers set off into the jungles. In the next few weeks they will operate in an unexplored region which only twice has been entered by Europeans—in 1902 and 1926. They will deal entirely with savage head hunters who worship snakes and practice human sacrifice. All means of communication with the outside world have been left behind. The jungle literally has swallowed them and civilization must wait for their return to learn of their success or failure.

THIS expedition was not undertaken, however, without considerable preliminary work and its members are not plunging into a savage country without experience in dealing with the snake-worshiping headhunters. Many of them were members of a mission which operated last year both among the Nagas and the Kachins, but did not penetrate so far into the wilderness as this party hopes to march. It accomplished notable results. No fewer than 3400 slaves were released from bondage and placed on a basis of equality with their former masters. And this was done without bloodshed or armed clashes with the natives. The Governor of Burma, Sir Harcourt Butler, who has been pushing the emancipation movement for several years, rounded up more than 100 Kachin chiefs and addressed them through an interpreter. He told them that it was the unalterable decision of the British Government that henceforward there must be no sale of slaves or gift of slaves as part of marriage dowries or in settlement of feuds. He also promised them liberal compensation for all slaves set free. The liberators then went among the tribesmen armed with purses rather than rifles and made good the promise. For 200 rupees (15 pounds) apiece, they bought slaves as fast as they could pay the owners off, and everybody seemed to be satisfied. Their work was so effective that only the more remote sections of Upper Burma were left with the institution of slavery still in existence.

It was to reach these remote sections that the present expedition was fitted out. Like the first, this party is using gold as far as possible instead of bullets, but the nature of the country and the savagery of the natives make the use of arms imperative to some extent. Arms, however, are used entirely for self-defense and not for coercion. The rule of paying for the slaves still holds.

This year's mission necessarily encounters difficulties with which the first expedition did not have to cope. The natives are wilder and their habitat more inaccessible. They resent the intrusion of white men and resent attempts to take from them, even for pay, their captives. They have practiced slavery for generations, as they have practiced human sacrifice, and they are loath to part with either custom.

The area in which the Kachins live is a hilly tract of unadministered territory that lies at the headwaters of the Irrawaddy River, a few miles beyond the frontier town of Myitkyina. This town is the northern terminus of the Burma Railway and marks the northern limit of civilization. About 20 miles above the town the Irrawaddy separates into two branches called the Mali and the N'mai Hka, and the country between these streams is popularly known as the "Triangle." It is one of those dark areas of Burma which are still too wild and remote to have received administration even by the Frontier Police. So long as they kept to themselves, its inhabitants have been allowed to retain their old tribal customs, and among these, of course, is slavery.

A Kachin tomb.

BOTH the rivers that bound the triangle are turbulent. They flow down steep, narrow valleys between walls of rock or through miles of jungle. At certain seasons boats and rafts are able to navigate the rapids, but in the rainy period they tear along with a fury which no craft could withstand. Especially is this true of N'mai. At length they unite in the Irrawaddy, which flows on a thousand miles to the Bay of Bengal and is navigable for much of the distance.

In the mountains between the N'mai Hka and the Mali, the Kachins hide away in dense green forests, remaining what their ancestors have been for centuries before them. In a rude sort of way they till the fields in the more open spaces, but they live close to the bosom of nature.

NOBODY knows just where the Kachins came from. Two hundred years ago there were no Kachins in Burma. They seem to be one of the latest waves of the age-long migration which has peopled this country with races of Mongolian origin. Apparently, they entered Burma from the mountains to the north. Always their drift has been southward for the mountain ranges and the river valleys lead the wanderer in that direction. After camping for a few generations in one locality, cultivating temporarily and burning forests with all the carelessness of strangers, they move south with their increasing numbers in search of new fields. In the last two generations they have spread out in a southeasterly direction into the Shan states, so that now in these states there is a larger Kachin population than there is in the districts originally regarded as strictly Kachin. Those who have come in contact with influences of civilization have rapidly taken up its manners, so that they form one of the most desirable elements of Burma's population.

In their wild state, however, they are superstitious, bloodthirsty and grasping. They have overrun other tribes and have driven them out of their mountain retreats or shackled them in slavery. It was to relieve these captives and wipe out the last remaining vestiges of slavery in Burma that Sir Harcourt Butler inaugurated his emancipation program, which has, thus far, met with such conspicuous success.

Some of the adventures of the expedition have been described in dispatches reaching Government authorities here. There was the crossing of the Tanai Gorge, for instance. This feat, difficult under the most favorable conditions, was made more dangerous by heavy rains which had converted the stream below into a raging torrent. A temporary bridge had to be built and this necessitated working waist-deep in water for several hours. This uninhabited region is known in Kachin mythology as the home of the spirits and is feared even by the natives, accustomed to the dangers of the jungle. The passage of the gorge took three days and the march beyond followed the bed of an icy stream. It was icy because of its altitude of 7000 feet. Camp was made in a jungle clearing after 11 hours' marching, in which only five miles were covered.

An old slave of Northern Burma.

The next day, the weather was better and the final 16-mile stage of the journey to Dalu was completed in 13 hours. On this stage it was necessary to dig steps and to bridge swamps with brushwood. Every one of the 250 mules of the pack train slipped and wallowed in the mud and water at one time or another during the march, so that bedding and rations were soaked and men and animals exhausted.

The Kachin village of Shinbwiyang was reached on February 21. A new mule track was constructed and it was found possible to take the pack train through a difficult pass 5000 feet above sea level to Hkalak Ga. This mule track, which was constructed by arrangements with Naga tribesmen was said to have been a notable engineering feat in view of the primitive tools used and the precipitous character of the country.

A garrison was established at Hkalak Ga and the expedition proceeded westward with coolie transport. The main divide was crossed on March 1 and camp was made in a jungle at an altitude of 7000 feet. The weather was bitterly cold and a biting wind made sleep impossible, the dispatches stated. The divide was crossed at dawn at an elevation of 7800 feet, through a labyrinth of grotesquely gnarled and twisted mountain oaks, which were moss festooned and covered with a profuse growth of creepers and lichens.

At the village of Tulim, in unexplored territory, the Nagas were found to be nearer outside contacts than elsewhere. The dress of the men, which was a strange assortment of garments, showed clearly the influence of India. The natives, in conical hat, dyed cape adorned with boar tusks and wearing plumes of human hair, were described as presenting a most incongruous appearance. The dress of the women consisted of a short greenish kilt, with waist rings of red cane and an apron adorned with a small red tassel slung round the neck by a string and extending below the kilt to the knees.

IN TAUNGOYA the expedition found that agriculture was extensively practiced and that jungle-clad ridges gave way to grassy slopes. Little virgin jungle was found except above the 6000-foot level, the limits of the cultivation being marked by chasms and sheer mountain walls. The Naga farmers were industrious.

From Tulim the expedition moved southward to Saukrag, a strongly defended village on the fringes of a raided area of primitive inhabitants, then wheeling northeast toward the Sangpan Bum range, the expedition set out for Sumri and Lakai. Here, extensive herds of mithun—half bison, half bull—which take the place of buffalo, were seen grazing in flocks herded by the natives. Recrossing the Sangpan Bum on March 10, at 7500 feet, the party pushed on for 15 miles at a height of 12,000 feet and camped for the night in a deep chasm filled with tropical vegetation. The next day, Lukai was reached in torrential rain and the expedition returned to Hkalak Ga by its former route, joining the main body and the mule transport on March 31. The dispatches said all members of the party, except one who contracted double pneumonia, hemained in good health in spite of the continual changes of altitude and temperature.

It was not until the party had reached Ngalang Ga, five days' march beyond Shinburijng, that it was possible to assemble the Naga chiefs. There the plan for purchasing the slaves was explained and an agreement was entered whereby the Nagas would abandon their old custom of offering human sacrifices to their tribal gods. Another final meeting was held at Shinburijng before the expedition departed for the Hukawng Valley. In both meetings the attitude of the native chieftains was said to be exceedingly respectful and their willingness to co-operate, even at the expense of their religious rites, gratifying beyond the hopes of the mission. This friendliness on the part of the Nagas also was conspicuous in the Sangpan Bum region. The natives encountered were shy and reserved, but many chiefs crossed the mountain range to meet the travelers and invited the officers to their primitive homes. The arrival of each chief was heralded by the beating of gongs.

ONE of the chiefs came to lay the case of a blood feud before the civil officers. The feud had arisen as the result of a recent double murder. Through the intervention of the officers, the case was settled and the decision to abandon hostilities sealed with much drinking from the loving cup. The two families and their connections were then able to sleep peacefully, without fear of reprisals. Ngalang Ga is an important native village of 20 houses, on the trade route to Hukawng Valley. Its chief, La Rin, is very influential in his native hills, and his agreement to abandon human sacrifice and to use his influence against its continuance by others was regarded as a most hopeful indication. High hopes for the lasting success of the campaign also were raised when this year's expedition went back through the country visited by the emancipators of last year. Along the Upper Chindwin River many former slaves were visited and were found to be living in their own homes. They were happy and contented and as prosperous as their former masters. The chiefs had kept their word.

The Kachin tribesmen in the Hukawng Valley are less friendly than the Nagas, but are a more virile race and, when tamed, exhibit more ability to master the manners and methods of the white man. In the Shan states, where they have mingled with other peoples and have come in contact with Government influences they have progressed rapidly. By nature, the Kachins possess a keen religious sense, which has no scope for expression in the dark myths of their own religion and the voodoo ceremonies over entrails and bones. Finding no spirituality in this, they have abandoned the superstitions of Animism for Christianity and have taken readily to the missionary schools. This has quickly resulted in softening and humanizing the once ferocious head hunters.

They brought with them out of the wilds no literature, but now there are in existence several Kachin books and a Kachin newspaper. They make good citizens and good soldiers. When the wild ones in the forest have been tamed and scrubbed, the Government expects to find in the dreaded "Triangle" an excellent recruiting ground.

Putting the Horse Out of the British Army

A Combat Group Assembled At Tidworth, Consisting Entirely of Mechanized Units, Aims at the Complete Elimination of Cavalry.

IT IS not Marathon nor Chalons nor Waterloo nor Appomattox Courthouse nor Marshal Foch's Armistice Day headquarters in the forest of Compiegne, but a place in England with the meek name of Tidworth which may witness the beginning of the end for the army horse.

At Tidworth, for experimental purposes, the British Army has assembled a force consisting of completely mechanized units—a combat group which has no horses nor mules but is equipped with motor-driven transport.

There is a tank battalion, an armored car company, a field brigade of Royal Artillery, a field company of Royal Engineers, a signal unit and an infantry battalion re-equipped as a machine-gun battalion, with 36 guns.

With these troops, approximating a division in miniature, the British will see what can be done by "a gasoline-driven army." There will be maneuvers, forced marches, sham attacks and retreats in the face of an imaginary enemy, assaults upon trenches and towns.

But the horse, which for 30 centuries has helped men to wage their wars, will be absent.

Instead of light cavalry, brave with jingling accoutrements and scouting ahead of the army for perhaps 20 miles, there will be grim-looking armored cars, reconnoitering perhaps 100 miles ahead. No gallant teams of artillery horses will bring up the guns for action—other motored transport will drag the field pieces or the heavies to their appointed places in as businesslike a way as though delivering a truckload of flour.

From time immemorial the duties of the cavalry in all armies have included two distinct roles: First, reconnaissance in front of the army and protection of the advance; second, tactical surprises on the battlefield and the relentless pursuit of an enemy in retreat.

Today, when an airplane in one hour can learn more about the movements of the enemy than cavalry scouts could find out in several days or a week, cavalry's usefulness in that role seems to have been superseded.

THE weakness of cavalry in the role of scouts always has been that they could observe and hinder, but could not hold, the enemy. However accurately the cavalry might report the position of the enemy at a certain hour, there was no telling where the same hostile force might be 48 hours later.

More than 100 years ago this problem was studied by Napoleon, who was distinguished for the speed with which his armies moved, for his energy in obtaining information about the enemy and for his quick decisions. To obtain information, and cloak his own movements, Napoleon in 1805 had recourse to the cavalry screen, which lessened his difficulties, but did not solve them. The enemy still was able to elude him or to change positions before he could bring up his main force.

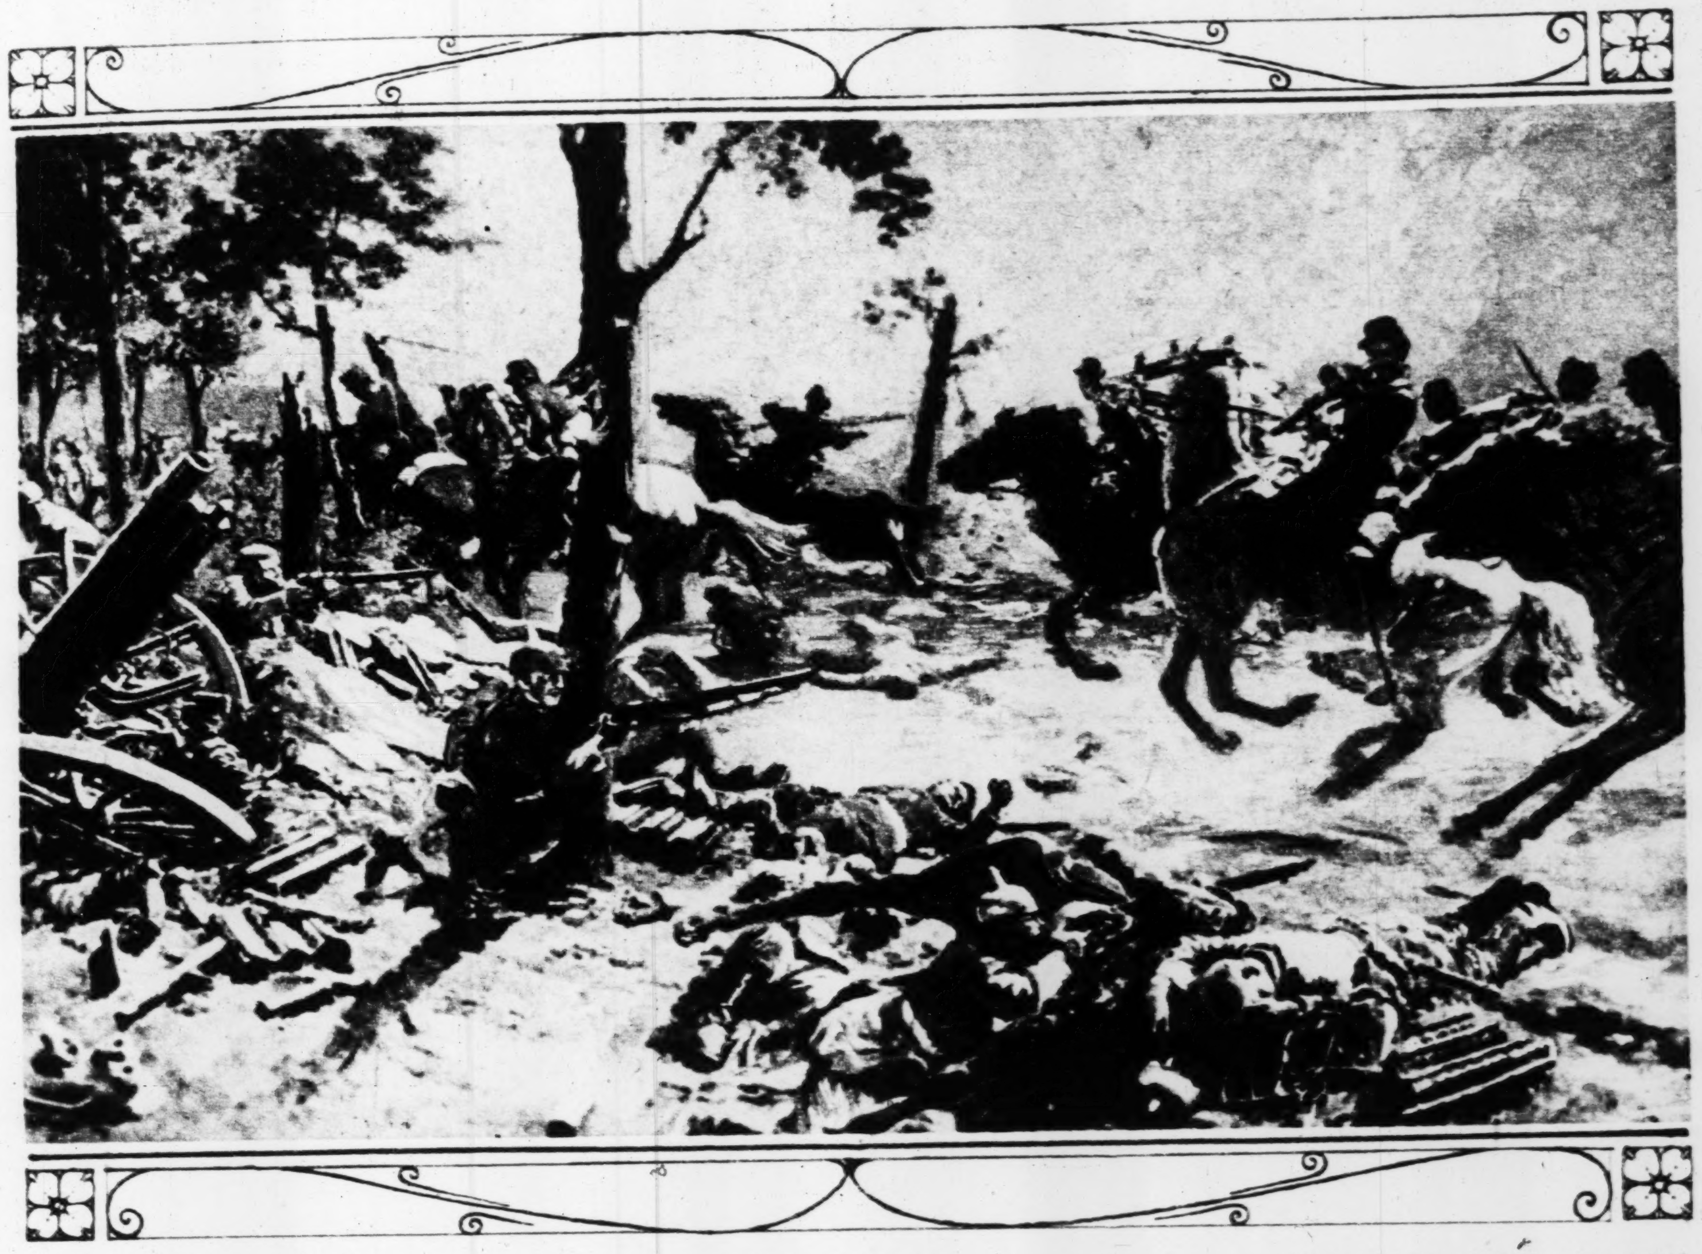
It was in 1806 that Napoleon first devised a better arrangement—the general advanced guard. This consisted of all the arms—cavalry, infantry, artillery, engineers, etc. The general advanced guard followed immediately the cavalry screen and held the enemy in position to be dealt with by the remainder of the army, which was a day's march behind. After Friedland, this method recurred on almost every one of Napoleon's battlefields.

Sir L. Worthington-Evans, Minister for War, addressing Parliament recently on the subject of army appropriations, said that the internal combustion engine had revolutionized civil life in the last 20 years and that he believed it would cause equally important changes in the army in the next 20 years.

During the debate, two cavalry officers questioned the wisdom of "mechanizing the cavalry," while several labor members praised the plan and one of them remarked that, as far as war was concerned, "the proper place of the horse is in a zoological museum."

LIEUTENANT-GENERAL SIR GEORGE McMUNN of the British Army has contributed an article to The Sphere, London, on "The Cavalry of the Future," in which he says:

"The problem is not whether or no cavalry is an extinct arm, as was the fashion to say a few years ago, but to what extent the great principles of war for which the cavalry stand—surprise, speed, pursuit—demand a reforging of the cavalry arm as we know it today. To what extent should our fast-moving men take to themselves wheels, with the armored car, the six-wheel lorry, the self-propelled gun and the one-man tank, and to what extent do the requirements of the world, which, whether we like it or whether we don't, we are so often called on to police, demand the maintenance of the present type of cavalry and horse artillery?"



Cavalry of the past.

The General expresses the opinion that, for certain parts of the world at least, the soldier on horseback is still needed. But if the army horse must go at last to the museum, he will take with him a glorious history.

The first use of the horse in war was as a draft animal, hitched to the chariot in which the rich man rode to battle. Thus did the warrior, burdened with armor and heavy weapons, reach the place of combat unwearied. When he dismounted to fight, the chariot was turned about and held a few yards in his rear, so that if he were wounded or became afraid, he might leap into the chariot and escape. This was the use of horses at the siege of Troy, for Homer does not mention cavalry of the kind used today.

About 500 years later, according to some authorities, the chariot itself had become a weapon, with sharp knives fastened to the axles and neckyokes which mowed down the enemy as the horses, protected by armor, plunged through them.

IT HAS been conjectured that horsemen fighting as real cavalry, not charioteers nor foot soldiers temporarily mounted, came into use about 1000 years B. C. Since the Scythians probably were the first people to ride horseback, they may have been the earliest cavalry nation.

Cyrus the Great reorganized the Persian cavalry. He did away with their bows and javelins and established a heavily armed force of lancers. After Cyrus, the cavalry became the most important part of the Persian armies. When Xerxes invaded Greece, in 480 B. C., he had in his army 80,000 cavalry, besides camels and chariots. Alexander the Great was the first among the Greeks to employ cavalry to a great extent.

"All of Alexander's victories were won by his cavalry," said Major Leroy Eltinge, in a lecture to young officers at Fort Leavenworth. "He also inaugurated the principle of the pursuit of a beaten enemy to the last gasp of man and horse. In one case he pursued the beaten Persians 70 miles in 36 hours. That principle is as good today as it was in the time of Alexander. A defeated army is totally helpless till it can reorganize. It is the business of the cavalry to keep it from having a chance to reorganize."

With more and better horsemen than the Romans, Hannibal almost overthrew them. Largely by means of his Numidian cavalry the invader held his own in Italy for 16 long years. The Romans pinned their faith to the infantry legions. It was Publius Scipio Africanus, victor over Hannibal at Zama, who caused the Romans to supply their deficiencies in cavalry.

Cavalry of the future.

For 150 years after Hannibal's day, when cavalry performed the most important part in the battles of the age, the mounted force held its high position. But at Pharsalia, where the infantry of Julius Caesar defeated a large force of cavalry belonging to Pompey, the tide began to turn. Infantry learned how to withstand the horsemen.

THE history of warfare shows that again and again the infantry and the cavalry exchanged places as the most important part of armies. But cavalry always was the more aristocratic branch of military service, the branch favored by men of wealth and social position. When men furnished their own mounts, poor people were necessarily barred. In the middle ages the nobility were jealous about letting the common people serve as horsemen. And the preference for the cavalry, and a feeling of superior social standing among cavalry officers over those of the infantry, has persisted until now.

It was about the time of Charlemagne that horsemen in armor began to decide the fate of battles. The cavalry force usually was composed entirely of nobles. The coming of a new institution—chivalry—intensified the social superiority of the cavalry, for every member of the order was, beyond everything else, a cavalier. Thus the cavalry contained all the warriors, statesmen, nobles and generals of the age. Not to be a skillful horseman was to be inferior socially.

Because of the social influence of chivalry, the protection afforded by the armor of the knights and the neglect of the infantry service, there arose a feeling of contempt for foot soldiers. During the Crusades, cavalry usurped the functions of all the other services, which helps to explain the military failures of the Crusaders.

The real revival of infantry dates from Crecy and the extraordinary influence exerted by Edward III's English archers in a pitched battle against the proudest chivalry in Europe. This was in 1346. Cannon were used there, for the first time in a large battle. Poictiers and Agincourt also were won not by the nobility of England nor the feudal tenants, but by the skill and bravery of the English bowmen.

The tradition of cavalry's superiority died hard, despite the increasing use of gunpowder and the gradual introduction of standing armies. Gustavus Adolphus of Sweden reorganized his cavalry, which was clumsy and slow, and taught them to be famous in hand-to-hand fighting.

CROMWELL owed his military success largely to the fact that he was primarily a cavalry officer, and a gifted one. The Great Conde established his reputation as a General by the energetic use of his horsemen on the field of Rocroy. Marlborough knew how to employ his cavalry in heavy masses with smashing effectiveness. Charles XII of Sweden forbade defensive armor and firearms among his horsemen and made them maneuver with a rapidity that up to his time had been unknown.

Then came Frederick the Great of Prussia who, of all Generals of modern times, is said to have appreciated most clearly what can be done by the shock of a whole wing of cavalry at full gallop in close order and with a regular alignment. Out of 22 great battles won by Frederick, at least 15 of them were won by his cavalry.

"From Alexander to and including Frederick the Great," says Major Eltinge, "most great captains used their infantry for a sort of holding attack and their cavalry to deal the decisive knockout blow. The single notable exception is the Roman, who had no genius for horsemanship and therefore made comparatively little use of horsemen.

"The increase in range and power of modern firearms and an increased use of entrenchment and obstacles caused cavalry to change from the decisive to one of the auxiliary arms. Since the time of Frederick the decision has been sought with the infantry, which has become the principal fighting arm of all nations."

BUT the decline of cavalry's importance to its status in the World War, where it did little on the western front, was gradual. In the meantime, many a cavalry leader won renown. There was Murat, one of Napoleon's most brilliant officers, whose spectacular charge at the head of 12,000 cavalry won the battle of Dresden. And Kellerman, hero of Marengo, where the French were in full retreat until this impetuous leader, with only 800 horse, charged from behind the concealment of a vineyard full upon the flank of a heavy column of pursuing Austrians. Kellerman cut the column asunder, took 2000 prisoners, including Zach, the chief of staff, and drove back the remainder in utter rout upon the supporting troops in their rear. Kellerman described the charge concisely:

"I see it. I am in the midst of them. They lay down their arms. The whole affair did not occupy so much time as it took me to write these six lines."

The Civil War in America produced several famous cavalry leaders and was notable for developing, on a scale never seen before, troops who could fight as horsemen or as infantry, as circumstances required.

James H. Morgan of "Morgan's Cavalry," was the originator of the far-reaching cavalry raid. Discarding the usual carbine, he armed his 4000 men with long-range rifles. Altogether they killed and wounded nearly 4000 Union soldiers and captured more than 15,000. Morgan could move with great rapidity. On his last raid, through Kentucky and Indiana, he made his greatest march, proceeding from Summansville, Indiana, to Williamsburg, east of Cincinnati, a distance of more than 90 miles, in 35 hours.

J. E. B. STUART was another brilliant Confederate commander of cavalry. On two occasions his men made raids around the whole position of the enemy, moving by one flank and returning by another. The first great raid was around McClellan's army in front of Richmond, 1862. The raiding force consisted of 2500 cavalry and two pieces of horse artillery; and great damage was inflicted upon Federal stores of ammunition and food. Hundreds of prisoners, horses and mules were captured.

Stuart's greatest raid was through Pennsylvania and around the Northern army there. He had 1800 horsemen and four pieces of horse artillery. Much destruction was wrought, while the information gained by Stuart and the consternation caused in the Northern forces were of the greatest importance. During the expedition his cavalry marched from Chambersburg to Leesburg, some 90 miles, in 36 hours, which has been called one of the most remarkable marches recorded in history.

Some military experts have said that Stuart was the ablest cavalry officer in the Civil War, with the possible exception of Nathan B. Forrest, also a Confederate. Stuart was killed in action in May, 1864. Because of his extraordinary ability in gathering information, his death was a severe loss to General Lee. In the continuous fighting from the Wilderness to Petersburg, later in 1864, Lee had great difficulty in getting his reconnoitering work done properly. He sent one cavalry officer after another to obtain information of the enemy, repeatedly ejaculating at one crisis: "Oh, for an hour of General Stuart!" Turning to his staff, he remarked: "I can do nothing if my young men cannot keep me well informed."

Forrest's cavalry fought as effectively afoot as on horseback, and they did extraordinary things. They fought in line of battle, as at Chickamauga; they rode into Memphis, which was held by a much larger force, and captured prisoners; they stormed fortifications, built bridges and drove off steamboats by rifle fire from the banks.

But in their most novel experience, Forrest's cavalry were afloat. Forrest wanted to impede navigation on the Tennessee River, which was filled with Federal gunboats and transports. When the steamer Mazeppa, with a barge in tow, drew near, Forrest had his riflemen and a few pieces of artillery concealed along the bank. Under a hot fire, the crews abandoned the vessels and escaped. Soon afterwards the gunboat Undine and the steam transport Venus were captured from the Federals. Forrest manned the two war vessels with detachments from his command and, the Confederate flag floating from both ships, made a trial trip with his fleet as far as Fort Heiman.

PHILIP H. SHERIDAN is generally regarded as the outstanding cavalry leader on the Union side. The operations which his corps conducted in the spring of 1865 in the vicinity of Petersburg and Richmond exercised a controlling influence upon the fate of the war and have been ranked among the most important services ever performed by a body of cavalry in modern times.

Three brigades of Sheridan's cavalry were dismounted to help the infantry attack the fortifications at Five Forks and fought in that bitter engagement which virtually decided the fate of the war. Sheridan performed the most important part in the pursuit of Lee's army, largely because his men were capable of fighting dismounted and occupying and holding defensive positions, upon the flank of the retreating column. While one division of Sheridan's men harassed and delayed the Confederates, the other divisions moved on in the rear of the dismounted horsemen and dismounting in turn took up defensive positions further along the line of retreat, where presently they were pouring their fire into the flanks of the weary Confederates. It was largely through the work of the cavalry, fighting dismounted, that Lee's retreat was so thoroughly checked that he surrendered at Appomattox Courthouse.

Cal Suppressed
A Bad Precedent

RING LARDNER

A New Gag Rule
Ring Omits One

To the Editor:

DR. ABRAHAM L. SCOTT of Denver recently wrote a vox populi letter to the paper in which he protested vs. a incidence that took place in Washington, D. C., involving the President of the U. S. namely the incidence in regards to the said President making a speech to the newspaper men which was so witty and full of humor that it was thought better not to make it public.

It seemed to Mr. Scott that a society ought to be formed entitled the Demand Society, which would be devoted to the end that Mr. Coolidge's witty addresses and all other mirth provoking speeches and sallies should be reported verbatim wd. for wd. in the papers so that readers might derive the benefits which is genally believed to result from geniality and good spirits.

Mr. Scott said:

"To a large number of people the world seems so gloomy that the addition of a little fun into it in the broadcasting of his laugh inspiring speech would probably lower the death rate by changing possible suicides into optimistic beings. By all means the text of President Coolidge's witty address should be demanded in the name of humanity."

IN DEFENSE of the Washington correspondents or whoever it was that decided on the suppression of the speech in question it should be pointed to Brother Scott and other critics that it was doubtless in the name of humanity that the suppression was decided on. I would guess that the boys thought the whole thing over carefully and made up their mind that less people would kill themselfs from despondency over not being able to read the address than would die laughing if they was permitted to read it. This guess is based on some of the things which the President has said and which has found their way into print, and when you read them you can see that if he made a little more effort he could spring gags that might easily prove fatal to all but the hardest boiled eggs.

Like for example a few wks ago they was a convention of the textile industry or something in Washington or somewheres and Mr. Coolidge give them a talk and pointed out that whereas 10 yds. of gingham would make a dress 20 yrs. ago, why now days one could be made out of 3 and 1-2 yds. and the report went on to say that "the President showed his keen sense of humor and moved his audience to merriment when he told the story of the manufacturer of cloth for women's apparel who went abroad and attended the races at a fashionable course in Paris, observed the shortness of women's skirts and cabled home to his firm to cut down the output of material."

Now friends the chances are that Mr. Coolidge spent very little time in the preparation of the gag quoted in the above report and if a man can turn out a wow like that without straining his self why it is easy to see where he might cause wholesale deaths from hysterics was he able to take it into his head to cut loose. Laughter is said to be infectious and they's no telling how far the panic would extend once it got a fair start.

LAYING all jokes to one or both sides I suppose my readers has noticed that a president of the U. S. or any other big concern like the Standard Oil, etc., or a prince or a governor or a senator or even a comedian or humorist can say anything that comes into their head and it is pretty sure to be greeted with a deafening shout of laughter whereas if you are a 2d. asst. time table folder for the Pennsylvania lines why you can spring nifty after nifty and the rewards is a general yawn that makes the Grand Canyon look like a dimple.

I don't suppose President Coolidge has made 3 public utterances which was supposed to be funny since he took his present office and at first it was probably the biggest kind of a surprise to him when he would ask some visitor how their baby was getting along and have everybody within hearing get the giggles, thinking he had pulled a quip. By this time he is used to it and ain't startled no more when he says he hopes it won't rain tomorrow and the gang standing around bursts into a tumult of titters.

More than once this handsome writer has been in a crowd where others present was Irvin S. Cobb, Will Rogers, Bugs Baer and etc. and if any of those boys made some crack like saying they played golf yesterday or they had bumped their knee and it was hurting them, their friends and admires would pretty near choke to death at such drollery.

However it does seem like it was going a little bit too far to withhold stuff because it is too good to print and it don't require much of a imagination to see where a precedent like this is bound to lead to unless steps is taken to prevent, namely the next thing we know we will pick up a magazine some day and find a couple of blank pages without nothing on them only this inscription at the top: "A article by George Ade was to of went in this space, but after reading it over carefully the editors decided that a epidemic of convulsions might follow its perusal."

Or we may go to an Ed Wynn show some night expecting to enjoy an hr. and a 1-2 of the perfect fool's foolishness only to have the manager step out in front of the curtain before the last named rises and announce that those parts of the program which calls for Mr. Wynn's personal appearance has been cancelled on acct. of a unanimous agreement by the producers that same was bound to cause a holocaust and in their place will be shown motion pictures of the christening of the giant bridge spanning the Delaware from Tufts College to Cascade, Iowa.

I had a whale of a paragraph to wind up this article with but honest I don't dast write it down.

Such as Walk in Darkness

By SAMUEL HOPKINS ADAMS

No Sacrifice Was Too Great for Billy Wigg to Make for Solomon John, But He Demanded So Much in Return That Solomon John's Stores of Gratitude Became Depleted Every Now and Then.

IN ALL the trade of the city you might not find such another quaint business firm as Solomon John and Billy Wigg. The senior partner was a gentle old giant; the junior a brisk and shaggy little dog.

It was Solomon John's business to stand on a roaring corner and sell papers; it was Billy Wigg's business to take care of him while he did it, for he was blind.

It was our business—Dr. Harvey's and mine—to pay for our papers and pass on, but we seldom strictly minded it. Instead, we would stop to talk to Solomon John, to the detriment of trade, and to be patronized by Billy Wigg, who was much puffed up with self-importance, conceiving himself to be principal owner of the earth and sole proprietor of Solomon John. In the half of which he was correct.

I was very fond of Billy Wigg, despite his airs of superiority. Harvey preferred old Solomon; but this was a semi-professional interest, for my medical friend had contracted the pamphlet habit, which he indulged before scientific bodies made up of gentlemen with weak eyes who knew more about ophthalmology than can be found in many fat tomes.

Solomon John was a remarkable case of something quite unpronounceable, and Harvey used to gaze into his eyes with rapt intensity, while Billy Wigg fidgeted and struggled against the temptation to gnaw such portions of him as were within reach; for Billy Wigg didn't understand, and what he didn't understand he disapproved of on principle. In the light of subsequent events I believe Billy's uneasiness to have been an instance of animal prevision.

TO SEE Billy Wigg conduct his master across that mill-race of traffic that swirled between curb and curb, as he did every morning in time for business, was an artistic pleasure.

Something more than a mere pilot was the dog; rather the rudder to whose accurate direction old Solomon responded with precise and prompt fidelity. A tug of the trouser leg from behind would bring the ancient newsboy to a halt. A gentle jerk forward would start him again, and, in obedience to a steady pull to one side or the other, he would trustingly suffer himself to be conducted around a checked wagon or a halted car.

All the time, Billy Wigg would keep up a running conversation made up of admonition, warning and encouragement.

"Come on, now"—in a series of sharp yaps, as they started from the curb. "Push right ahead. Hold hard. That's all right; it's by. Hurry now. Hurry, I said. Will you do as I tell you?" Then, to a too pressing cabby, in an angry bark. "What's the matter with you, anyway? Trying to run folks down? Hey? Well"—apologetically, in response to a jerk on his string—"these fool drivers do stir me up. Wait a bit. Now for it. And here we are."

How many thousand times dog and man had made the trip in safety before the dire day of the accident, not even Solomon John can reckon.

Harvey and I had started downtown early, while our pair of paper-vending friends chanced to be a little late. As we reached the corner, they were already half-way across the street, and Billy Wigg, with all the strength of terror, was striving to haul Solomon John backward.

"What's the matter with Billy?" said Harvey. From the sidewalk, we could not then see the cause of his excitement.

A second later the question was answered, as there plunged into view from behind a car the galloping horse of a derelict delivery wagon.

"Good heavens! Look at the old man," I cried, and, in the same breath, "Look at the dog," gasped Harvey.

WITH one mighty jerk Billy Wigg had torn the leash from his master's hand. Bereft of his sole guidance in the thunder and rush of traffic, the blind man stretched out piteous hands, warding off the death he could not see.

"Billy," he quavered, "where are you, Billy? Come back to me, Billy-dog."

For once Billy Wigg was deaf to his master's voice. He was obeying a more imperious call, that unfathomed nobility of dog nature that responds so swiftly to the summons. He was casting his own life in the balance to save another's.

Straight at the horse's throat he launched himself, a forlorn hope. It was a very big horse, and Billy was not a big dog. The upstroke of the knee caught him full; he was flung, whirling, fell almost under the wheels of a cab, rolled into the gutter, and lay there, quiet.

The horse had swerved a little, not quite enough. There was a scream, and the blind man went down from the glancing impact of the shoulder.

Harvey and I were beside him almost as soon as the crosswalk policeman. The three of us carried him to the sidewalk.

"No need to call an ambulance, officer," said Harvey. "I am a physician and the man is a friend of mine."

"Bedad, then, the dawg is a friend of mine," said the big fellow. "Couldn't ye take him along, too, sir?"

"Well, rather," said Harvey heartily. "Where is he?" He turned to look for the dog.

Billy Wigg came crawling toward us. Never tell me that dogs have no souls. The eyes in Billy's shaggy little face yearned with a more than human passion of anxiety and love, as, gasping with pain—for he had been cruelly shaken—he dragged himself to his partner's face.

At the touch of the warm, eager tongue, Solomon John's eyes opened. He stretched out his hand and buried it in the heavy fur.

"Hello, Billy," he said weakly. "I was afraid you were hurt. Are you all right, old boy?" And Billy, burrowing a wet nose in Solomon John's neck, wept for joy with loud whines.

SOME rapid and expert wire pulling on the part of Harvey landed our pair of friends in a private hospital, where Solomon John proved a most grateful and gentle patient, and Billy Wigg a most tumultuous one, until arrangement was made for the firm to occupy one and the same cot. Then he became tractable, even enduring the indignity of a flannel jacket and splints with a sort of humorous tolerance.

Every day Harvey came and gazed soulfully into Solomon John's glazed eyes—which is a curious form of treatment for a broken collarbone not sanctioned by any of the authorities who have written on the subject.

It soon became evident that Harvey didn't care anything about the rib; he had other designs. One day he came to the point.

"Solomon John, would you like to have your sight back?"

The blind man sat up in his cot and pressed his hands to his head.

"Do you mean it, sir?" he gasped. "You—you wouldn't fool an old man about such a thing?"

"Will you let me operate on you tomorrow?"

"Anything you think best, sir. I don't quite seem to take it all in yet, sir—not the whole sense of it. But if it does come out right," added Solomon John in the simplicity of his soul, "won't Billy Wigg be surprised and tickled!"

BILLY WIGG raged mightily and rent the garments of his best friends, because he was shut out during the operation. When he was admitted, after it was over, he howled tumultuously because Solomon John was racked with ether sickness, which he mistook for the throes of approaching dissolution.

Followed then weeks during which Solomon John wore a white bandage, in place of the old green eyeshade, and at frequent intervals sang a solemn but joyous chant which Billy Wigg accompanied with impatient yelps, because he couldn't make out what it meant.

"We're going to have our sight again,
Billy Wigg, Billy Wigg;
We're going to see the world again,
Billy, my dog."

It was a long, nerve-trying wait, but the day finally came when the white bandages were removed. After the first gasp of rapture, Solomon John looked about him eagerly.

"Let me see my dog," he said. "Billy, is this you?" as the junior partner looked, with anxious and puzzled eyes, into his face. "Well, you're certainly a mighty handsome doggy, old boy." (Billy Wigg was homelier than a stack of hay in January, but the eyes that looked on him were as those of a mother when she first sees her babe.)

I AM NOT BLIND BUT MY AITHRA HOLLAND

Reporters found his simplicity and naive honesty a mine of "good stuff" and the picture of the firm was in all the papers.

Unhappiness was the portion of Billy in the days that followed. A partner who wandered about unchaperoned and eluded obstacles without relying on his sense of touch, was quite beyond his comprehension.

So he sulked consistently until the time came for leaving the hospital. Then he perked up a bit, thinking, presumably, that Solomon John would resume his old habit of blind reliance upon him when once the door had closed behind him. Poor Billy!

It was three weeks after the operation that he left, Solomon John being discharged as cured. Harvey exulted. He said it was a great operation and proved things. I thought, myself, it was a mean trick on Billy Wigg. My unprofessional diagnosis was that he was on the road to becoming a chronic melancholiac.

The partners called on Harvey soon after the departure from the hospital. They were a study in psychological antithesis: Solomon John bubbling over with boyish happiness, Billy Wigg aged with the weight of woe he was carrying.

The old man was touchingly grateful, but his ally surreptitiously essayed to bite a piece out of Harvey's leg, when his back was turned. He nursed an unavenged wrong.

MONTHS passed before we saw the pair again. We returned from our European vacation confident of finding them on the same old corner, and, sure enough, there they were. But, as we approached, Harvey seized me by the arm.

"Good heavens! Bob! Look at the old man!"

"What's wrong with him?" said I. "He looks just the same as he used to."

"Just the same as he used to," echoed Harvey bitterly. "Eyeshade and all. All my work gone for nothing. Poor old boy!"

"Billy Wigg's all right, anyway," said I, as that superior animal greeted us with every indication of excitement.

"Think so?" said Harvey. "It strikes me that it isn't exactly welcome that he's trying to express." Then, in a louder voice, to Solomon John: "How did it happen, old Sol?"

At the sound of his voice, Solomon John whirled about and started to thrust up his shade, as if involuntarily. Then he held out tremulous hands, crying:

"What! Is that you, Dr. Harvey? God bless you, sir! And is Mr. Roberts with you? Well, well, but this does me good. You're a sight for sore eyes!"

"Not for yours, Solomon John."

"And why not, then? Whist! I forgot," he broke off scaredly, jerking his head toward Billy Wigg, who held us all under jealous scrutiny. "Wait a breath."

Thrusting his hand into his pocket, he whipped it out suddenly. A flight of coins scattered on the sidewalk. "Dear, dear!" cried the old man cunningly. "The old fool that I am! I'll never be rich this way. Pick them up, Billy-boy!"

Billy hated it, for picking small coins from a smooth pavement with lip and tooth is no easy job, hated worse leaving his partner to two such unscrupulous characters as he well knew us to be. But he knew his business, and set about it with all his energies.

"Whisper now," said the senior partner, as Billy swore under his breath at a slithery and elusive dime. "I've as fine a pair of eyes as you'd want for star-gazing at noonday."

"Then what on earth"——

"Sh-h-h! Soft and easy! The beast's cocking his little ears this way. Sure, 'twas all on his account, sirs."

"On Billy's account?" we both exclaimed in a breath.

"You didn't think I'd be faking it?" he asked reproachfully.

We didn't; and we said so. But we required further enlightenment.

"All on account of Billy Wigg there, sirs. The eyesight was a million blessings to me, but 'twas death to poor Billy. Not a pleasure in life would he take after we left the hospital. When I'd walk free and easy along the streets that looked so pretty to my old eyes, the dog'd be crazy with fear that some harm would come to me through him not leading me.

"At the last he just laid down and set out to die. He'd not sleep, he'd not eat; and the eyes of him, when he'd look at me, were fit to make a man weep. I sent for a doctor—you being away, sir," put in Solomon John, in polite parenthesis to my friend. "He says: 'The dog's dying of a broken heart. I've seen it before,' he says. 'What'll I do?' says I. 'He'll not be content till you are as you were before,' says the doctor.

"It was a minute before I sensed what he meant. Then my heart got thick and sick inside me. 'Blind?' I says. 'Is that what you mean?' 'You old fool,' says the doctor, 'can't you do a bit of play acting? You've had enough practice in the part,' he says.

"Over I went and got my stick and put on the old shade that I hadn't ever thought to use again, thanks to you, sir, and tap-tapped across the floor to Billy Wigg. 'Come on, Billy,' says I, 'I want you to take me for a walk.' Billy jumped up with a kind of choky bark, and I hugged Billy and Billy hugged me, and—we've been doing business on the corner ever since."

THERE was a long pause. Harvey's expression was queer. I felt a little queer myself. It was a queer story, you know.

Finally, I asked the old man if business was good. Not that I particularly yearned to know, but it seemed to be time to say something.

"Nicely, sir, thank you," said Solomon John, "but I want to ask you, is it a dishonesty, think you, for me to be wearing my shade like a blind man, and me able to see a flea on the end of Billy Wigg's tail the length of a block away?

"The Lord's been mighty good to me, sir—you and the Lord—giving me back my sight," said Solomon John simply, turning to Harvey, "and I wouldn't want to do anything that wasn't square."

"I wouldn't let it weigh on my mind," said Harvey.

"I'd been thinking of a bit of a sign," proceeded Solomon John. "A friend of mine printed it out for me, but the idea's my own."

After some fumbling under his coat, he produced a placard artfully designed in large and flourishy letters. This was the order of it:

I am NOT Blind
but
The Dog
Thinks I Am.

Billy Wigg seemed pleased because Harvey kicked me. No doubt he would have been equally pleased if I had kicked Harvey.

But it happened to be I who laughed. Harvey covered it up by soberly telling Solomon John that the sign was sure to be a grand success.

It was a grand success; quite stupendous, in fact. Old Solomon did a business on the strength of it that would have made his eyes pop out, if he hadn't kept them tight shut out of respect to Billy's prejudices.

Reporters found his simplicity and naive honesty a mine of "good stuff," and the picture of the firm was in all the papers. Billy Wigg began to suffer from swelled head; became haughty, not to say snobbish.

BUT the fierce light of publicity wore upon the simple soul of Solomon John. Billy continued to exercise his authority. Perhaps tyranny would be nearer the mark.

But even so meek a soul as Solomon John has limits of endurance beyond which it is not well to press. Only the other day it was that the old man said to Harvey, while Billy Wigg was otherwise engaged:

"It's as bad as being a henpecked husband, sir. Last night, as I was quietly stepping out the window to take a mug of ale with some friends, Billy wakes up, and the fuss he makes rouses the neighborhood. Sure, he wouldn't hark to my going at all. You can see his teeth marks on my shin this minute, sir. Could you give me something harmless to put in his food that'd make him sleep the sounder?"

Harvey said he'd think about it. He wasn't obliged to. Less than a week later he got a note in the mail:

"Dear Sir: I could not stand it any longer. I have absconded to Buffalo to Take a Rest. Please be Good to Billy Wigg. I enclose his Board and Lodging any place you Put him. He is a good Dog, but too Bossy. I am Going to See Things till my Eyes get Tired. I will come back in Future.

"Yrs. respectfully,
"SOLOMON J. BOLES.

"P. S.—I know you will Treat Billy Good"

The enclosure was a $20 bill. It was the price of freedom, and cheap at the price. (Copyright for the Post-Dispatch.)

"IF YOU MUST WASH — USE STAUFER'S." 38,000 St. Louis women do their own washing this easy and economical way. They simply dissolve a Staufer Washing Tablet in 4 cupfuls of boiling water. This gives a quart of soft soap. No rubbing necessary. Saves time, money and labor. Best, too, for washing dishes, floors, woodwork, etc. Every grocer in St. Louis sells it. If you live outside of St. Louis, send $1 for enough to make five gallons of soft soap. Staufer Laundry Tablet Co., St. Louis.

Fat Is Not In Fashion

All styles call for slenderness, short skirts in particular. And most women, as you see are meeting that requirement.

The easy, pleasant way is Marmola Prescription Tablets. They act by correcting the cause. No abnormal exercise or diet is required.

People have used them for 19 years. They have told and shown the results to others, and the use has grown. Now, in these days of slender figures, people are using Marmola in a very extensive way.

You see the results everywhere. Perhaps your own friends can tell them. If so, they will say that Marmola brought none but good effects.

Try this time-tested method, so widely employed today. Simply take four tablets daily and watch results. Stop when you reach proper weight. A method used by millions, and for 19 years, must be both right and effective. Learn, for your own sake, what so many know about it.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

There Is a way out

JUST because you live beyond the reach of city gas mains is no reason to believe you can't have gas for cooking. It is now no longer necessary to rely on coal, kerosene or other fuels. A convenient product — Pyrofax — is ready to serve you. Pyrofax is derived from natural gas. It is not a liquid fuel. It requires no gas mains. Thousands of women are using it on standard gas ranges in all parts of the country.

What is Pyrofax? How does it work? Take this opportunity of finding out. Before you know it you will have gas for cooking and that modern, clean, efficient gas range you've always wanted. Clip and mail us the coupon below — there is no obligation.

comfort appeals most to stout women

WHAT A RELIEF it is for them to discard the heavy, irritating contrivances they have been wearing for a flexible, featherweight, one-piece garment like CHARIS, which gives complete support and figure control without the least restraint.

A wonderful, adjustable inner belt lifts the abdomen instead of compressing it, while the supple outer garment reduces hips and thighs and controls the bust, insuring a more slender figure and modish lines. Phone or write for a free demonstration in your home—or call at this office.

A drink of rare distinction to serve when good friends call

WHEN good friends call to grace your home—to sit and talk as good friends will—to dine—to dance—to play a little bridge perhaps . . . there's no drink in all the world so altogether welcome as a sparkling, bubbling glass of "Canada Dry."

The very appearance of the stately green bottle, with its aristocratic crest and foil, adds a touch of distinction to every occasion. The delicate appealing flavor of the ginger ale itself will charm your taste and tell you something, too, of the matchless purity and quality of this famous drink.

"Canada Dry" is altogether different from every other ginger ale because it is made and mellowed with something of the same expert care as a fine old wine. It is, indeed, The Champagne of Ginger Ales.

Gayest of Frocks
Sheerest of Light Summer Things
Wear them under the most trying hygienic handicap

Utter protection and security, plus an end to the problem of disposal

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND, Registered Nurse

SUMMER days and moonlight nights, dances, tennis, motoring, yachting—don't let them bother you because of a difficult hygienic situation.

The old-time "sanitary pad" has been supplanted. There is now protection that is absolute, positive and certain—a new way that will make a great difference in your life; that will provide peace-of-mind under the most trying circumstances.

Kotex — what it does

Unknown a few years ago, 8 in every 10 women in the better walks of life have discarded the insecure "sanitary pads" of yesterday and adopted Kotex.

Filled with Cellucotton wadding, the world's super-absorbent, Kotex absorbs 16 times its own weight in moisture. It is 5 times as absorbent as the ordinary cotton pad. It discards easily as tissue. No laundry—no embarrassment of disposal.

It also thoroughly deodorizes, and thus ends all fear of offending.

Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex

It is the only sanitary napkin embodying the super-absorbent Cellucotton wadding. It is the only napkin made by this company.

See that you get the genuine Kotex at better drug and department stores everywhere simply by saying "Kotex." Comes in sanitary sealed packages of 12 in two sizes, the Regular and Kotex-Super. Supplied also through vending cabinets in rest-rooms by West Disinfecting Co.

Kotex Company, 180 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill.

SAVE THE LABELS—THEY'RE VALUABLE

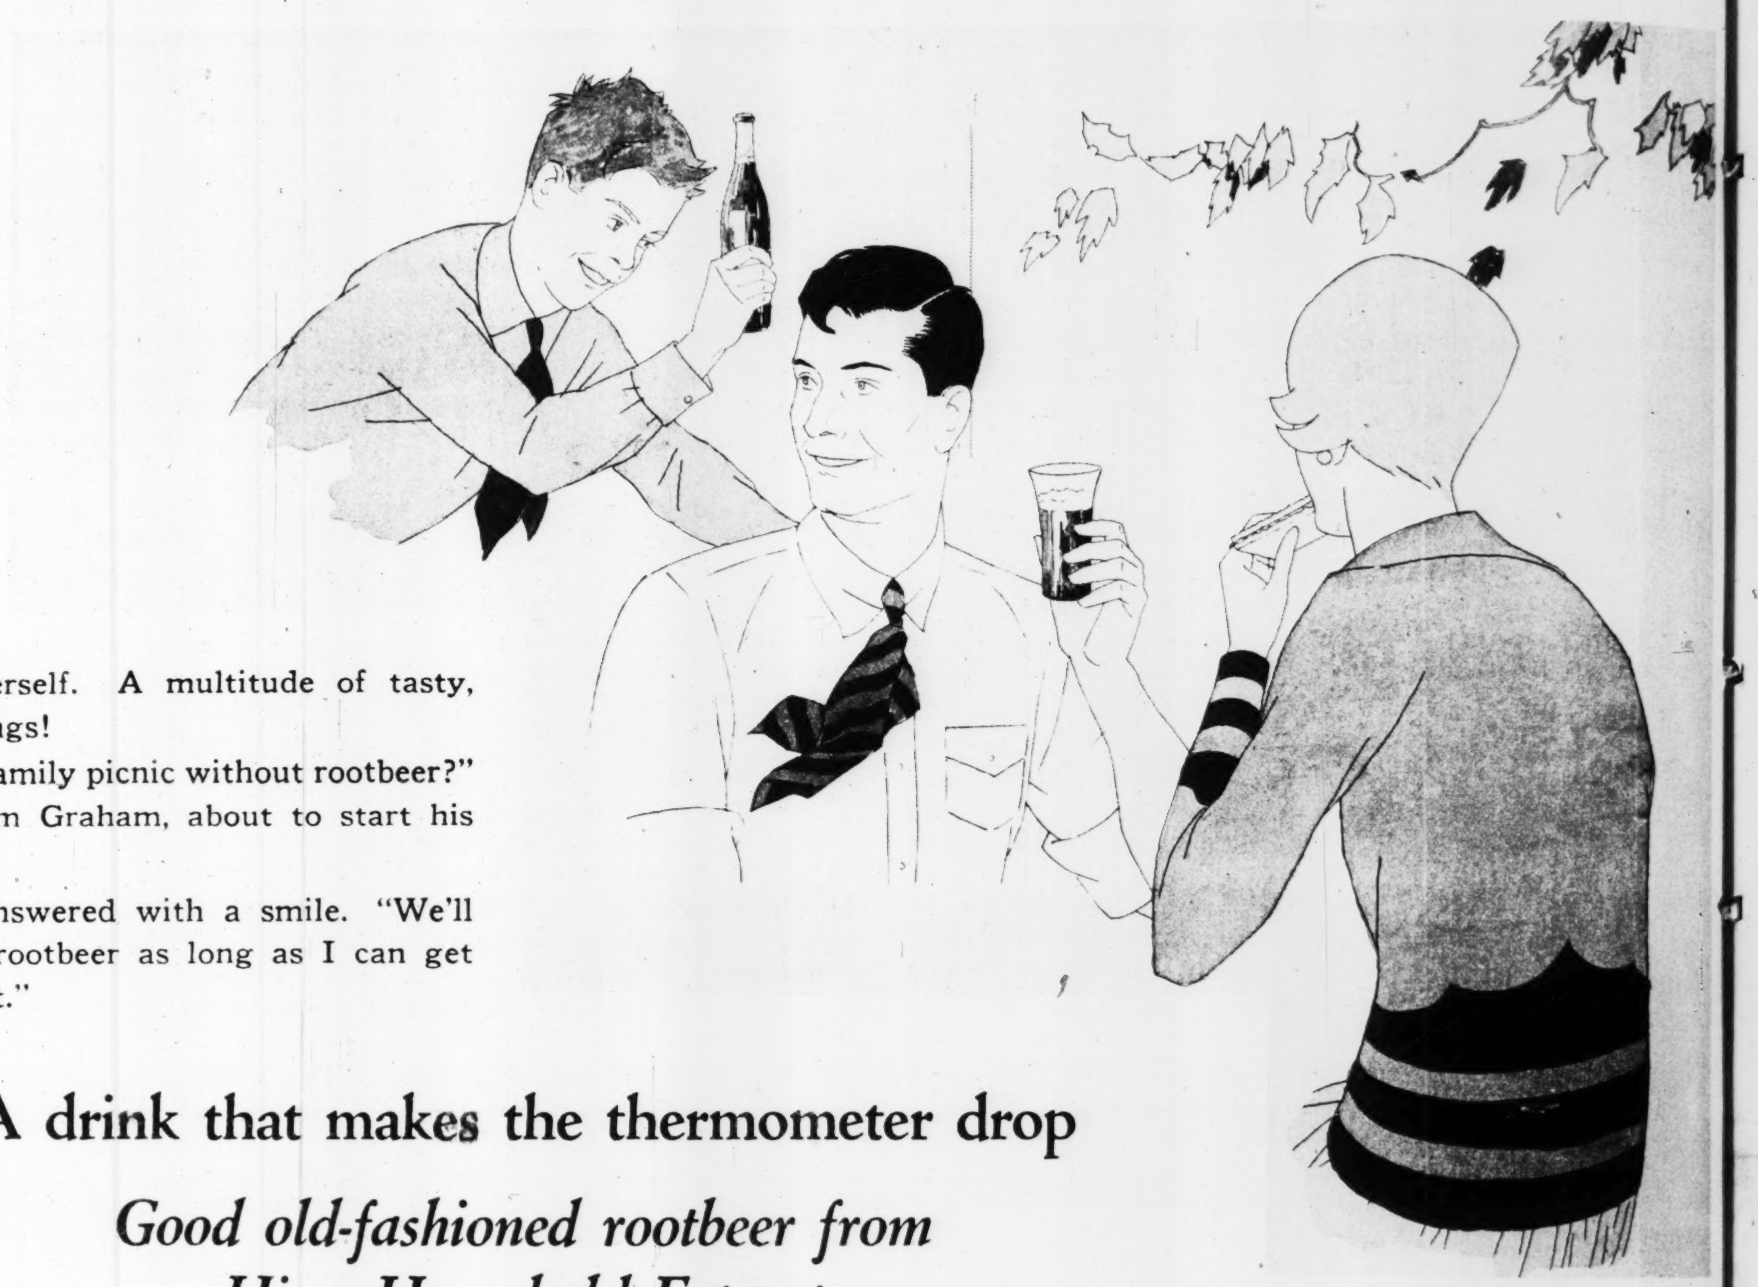
"What's a Picnic Without Rootbeer?"

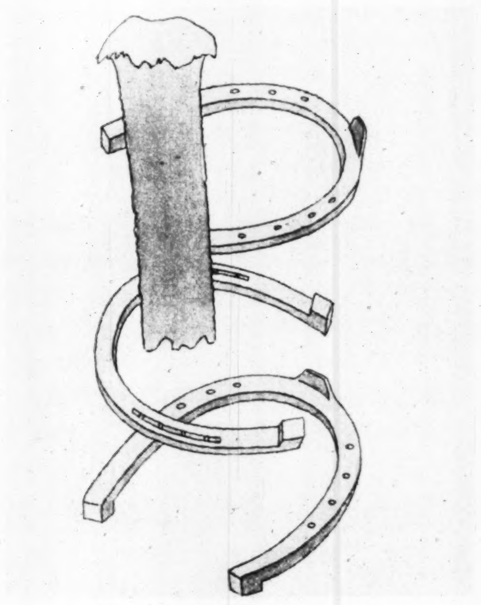
And it's home-made from Hires Household Extract

"MOTHER, daddy's throwin' ringers every time!" shouted little Sam Graham, cupping his hands to his mouth. "Man! he's goin' nifty!"

The horseshoe game was in full swing. Big Sam was pretty warm, but very happy. Five ringers out of seven throws—and every ringer meant a sparkling glass of rootbeer from Hires Household Extract.

Up in a cool and shady spot, Mrs. Graham was spreading a perfect picnic lunch on the red-fringed table cloth. Potato salad—hard-cooked eggs — cocoanut cake — rootbeer she had made herself. A multitude of tasty, tempting things!





"What's a family picnic without rootbeer?" asked big Sam Graham, about to start his second glass.

His wife answered with a smile. "We'll always have rootbeer as long as I can get Hires Extract."

A drink that makes the thermometer drop

Good old-fashioned rootbeer from Hires Household Extract

Make this delicious beverage for less than 1c a glass

NOTHING so refreshing these sultry days as a cool drink—and no drink so refreshing as good old-fashioned rootbeer made from Hires Household Extract.

And you can make it yourself — make it easily and inexpensively, right in your own home. It's such a delicious drink, so tangy, sparkling and refreshing that you'll be proud to say you made it yourself.

You will find that once your family have tasted this foamy, thirst-quenching beverage, they'll be asking for it again and again.

Keep a bottle always on ice

Mighty convenient to have a bottle of home-made rootbeer on ice at all times. Ready for the men when they come home tired from a hard day's work. Ready for callers who happen to drop by and ready for the children, who keep clamoring for the wonderful rootbeer that mother made.

You can safely let the youngsters drink all they want. They love it, and it's good for them — a pure, wholesome drink, containing no artificial elements. Nature supplies every ingredient used in preparing Hires Household Extract.

The cost is negligible

Home-made rootbeer is a drink that costs little and goes far. You can make 5 gallons — 80 glasses — from one 30c package of Hires Household Extract — a cost of less than 1c a glass.

Get a package of Hires Household Extract at your dealer's. It will be one with many more to come. There were over 30 million gallons of rootbeer made from Hires Household Extract last year. Full directions in every package. The Charles E. Hires Company, 208 S. 24th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Shall we send you a bottle of Hires Household Extract?

In case your dealer does not carry Hires Household Extract, we will be glad to send you one bottle—enough to make 80 glasses of rootbeer—for 30c (35c in Canada).

Hires Household Extract has many other uses that will be new and welcome to you. Did you know, for instance, that it could be used in flavoring pies, puddings and icings for cakes? Valuable suggestions for summer menus are contained in our new recipe book. We will be glad to send you a copy—free.

Here is a new and rapidly growing use for Hires Household Extract. Women everywhere are writing to tell us how good this famous extract is for flavoring puddings, cake icings, gelatines and other desserts.

We would appreciate hearing how you like it used this way. We would be glad also to have you send us your favorite recipe.

There is an interesting radio program given every Thursday evening by The Charles E. Hires Company. Tune in on WJZ New York, WBZ Springfield, KDKA Pittsburgh, KYW Chicago, WBAL Baltimore, WJR Detroit, WHAS Louisville, WSM Nashville, WMC Memphis, WSB Atlanta, for a delightful radio half-hour.

ROOTBEER ICING: Put 1 cup granulated sugar, 2 tablespoons water, and 1 egg white in the top of a double boiler and cook over hot water for six minutes, beating all the time. Remove from fire, and add ½ teaspoonful rootbeer extract and beat until partially cool.

ROOTBEER CANDY KISSES: Cook 3 cups brown sugar, ½ cup water, and pinch salt until it spins thread, when dropped from spoon. Add 1½ tsp. rootbeer extract and pour over stiffly beaten white of an egg. Beat while pouring and until mixture is quite stiff. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto waxed paper.

YRD CONSIDERS START OF FLIGHT TO PARIS AT NIGHT

ould Then Arrive Over Newfoundland About Dawn and Reach Paris for Daylight Landing.

AY MAKE HOP-OFF TOMORROW EVENING

onoplane America to Carry 14,500 - Pound Load, With 1300 Gallons of Gasoline.

y Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, June 20.—Com- ander Richard E. Byrd may hop ff at dusk on the transatlantic light of the tri-motored Fokker onoplane America, he announced Roosevelt Field, where prepara- ons for a departure tomorrow ere still under way, despite a 14- our rain which turned the flying eld into a morass in spots.

"Although both Lindbergh and hamberlin left in the early hours the morning, I am considering arting about 6 o'clock at night," aid Commander Byrd. "This will ut us over Newfoundland shortly fter daylight the next morning we can get our bearings by nd before heading to sea, and it ill also give us the advantage o daylight landing in Paris."

Will Seek Safest Lane.

Byrd outlined completely for the irst time the scientific objects o he expedition, saying one of the ain purposes was to discover the afest and fastest air lane to Eur pe to blaze the trail for the day hen transatlantic flights will be ommonplace.

The effect on the plane of fog ind and rain, altitude and storm ill be studied in minute detail, th lyer said, adding that, instead o earing stormy, low pressure areas ransatlantic pilots of the futu ill learn to use them to make uicker and safer passages. He redicted that more complete nowledge of the velocity of the esterly winds which blow con ually at high altitudes would ake possible at some time a non top flight around the world, i hich the plane would be spe long a 80-mile an hour wind.

"Our purpose is to establish cer ain general rules concerning th inds on the Atlantic," he said We know, for instance, tha lanes should be able to take ad antage of the clockwise move ent of low pressure areas and b ried toward Europe at hig peed by flying on the southern ri f a storm traveling east. Thi eans perhaps 30 or 40 miles a our will be attained above th peed the propeller gives.

"We want to know more abou he changes in the direction an elocity of winds at various alti udes. We are aware, for instance hat a southwest wind traveling a 0 knots an hour shifts to a west rly wind and the velocity attain maximum at an altitude of 150 eet. Then it gradually decrease t a rate of a knot per 1000 fe ntil the altitude of 3000 feet eached, when the velocity agai egins to increase. We want t now more about this strange la f the air, so that it may be use y future flyers.

Nungesser's Journey Hardest.

"If we get up to an altitude 5,000 feet, we expect to find d from the west all of the wa ver the ocean, pushing us towar urope and conserving our gaso e supply. In fact, the day wi ome when some aviator will us he steady 80-mile an hour we ind, which is found at high alt udes, to make a nonstop fligh round the world.

"The importance of getting dat oncerning Atlantic winds is i strated by the fact that it is 40 es farther by air from Europ the United States than it rom the United States to Europ he difference arises from the fa hat a plane flying from Europ as the wind against it, while or rom America is pushed along b his same wind. For that reaso ungesser and Coli had a far hard r task in trying to reach Americ han we Americans have flying urope."

Commander Byrd said anoth hing the America expedition h o learn is whether there is a ba f clear air between a fog and t louds above. "Our opinion n that the fog is simply a clo hat is resting on air or wat e stated. "But we want to se or all time whether it is poss r an aviator caught in a find a clear area above the nd below the clouds. Sleet of the most dangerous ene e flyer has. Within 15 min om the formation of sleet on aft, it is often forced dow
